MASSES OF TROOPS ENCIRCLE DUBLIN AND PATROL ROADS

Cavalry Take Up Strategic Positions About City and Act in Conjunction with Police.

SINN FEINERS RAID VILLAGE

Hundreds Take Over Clin, and Burn Court House, a Club and the Hibernian Hall.

MUNITION TRAIN IS HELD UP

Railway Men Refuse to Move It to Cork—Sir John Taylor, Dublin Castle Official, Is Retired.

DUBLIN, May 23.—Large bodies of cavalry have taken up strategic positions around Dublin during the last few days and the city is now practically encircled. At night all the main roads are patrolled by mounted troops, accompanied by motor lorries containing police and infantry.

Incendiarism on a large scale has been carried out by raiders at Glin, County Limerick, the courthouse, a clubhouse building and the Hibernian Hall all being destroyed. It is reported that several hundred men invaded the town and, having cut the telephone wires, they locked up Mrs. Regan, the courthouse keeper, and her children, having removed them with their goods to another dwelling. The raiders then, it is said, set fire to the courthouse and other buildings. Persons approaching the town were held up on the outskirts and ordered back.

The Glanmire police barracks, a few miles from Cork City, were burned on Saturday night.

One of the men who burned down the Ballybrack police barracks was terribly burned and later died in a Dublin hospital.

Fifty armed and disguised men raided the stores of the Anglo-American Oil Company and the Shell Motor Spirit Company at Athlone and carried away in carts and motor cars over £500 worth of petrol.

Peter Kelly, living at Aghagad, six miles from Roscommon, was shot dead by a band of masked men early this morning. Kelly had been warned not to interfere in a dispute concerning certain lands.

Tie Up Munitions.

Further developments have taken place in connection with the refusal of the Irish dockers to unload munitions of war consigned to Dublin. On Saturday the steamer Plabein of London arrived at Kingstown Harbor with a cargo of military motor wagons and a large quantity of army stores aboard. The cargo was unloaded by the military, the dockers having declined to handle it. Later in the evening the military loaded sixteen railway cars with the munitions, and today the Dublin & South Eastern Railway Company was asked to transfer the train to the city.

The enginemen, guards and porters refused and the signalmen joined them, declaring they would set signals against the munition train. The railwaymen are acting on instructions from Dublin headquarters.

The munitions were subsequently taken from cars and it was said will be conveyed in military lorries to the city.

Veteran Irish Official Retired.

LONDON, May 23.—It is officially announced that Sir John Taylor has retired from his position as Under Secretary in the office of the Chief Secretary for Ireland and is to be succeeded "during the present pressure of business," by A. W. Cope, Second Secretary to the Minister of Pensions. During the same period Sir John Anderson, Chairman of the Board of Inland Revenue, is to act jointly with James MacMahon as Under Secretary to the Lord Lieutenant.

Sir John Taylor's retirement has been anticipated, though only a few days ago it was announced that his leave of absence had been extended for a month. He has had forty years' service and is looked upon by the Irish as one of those who maintained the old traditions of Dublin Castle.

Announcing the retirement of Sir John Taylor as Under Secretary in the office of the Chief Secretary for Ireland, The London Times says that his knowledge extended to the turbulent days of the eighties, and it is believed that the advice which he tendered has been for drastic measures. His retirement, adds The Times, will be regarded in Ireland as evidence that more moderate counsels are likely to prevail in the future.

"There is little doubt," The Times concludes, "that the Administration machine of Dublin Castle has fallen into disrepair and has long required overhauling. The strain of present conditions in Ireland has completely deranged it, and these appointments probably foreshadow complete reorganization of the Chief Secretary's office and a different orientation of policy."

The press association's Dublin correspondent says that inquiries regarding the rumor that parleys are being opened between the Government and the Sinn Fein have failed to obtain the slightest confirmation in official or political circles.

Greeks Occupying Thrace; Bulgars and Turks Depart

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 22.—Greek troops began relieving the French forces in Bulgarian Thrace this morning, occupying the coast area northward from Xanthi to the Frederick line.

The occupation thus far has been carried out peacefully. The local administration is being replaced by civil officials from Saloniki.

The Bulgarian peasants evacuating the affected territory are congesting all roads northward with their ox-carts. Supplementary transport for the removal of civilians is being furnished by the Bulgarian Government.

The Turkish officers and their families are evacuating Turkish Thrace.

JOHNSON AND WOOD CLOSE IN OREGON

The Senator's Lead Over the General Is Now Only 775.

CHAMBERLAIN'S LEAD 5,727

Stanfield Distancing His Competitor for the Republican Senate Nomination.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 23.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson had a lead of 775 votes over Major Gen. Leonard Wood for the Oregon Republican Presidential preference, according to figures tabulated tonight by The Portland Oregonian from complete returns from 412 of the 413 precincts in Multnomah County (Portland), complete returns from twelve and incomplete returns from the other twenty-three counties of the State. The vote stood: Johnson, 40,544; Wood, 39,769; Lowden, 14,457; Hoover, 13,036.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge was leading William Grant Webster of New York and Elwood Washington for Republican Vice President preference.

In the contest between Senator George E. Chamberlain and Harvey Starkweather for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, the vote stood: Chamberlain, 12,685; Starkweather, 7,158.

Robert B. Stanfield had a big lead over Albert Abraham for the Republican Senatorial nomination, on the face of the incomplete returns.

Dr. Esther Poole Lovejoy was leading Mrs. Alexander Thompson for the Democratic nomination for Representative of the Third Congressional District (Portland). In the Second Congressional District Representative N. J. Sinnott, Republican, had a comfortable lead for renomination.

WARNING BY JOHNSON, JR.

Says Senator Must Be Nominated or West Will Go Democratic.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—"Senator Johnson must be nominated at the Republican convention, or the West, at least, will go Democratic," says Hiram W. Johnson, Jr., who has assumed charge of his father's campaign headquarters at the Auditorium.

Meyer Lissner of Los Angeles, one of the original Johnson Progressives of California, is also at these headquarters. Other Johnson men will arrive Tuesday, and the place will begin to hum.

The Oregon vote has given the Johnson followers new enthusiasm. Mr. Johnson made a statement tonight in which he said:

"The plurality for Senator Johnson in Oregon will be approximately 10,000 over General Wood. This victory has much more significance than the winning of delegates. It means that Johnson has beaten the field and has upset the combined efforts of his opponents. Both the Lowden and Hoover forces threw all their strength to Wood, and it was 'anything to beat Johnson.'

"Senator Chamberlain's victory points again to the fact that in the Western States Senatorial representation is in most instances divided between the Republican and a Democrat. Will the Republican Party win with Johnson or go to defeat with a candidate of big business?"

ITALIAN TOWN SOVIET LASTED ONLY A DAY

Labor Outbreaks Occur in Northeastern Provinces—Even Prisoners Demand 8-Hour Day.

LONDON, May 23.—Troubles have broken out in the northeastern provinces of Italy, according to Milan advices to The London Times. In Carnia the unemployed set up a Soviet Government, which, however, lasted only a day, the troops re-establishing order. But as a protest a general strike was declared in the whole of Carnia, and extended today to Friuli.

In Verona the general strike is aggravated by the solidarity of the railwaymen.

The latest example of what the correspondent calls the "strike mania" is prisoners refusing to work and demanding an eight-hour day.

COMMEND DAVIS AS FIT TO RECEIVE PRESIDENTIAL HONOR

HIS ABILITY RECOGNIZED

Extolled Even by Those Who Admit That They Are Committed to Other Candidates.

SENATOR KING ENTHUSIASTIC

Other Leaders Believe Davis's Name Certain of Presentation if Convention Is Deadlocked.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Interest was aroused in Washington today by the leading editorial in Sunday's NEW YORK TIMES entitled "A Great Democrat," which suggested that the present condition of the country's affairs called for the nomination of strong men by both major political parties and directed the attention of Democrats to the ability and demonstrated statesmanship of John W. Davis of West Virginia, the American Ambassador to Great Britain. This interest arose mainly from the fact that THE TIMES editorial put in concrete form what has been in the minds of many prominent Democrats ever since the pre-convention contests became active, for Mr. Davis has been spoken of in Democratic councils, and regret has been expressed that his admirers had made no effort to bring his name to the attention of the Democratic leaders and electorate.

Warm words of praise came today from prominent Democrats who read the editorial in THE TIMES.

That Mr. Davis would have made a strong candidate for the Presidential nomination at his party had he permitted the use of his name was indicated by practically all those who commented on the subject. It was pointed out, however, that many or most of those who would be influential in the San Francisco convention had either committed themselves to other aspirants for the Presidential honor or had made up their minds to support one of those while not committing themselves publicly at this time.

Opposition to McAdoo's Candidacy.

But from what was said by several who expressed views on the subject—some of them with the injunction that they were not to be quoted by name—the name of Ambassador Davis is certain to be brought before the San Francisco convention if a deadlock comes on the choice of a candidate. In the present situation the bulk of delegates to the Democratic National Convention are uninstructed. Political observers believe that this state of affairs favors the nomination of William G. McAdoo, to whom a number of State delegations are known or understood to be committed. At the same time there is an undercurrent of opposition to Mr. McAdoo, particularly among recognized party leaders of the conservative stamp, on the ground that it would be unwise to nominate for President a man closely allied with President Wilson, personally and otherwise.

These leaders contend that it will be impossible to differentiate between the President and his son-in-law should the latter be chosen to head the Democartic ticket, and that all the sins that have been attributed to the Wilson Administration will be charged to Mr. McAdoo. They also feel that Mr. McAdoo is too radical, and that a man of Mr. Davis's type is better suited to head the National Government under present conditions. In these circumstances conservative party leaders have been looking around for a man of standing in the country and the party who would be able to go before the people unhampered by the allegation that he would continue the policies of the present Administration, if elected President.

This feeling accounts to some extent for the prominence given to Vice President Marshall as a possible choice at the San Francisco convention. It has also aided the aspirations of Governor Cox of Ohio, who is now an avowed candidate for the nomination. While Mr. McAdoo's association with President Wilson was at one time regarded as a great asset to his political aspirations, there is a growing feeling among a considerable number of party leaders that it would be well to have as the Presidential candidate some other man of strength and ability whose position in the party has been more independent.

For these and other reasons, the prominence given the name of Ambassador

Senator Penrose Has a Relapse; Very Ill, But In No Immediate Danger

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—Reports as to the condition of Senator Penrose caused grave alarm to his friends today, one of his physicians being quoted as saying that, "although he is very ill, he is in no immediate danger."

It is announced on the same authority that Senator Penrose's condition "was the same as on Friday," when he is said to have undergone a serious relapse.

Although the above reports came from high authority, quite contradictory statements were made today at the home of the Senator, 1,331 Spruce Street. It was said at the house that, far from being seriously ill, Senator Penrose was recovering rapidly from the ailment from which he had been suffering for some months; that he transacted considerable business yesterday and that he expected to keep several appointments this week bearing on the Presidential situation.

WATERBURY, Conn., May 23.—Prohibition was blamed for all the social unrest, and resolutions were passed to support political candidates who favor legislation opposed to the eighteenth amendment, at the sixth annual State convention of the Connecticut Trades Union Liberty League here.

Delegates were present from Waterbury Central Labor Union, New Haven Trades Council, Meriden Central Labor Union, New Haven Typographical Union, Danbury Hat Finishers, Waterbury Bartenders' Union, Danbury Bartenders' Union, Meriden Brewery Workers, Bridgeport Brewery Workers and New Haven Brewery Workers.

BEAR IS SHOT DEAD IN BRONX PARK HUNT

Black Prince Escapes from Zoo and Ranges the Woods All Night.

POLICE JOIN IN THE CHASE

Motorists Warned Off Parkways —Animal Finally Surrounded by Riflemen and Killed.

Black Prince was amiable enough as a cub. But two years ago his owners, who had believed it was practicable to make a house pet of a full-grown Canadian black bear, realized their mistake and turned him over to the Bronx Zoo.

Despite the petting and coddling of his childhood, Black Prince proved to have such an unlovely disposition that he was kept in a cage with bars at the front and sides and a back wall of solid rock. When endless pacing up and down failed to soothe his restlessness, he could clamber up the rocks and enjoy a view of his domain of liberty, till he was stopped by an iron picket fence twenty feet high at the top.

Saturday night the fence didn't stop him. It happened so suddenly that Lester Lestwirz, the negro watchman who saw him go, thinks he just floated over or through the barrier and went lumbering and scrambling away over the hillside.

Chief Forester Henry Merkle quickly called together an emergency crew headed by Peter Romanoff, in charge of the bear den, Head Keeper Walter Twomey and nearly a score of others. They knew the bear was vicious and they knew that at the slightest opportunity he would turn into a man-killer. Nor would any man stand the slimmest chance, if ever that 300-pound body were launched at him through the darkness.

Hence they notified Captain Ievers of the Bronx Park Police Station, who at once sent patrolmen to guard every entrance to the park, particularly the Third Avenue elevated terminus at 198th Street, while he stationed other patrolmen to warn late motorists off the parkways and to caution them particularly against stopping in the park while the bear was at large.

Then Merkle and his men, carrying rifles and the searchlights they had found so valuable when they went after escaped beavers along the Bronx River three years ago, took up the trail. They soon learned that Black Prince, too, had made for the river and that, never ranging far from the water, he had wandered about through the gardens and the shrubbery and for a time had lost himself in the "wilderness," where there was little hope of finding him.

With orders to shoot on sight and shoot to kill, the huntsmen kept up their search till daybreak, when two policemen discerned the big, soft-footed animal prowling along the Gun Hill Road not far from 204th Street. They fired and wounded the bear, who retired snarling into the shrubbery.

Merkle and his men came on the run and plunged in after him, following the red trail the wounded creature left. Black Prince was not traveling far or fast, and soon he stood at bay, a semi-circle of his pursuers training their rifles upon him. For a moment he seemed to consider the possibility of a fight against big odds, then he made for a tall tree. Before he could set claw into it the men opened fire, and in an instant the big bear only was fit to occupy a niche in the Natural History Museum.

Jim, a full grown, bushy-haired lion of the breed that is often seen stalking majestically across the movie screen in jungle scenes, caused more commotion and excitement yesterday in the Hotel Belleclaire, Seventy-seventh Street and Broadway, where he is sharing a suite of rooms on the first floor with his owner, than that hostelry ever dreamed of experiencing. Jim is the pet of Thomas R. Zann, a retired lumber merchant of Leavenworth, Wash., and both are on their way to Africa.

Jim made his début in the Belleclaire Saturday afternoon in a large canvas-covered case through an open window. The management thought the case contained a piano until yesterday morning, when Mr. Zann called up the clerk and asked that fifteen pounds of raw

GOMPERS INDICTS CONGRESS, DEMANDS ITS OVERTURN

Charges Failure to Relieve Cost of Living and Repression of Labor.

SCORES PALMER'S METHODS

Calls for Publicity of Income Tax Returns, Curb on Profiteering and Control of Credit.

SAYS PLEA MUST BE HEARD

Workers, He Asserts, Will No Longer Endure Legislative Injustice and Private "Piracy."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—"There must be an overturn in Congress," asserts Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in the leading editorial in the June issue of The American Federationist, the official organ of the federation. Mr. Gompers indicts Congress as having failed to relieve the high cost of living, and concludes:

"Enemies must be defeated. Friends must be elected."

After reviewing President Wilson's recommendations for legislation which were not approved by Congress, Mr. Gompers says:

"If Congress had seen fit to respond to the wishes of the President and enacted some of the legislation suggested by him, if would have been possible to curb, at least to some extent, this unlicensed plundering in the necessities of life. For Congress to deny that relief is possible is for Congress to confess the incompetency of which the evidence convicts it."

Mr. Gompers attacks the Attorney General, and makes it plain that if Mr. Palmer is nominated at San Francisco he will have to face the opposition of organized labor.

"The present Congress," Mr. Gompers writes, "may be indicted fairly as a Congress of incompetence on the cost of living issue. It may be indicted as a Congress which has been negligent of duty and thoughtless of the welfare of the people. The Government departments, as, for example, the Department of Justice, may be indicted for incompetency on the same grounds. What has been more ludicrous in American public life during the last year than the announcement of the Department of Justice to the effect that it has abandoned its high cost of living campaign because of the high cost of the campaign?"

Gives Profits of 31 Big Corporations.

Mr. Gompers named twenty-one great corporations that since that date have reaped profits averaging 435 per cent above their profits of previous years. These figures, he said, have been unchallenged since they first appeared in the newspapers.

Another phase of business activity which has a bearing on inflation of living costs, Mr. Gompers declared to be "unlicensed plundering," which he illustrated by cases "derived from authentic sources." One case was that of a carload of live chickens shipped from Omaha to Chicago, where the birds were dressed and returned to Omaha and sold in retail markets, after having passed through eleven hands, all of which levied a toll of profit. Another case was of a Chicago speculator who had bought a large lot of webbing on which he had heard a quick sale was to be made. He was approached by another man, who asked if he would sell what he had just bought. The speculator, admitting that he did not know what he had bought, named a price yielding him a profit of $20,000, which was accepted. "He had never seen the commodity, and never wanted to see it," Mr. Gompers added.

Mr. Gompers attacked Attorney General Palmer for indicting "corner grocers and small haberdashers for offenses which are of no moment at all in comparision" with the whole situation. Mr. Palmer has found it possible to do ineffective things, but impossible to accomplish effective things, he complained.

"The high cost of living is a paramount issue with the American people today," he says, "and it will be a paramount issue so long as the income of the average American family is inadequate to maintain a proper and just standard of living. Thousands of American working people have had little or no increase in income since 1918. That being the case, they have actually been compelled to accept a reduction in real wages of approximately 50 per cent.

Blames Outlaw Rail Strike on Congress.

"The recent outburst among railroad workers was a symptom of what is the matter in America. Only two classes of people were surprised by that outburst—the ignorant and the blind. To be sure, the railroad workers used tactics which were entirely wrong and in denial of all the training and discipline of the trade union movement. However, the undeniable fact is that they acted in response to a situation that was aggravating in the extreme, a situation which officials and employers had failed to comprehend and failed to meet.

"The working people of America have understood the need for restraint. To use a common phrase they have no fuse to fire to rock the boat. The outstanding fact in the whole situation is that appeals of the wage earners made in an orderly manner through proper channels to proper authorities have been met with postponement after postponement. The appeals of the wage earners for relief from profiteering, relief from the high cost of living, relief from reduction of wages, have been made under conditions most aggravating, only to be met with deception, if not treachery. Abuse has

BARRAGAN DESCRIBES CARRANZA'S MURDER; SURPRISED AT DAWN, HE TELLS OBREGON, AND FOUGHT VALIANTLY IN SEMI-DARKNESS

Mexican Congress Meets Today to Name President; Threat to Oust All Members Who Fail to Attend

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, May 23.—The Congress Committee met Saturday afternoon and adopted a rule to the effect that all Congressmen who fail to report by tomorrow, the 24th, will be declared out, and substitutes will be called to fill their places.

The election of de la Huerta as President pro tem. is considered certain. Obregon Congressmen have a complete majority, and all favor Huerta.

MEXICO CITY, May 23 (Associated Press).—The Permanent Commission of the National Congress failed to obtain a quorum on two attempts to hold sessions yesterday for the purpose of choosing a Provisional President. The members of the Commission, which functions between the regular sessions of Congress, claim the right to name a Provisional President, under the Constitution, following the death of the President, Venustiano Carranza.

The majority of the members of Congress oppose this view, because of their acceptance of the Agua Prieta plan, which calls for extraordinary session of Congress, beginning May 24, for the purpose of choosing a Provisional President.

Failure of the Commission to obtain a quorum is taken generally as indicating that the choice of the extraordinary session of Congress will be accepted.

Carranza's Pro-Germanism Due To His Vanity and Narrow View

Bad Influence of Berlanga, His Minister of the Interior, a Model of Incompetence—Obstinacy That Brought the Death of His Brother, Jesus Carranza, Killed Like Him, in a Mutiny of His Own Men.

By V. BLASCO IBANEZ,
Author of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

Copyright, 1920, by V. Blasco Ibañez.

Another personage in Carranza's entourage was Aguirre Berlanga, Minister of the Interior. This country lawyer held that confidential post a long time without any one's knowing why. Some unexplainable caprice of the President's. * * *

The noteworthy thing in Berlanga's record was that he had been the most ardent pro-German in Mexico. All the men in the Government were pro-Germans, but he surpassed them all in this respect, and that is the only respect in which he ever surpassed anybody his whole life long.

The job of this humdrum and ignorant lawyer as Minister of the Interior was to supervise subsidies to the newspapers. It is well known that a part of the Mexican press is supported by the Government and changes policy as rapidly as Governments themselves change. During the years of the war, the Minister of the Interior devoted all his money and all his influence to sustaining the pro-German papers and persecuting the few dailies which sympathized with the cause of the Allies.

On my travels through Mexico I met many people who had sided with the cause of world freedom during the war. But they were writers and teachers, people who follow intellectual professions and hold quite aloof from politics. The politicians and Generals were all pro-German, with one exception—Don Pablo Gonsalez. That far-sighted gentleman predicted the victory of the Allies from the very first, while his less-intelligent comrades, who call themselves revolutionaries and Socialists, were wrapped in admiration for the glory and ability of William Hohenzollern.

Carranza's "Neutrality."

Carranza, who had never been abroad, who knew the world only second hand and was under the influence of a daring intriguer, the German Minister resident in Mexico, acted badly and deceitfully in every matter relating to the war. He tried to justify all he did on the plea of neutrality, a very special kind of neutrality, which was never anything more than a disguise for favoritism toward Germany. Many will remember his note to the neutral nations asking them to agree not to furnish food or goods of any kind to any of the belligerents. Since Germany had been swept off the sea and could get nothing from distant nations, Carranza's proposal could logically serve only to keep supplies from the Allies.

However, let us not dwell on that. There is no occasion today for insisting on Carranza's past pro-Germanism. What many people cannot explain is his retention, up to the very last, of Aguirre Berlanga as Minister of the Interior. This insignificant lawyer and kowtower to the Germans is a young chap who listens to himself when he talks; and he talks on every question under the sun, treating them all with the same competence. His importunateness, lack of tact, and assertive ignorance, as well as the unfriendliness that met him everywhere, became long ago proverbial in Mexico.

The Chamber of Deputies was constituted in great majority by friends of Carranza. Well, whenever the President wanted a law passed it was sufficient for Berlanga to support it, for everybody to vote against it. When the Carranza majority was most compact one speech by that gentleman was enough to split it into factions. Nevertheless, when people talked to Don Venustiano about his Minister of the Interior the "old man's" eyes would twinkle shrewdly, a smile would flit over his bewhiskered face, and he would come to Berlanga's support.

Why He Stood by Berlanga.

It was a case of personal vanity. Men of strong will, men who delight in power, like to surround themselves with nonentities to use as mirrors for the reflection of their own delightful greatness. "What a great man am I to have made a somebody out of that idiot!" Carranza doubtless felt like the Roman Emperor who made his horse a Consul.

I owe one courtesy to Don Venustiano, for which I should thank him here. He invited me to luncheon with the most prominent of his assistants and friends, and omitted his Minister of the Interior from the list of guests. It occurred to him, perhaps, that I should not care to sit at table with the representative of German interests in Mexico who supervised all the intrigues there against the European Allies and the United States of America. Or perhaps, to avoid seeing me laugh at a man in his Ministry, he preferred to take no chances on any ineptitudes Berlanga might get off in his pedantic tone during the meal.

I have been constantly wondering what can have happened to Aguirre Berlanga during these last days. Did he slip off to a safe place, or did some noble impulse prompt him to stand by his patron in time of misfortune? Then, again, I cannot help laughing when I think of a queer kind of popularity that Berlanga enjoyed. When a Mexican tried to estimate the stupidity of anybody, he would invariably say: "He is a bigger fool than the Minister of the Interior." Enough said!

All Honest in Politics—to Politicians.

Beyond any doubt, the people of Mexico are tired of so many revolutions. After each revolution, everybody thinks: "This is going to be the very last. We shall never have such trouble again." But since, within a few months, or a few years, another upset invariably appears, people have finally come to take revolution as a matter of course, much as an invalid gets accustomed to his pain. They even reach the point where they can joke over their troubles, meeting each new political overturn with good humor and getting all the fun out of it they can.

All the funny stories about Mexico and the republic's present leaders were invented by Mexicans themselves, and not Mexicans living abroad for long periods of time, but those who have stayed at home and actually seen men and events close at hand.

I noticed one curious thing in Mexico. When one Mexican politician is talking about another of the opposite camp, he never calls his opponent's honesty into question. In the heat of political passion, he may doubt his enemy's personal qualifications and his reliability. He will call him a sneak and a liar. He will question the fidelity of the man's wife and the virtue of the man's mother. "He is a thoroughgoing scoundrel," he concludes, "but I must say that in money matters he is absolutely

EL PASO, Texas, May 23.—A reward of 100,000 pesos (approximately $50,000) for the death or capture of Francisco Villa has been offered by the Government of the State of Chihuahua.

This announcement was made here today by Provisional Governor Tomas Cameros, who added that 2,000 troops had left Chihuahua City this morning under orders to hunt down the bandit chieftain.

MEXICO CITY, May 23.—General Obregon received a telegram last evening, signed by General Juan Barragan, Chief of Staff to Carranza, giving details of the death of the President.

The message reads:

"Villa Juarez, State of Puebla, May 22.

"To General Alvaro Obregon, Mexico City:

"Referring to your telegram of this date, I have to report that General Herrero joined us at the town of Patla, offering an escort and pledging his loyalty. Arriving at Tlaxcalantongo, Herrero arranged for the housing of the President, placing advanced guards and outposts who knew the surrounding country. At 4 o'clock in the morning, the forces of Herrero, taking advantage of the confidence placed in them, surrounded the hut where Carranza was sleeping and opened a hot fire.

"The party accompanying Carranza tried to defend him, but owing to the complete surprise they were unable to save him.

"General Murguia fought the enemy valiantly in the semi-darkness, but was forced to retire during the fight.

"Several followers of Carranza were surprised by the traitors when coming out of the hut.

"We did our utmost, but the traitors were well prepared, taking sixty of our men prisoners, among them Mario Mendez, Paulino Fontes, Gil Farias, General Heliodoro Perez, Colonel C. Gomez and General Villela.

"We have a clear conscience in our sorrow for the President, and the satisfaction of knowing that we did not abandon him for a minute.

"We are willing to entrust the vindication of our honor to court martial.

"The few men killed or wounded is due to the fact that Herrero had evidently arranged his plan well, knowing where the President was sleeping.

"The President had placed implicit confidence in Herrero, and no loyalty or valor could overcome the treason of these criminals.

(Signed) "JUAN BARRAGAN."

Order Arrest of Herrero and Troops.

The number of dead is now placed at eight, but the only victims officially named are Carranza and General Pascual Morales y Molina.

Late reports state that Luis Cabrera separated from Carranza two days before the killing, and it is thought that Cabrera escaped into the mountains, where he has friends among the Indians.

Obregon is furious over the tragedy in the mountains, as he had given strict orders that all military leaders should respect the lives of Carranza and all his associates. Nearly all the military and civilian members of the revolutionary movement lament the death of Carranza, as they recognize that this complicates the situation, and also because they had great respect personally for Carranza.

Orders have been issued for the arrest of Herrero and his forces that they shall be brought to the capital for trial by court martial.

Crowds fill the streets here discussing the death of Carranza. The general opinion was that when Carranza took to the mountains he would be allowed to make the coast where he might embark for Havana. Advices of his death came like a thunderbolt Friday night.

The bodies of Carranza and the others will be delivered to their families for private burial. No honors will be paid Carranza, as according to the "Plan of Agua Prieta," Carranza ceased to be President from the day the plan was signed.

Carranza Dismissed Cadet Guards.

One of Carranza's followers who returned to Mexico City from the mountains yesterday states that on May 18, Carranza, accompanied by Luis Cabrera, Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, Paulino Fontes, head of the railways, Bonillas and his staff, stopped at the town of Cuautempam, State of Puebla. They were accompanied by an escort of eighty soldiers and twenty officers, well armed and mounted.

During their stay in that town Carranza, in spite of protests from the chief members of the party, ordered a group of students of the Military College, who had accompanied him from Mexico City to return to the capital. This group of students was the only organized escort left, as the Presidential guards had dispersed.

During the same day members of the party decided, in view of the fact that large numbers of the forces under General Mariel, who remained loyal to Carranza, were located at Necaxa, to join them.

General Murguia also expected that General Porfirio Gonzales, who once fought under Murguia, would also join the group, not knowing that Gonzales had joined the revolution.

One of the principal causes of the tragedy was disobedience of orders by a General operating under General Navoa, who, hearing that the cadets were returning to Mexico City, sent this General to meet them on the road and give an exact account of conditions so that Carranza would know what had happened, Navoa thinking that Carranza, when he learned the true conditions, would surrender.

Navoa, when sending his subordinate General, stated that he wished to advise Carranza of his danger in trying to escape through Huasteca or Vera Cruz, as he would meet with forces of Pelaez.

Unfortunately for Carranza, Navoa's messenger did not carry out his instructions. Carranza was left in ignorance of the true situation.

General Rodolfo Herrero, who killed Carranza, was once a follower of Pelaez, who operated near Tampico. Herrero surrendered to Government forces last March and was then attached to the forces of General Mariel, making the trip with Mariel to Apisaco, where he joined in the fighting and afterward accompanied Carranza to the mountains.

Antonio Villarreal was to arrive today confer with Obregon.

The Mexican Minister to Rome, Eduardo Hay, recognises the new movement. General Cantu of Lower California, has also joined.

Wanted to Kill Bonillas Also.

President Carranza and General Morales y Molina were the only persons killed at Tlaxcalantongo, according to newspaper dispatches received here today.

General Rodolfo Herrera is quoted by the dispatches as saying that he only desired to kill Carranza and Ignacio Bonillas.

General Morales y Molina conducted the military trial of General Roberto F. Cejudo, former Commander in Chief of the forces of Emiliano Zapata in Hidalgo, who was accused of dealing with the rebels. He is said to have been mistaken for Bonillas.

The dispatches add that the three Generals and two members of the Carranza Cabinet who at first were reported to have been killed have disappeared and probably are in hiding.

The flags on the American Embassy and all the other embassies and legations were placed at half-mast when the news of the assassination of President Carranza arrived.

Advices reaching here today from Necaxa say that the body of former President Carranza lay in state Saturday night in the village of Villa Juarez, the nearest place to the scene of his death. It arrived in Necaxa Sunday morning in charge of General Mariel, and from there it will be brought in charge of General Jesus Novoa to Mexico City.

The body of the former President is inclosed in a plain wooden box, covered with a raincoat. When the coffin reached Necaxa a heavy rain was falling. It was accompanied by a group of generals and a number of members of Carranza's Cabinet. A little band of mountain Indians carrying flowers followed the rude casket.

Among the escort were Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, Minister of the Interior; Ignacio Bonillas, former Ambassador to the United States; General Murguia and Juan Barragen, chief of staff of Carranza.

Luis Cabrera, Secretary of the Treasury, was not among the party. It was reported that he had stopped at Villa Juarez.

Preparations are being made to pay military honors to the body of President Carranza when it arrives at the railway station and during the procession from the station to his late residence.

Americans View Outlook Cautiously.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Prospective political developments in Mexico this week began today to overshadow the killing of Carranza.

The Mexican Congress meets in special session tomorrow to choose a President ad interim. Adolfo de la Huerta, chosen by the Sonora group a month ago as the provisional President, and General Pablo Gonzalez, appear as the outstanding candidates, but the chief concern of the American officials and business men having Mexican interests is not so much in the identity of the successful candidate as in the strength of the co-operative spirit to be manifested.

While doubt of the ability of any one chosen to restore the country to a state sufficiently tranquil to warrant the holding of the regular elections was expressed by both business men and officials, it was agreed that the removal of Carranza ought to make his task far more simple.

Although the killing of the fugitive President must be satisfactorily explained, it was said, before foreign Governments will give serious thought to any except a de facto recognition of the new Government, the Government has been materially strengthened from a military and political point of view.

Carranza alive would have remained a potential centre of serious opposition, but already the little force that followed him in his flight from the capital is reported to be breaking up, and the minor leaders, such as Domingo Arrieta, in the State of Durango, it was suggested, must find themselves without plausible reason for continuing resistance. Officials who have been studying the Mexican situation suggested, however, that there remains the possibility, although improbable, that Carranza might have his avenger, as did Madero when Carranza arose in the north, and that in the martyr's rôle the deposed President yet might prove a posthumous force.

AMERICANS NEAR DEATH SCENE

Power Plant Employes to be Questioned on Carranza's End.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTEREY, Mexico, May 23.—According to advices received here today from Mexico City, several Americans and British who were at Necaxa, State of Puebla, at the time Carranza was killed and are personally familiar with the circumstances of his death, will be called upon by their respective Governments to make statements as to their knowledge of the facts.

One of the largest hydro-electric plants upon the continent is at Necaxa, where the famous waterfall of that name is situated. It is from this plant, which is owned by Canadian and British interests, that the electric power for the capital and a number of other towns is obtained. Near the dam and power plant are located the homes of a little colony of American and British employes.

Carranza and several men of prominence who were with him were killed within a stone's throw of the homes of these foreigners.

It is stated Carranza was turning back toward the City of Mexico at the time he was assassinated. He and his little party had planned to follow the trail alongside the power transmission line from Necaxa to the capital, where they were to give themselves up to Obregon.

REBELS DEPLORE CARRANZA MURDER

Message to de la Pena, Revolutionary Agent Here, Denounces Herrero.

A telegram confirming the death of President Carranza and repudiating his slayer, Herrero, as a man who does not stand for the same progressive principles as the leaders of the present revolutionary movement in Mexico, was received in this city yesterday by Manuel de la Pena, acting commercial agent of the Consulate that has been established here on behalf of the de facto Government, from Luis Montes de Oca, Mexican Consul at El Paso. The message follows:

"El Paso, May 22-23, 1920.

"305 West Eighty-ninth Street,

"New York City.

"Telegram from Obregon confirms to us the fact that Carranza was assassinated by Rudolfo Herrero yesterday. The assassination has cast us into consternation, deeply deploring that it has occurred. We hope that the guilty will be punished with all the rigor of the law. An act so odious has the reprobation of all the revolutionary elements. We request you to make public the fact that according to the data which have reached us so far Herrero is not identified with the revolutionary elements, but with the enemies of progressive ideas, he having recently surrendered to the Government of Carranza himself. We hope to communicate to you further data.

[Signed] "LUIS MONTES DE OCA,

"Consul of the Government."

On behalf of the Consulate Señor de la Pena denounced the slaying of Carranza as a disgrace to the country, and said that the friends of the revolutionist element not only in this country but in Mexico and elsewhere hoped to see the perpetrators of the crime brought to justice and punished.

Señor Pena thinks that the selection of de la Huerta as President pro tem of the Republic is practically assured, and he believes that under the new régime about to be inaugurated friendly relations between Mexico and the United States will be established once more.

Señor de la Pena has opened offices in the Park Row Building, Room 716. Arturo Alcocer has been named acting Vice Consul and Dr. Alfredo Caturegli acting financial agent. Mexican exporters have been warned not to pay any export fees to the former Consulate on penalty of being required to pay the same fees to the new Consulate.

The consular representatives of the revolutionists have demanded that Consul General Bernardino Mena Brito, appointed by Carranza, hand over his Consulate, and he has refused, so the newly-created Consulate is waiting until such time as the American Government may recognize the present administration of Mexico to take further action.

PROMISES TO SETTLE OIL PROBLEM JUSTLY

All Foreign Rights in Mexico Will Be Safeguarded, Pesqueira Asserts.

HE MAY GO TO WASHINGTON

Agent at El Paso Mentioned for Ambassador—Tells of Huerta's Singing Qualities.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, May 23.—Roberto V. Pesqueira, following a long telegraphic conversation with General Obregon in Mexico City, said this afternoon that the assassination of President Carranza was absolutely condemned by General Obregon, and that the investigation of the murder will prove that no follower of Obregon was in any way implicated.

Señor Pesqueira is one of Obregon's closest friends, and it is generally understood in the event of Obregon's election to the Presidency that Pesqueira probably will be appointed to the Mexican Ambassadorship at Washington.

"If Mexico is to succeed and take her rightful place in the family of nations," said Señor Pesqueira today, "we must enjoy the confidence and the support of the United States, Governor De La Huerta, who will probably be the Provisional President, General Obregon and General Calles realize the necessity of winning and holding the sincere friendship of the United States, and they are going to leave no stone unturned in their efforts to bring this about.

"The oil question, that has caused so much trouble, is going to be settled, and it will be a just settlement. Not one dollar of foreign or other property will be confiscated. Please make this as plain as you can.

"And what I say with reference to oil properties applies to all other honestly acquired and owned properties in Mexico, whether the property belongs to foreigners or to Mexicans."

Will Settle Villa.

Asked about Villa, Senor Pesquetra described the bandit as "an international menace."

"We must settle Villa," he added, "and we are going to do it. Villa is nothing but an ordinary ruffian, with a considerable amount of brains. He is vicious and he is immoral, and just as long as he is at large I admit he will remain a problem.

"I am convinced," Pesquira continued, "that this revolution is going to prove the greatest blessing that ever came to Mexico. We have a big job, but we are going to tackle it fairly and squarely, and I believe we will solve the problem. Governor de la Huerta is one of the ablest men in Mexico. He was formerly a banker in Guaymas and is one of the best informed men in our country on matters pertaining to the United States.

"I suppose I should not tell you this, but the fact is that de la Huerta is also a great singer, perhaps the finest tenor in all Mexico. His voice was trained by one of the most noted vocal teachers in New York, and when de la Huerta decided not to make singing his life work his teacher almost had a fit. He tried every way to make him change his mind, so de la Huerta came back to his home in Sonora, where for many years a practical banker and business man before he entered politics and was elected Governor of his State. He is a thoroughly honest man, without an atom of insincerity. He is an idealist in many respects, almost a dreamer."

Señor Pesqueira is trying tonight to verify a report that Villa has demanded payment of $500,000 tribute from the great mining and manufacturing corporations doing business in the Parral section of Chihuahua.

Carlos F. Dias, the Mexican Collector of Customs in Juarez, said this afternoon that he heard several days ago that Villa contemplated levying this heavy tribute on the companies doing business in that part of Chihuahua.

BEGS TO DIE IN CHAIR ON 26TH BIRTHDAY

Sing Sing Prisoner Asks That the Date be Advanced One Day, to May 26.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., May 23.—Walter Levandowski, a prisoner in Sing Sing deathhouse, has asked Major Lewis E. Lawes, the Warden, it was announced today, to let him go to the chair on Wednesday.

"Put my execution a day ahead," he wrote, "and let me die on May 26, which is my twenty-sixth birthday." Execution of the death sentence had been set for May 27.

The condemned man's request will not be granted. For one reason, two other prisoners, and possibly six, are to go to the chair May 27, and the prison officials prefer to have executions of the death sentence together, rather than one day apart.

Levandowski is one of three prisoners in the deathhouse, who are to die Thursday, who have never had a visitor. He and Leo Laurie, another of the three, have tuberculosis. They were accused of killing John Gunther, Keeper in Clinton prison. Levandowski swears Jankowski is innocent and takes the sole blame. The third prisoner, James Byrd, shot and killed Policeman Lawrence in Kingston.

A prison official, explaining nothing was being done to save the two tuberculous slayers, said:

"Both committed a murder before being sent to prison for life. Then, while in Clinton, they killed a guard. There are 400 other prisoners in the hospital there and if these two fellows do not pay the death penalty other sick prisoners would be tempted to slay attendants to make a getaway as these fellows did."

SOLDIER PRISONERS ESCAPE

Four Men, One Accused of Murder, Overawe Their Guards.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23.—Privates Clowden, Palding, Rehorst and Connell escaped from the military prison at Frankford Arsenal tonight.

The last named was being held for transfer to the Texas border, where he was wanted on a charge of murdering two fellow soldiers. The escaping prisoners awed their guards with drawn revolvers. The latter are reported to have been without ball ammunition.

The four men chose 6 P. M., the guard-mount hour, for their attempt. In some unexplained manner they came into possession of steel saws, with which they opened their cells. Before they got clear of the grounds they were seen, and an alarm was sounded. Just what transpired afterward is being kept secret. Colonel Beatty, the commandant, was not at the arsenal tonight, and the Sergeant in charge declined to disclose the details.

Private Connell, held on a murder charge, was arrested in New Jersey ten days ago, and was awaiting the arrival of guards from Texas to return him there to answer for the slaying of two guards. Connell is alleged to have killed them in escaping from a guard house, where he was confined on an absence without leave charge. The crime was committed two months ago.

GOMPERS DEMANDS CONGRESS OVERTURN

Legislation such as the Esch-Cummins railroad law and the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations, he adds, tends to aggravate a "situation already delicate to the point of danger," while the Supreme Court, in deciding stock dividends not subject to income tax, "adds to the burden that is upon the shoulders of the people."

"While the legislative, administrative and judicial divisions of the Government have done nothing of any moment to check the rising cost of living, to relieve the people from the burden of exploitation and robbery," Mr. Gompers charges, "they have not even left the workers free to use their economic power to secure for themselves such relief as might be possible through the use of that power. The workers have one final argument for use when all measures fail to secure justice—the right to strike. The working people have been disciplined to use this final argument. But Congress, while neglecting to perform its own plain duty, while allowing profiteering exploitation and commercial piracy to continue, has sought to place a curb upon the economic activities of the workers by restrictive and coercive measures, the object of which is to make the strike unlawful. Failing to protect the people, Congress would deprive the people of the means of protecting themselves."

Mr. Gompers accuses employers of "fighting a battle of stealth" to weaken, if not destroy, the trade union movement. "The coal miners, after two years of vain appeal," he says, "finally ceased work. With what result?

"After months of negotiations and conflict, an increase of approximately 40 cents per ton has been gained for the miners, whereupon notice is served that the consumer must pay an advance of $2 per ton.

"Through the whole period since Nov. 11, 1918, the American political and industrial bourbons have laid a course of plunder, restriction and coercion. There has been an abandon and ruthlessness worthy of high seas piracy. While profiteers have reaped untold gains, makers of laws have gone about the business of writing into the statutes measures for the suppression of trade union activity.

"Out of this repression and out of this ruthless exploitation and profiteering there has been bred among the working people a deep and stern resentment. No excuse will be accepted from the Congress of the United States for its failure to find proposals of a constructive nature to meet a situation that has long been of alarming proportions.

Mr. Gompers demands five measures of relief:

"First—Immediate adjustments of wages, both in private employment and in Government service, to at least meet the living costs that have outstripped incomes by reason of this era of frenzied profiteering and gambling.

"This must be done without delay. Mr. Gompers adds, for although the cost of living has increased 96 per cent., the average union wage, which is always the highest wage, has advanced but 35 per cent. in the same period.

"Second—Immediate effective action must be taken to prevent continued increases in the cost of living. This requires action of a fundamental nature. It requires action by the Congress of the United States. Advice to 'eat the cheaper cuts of meat' is not a step way to a more intelligent comprehension of facts and a willingness to deal with them in an American fashion, constructively.

"Third—There must be an end to the enactment of the kind of legislation typified by the Esch-Cummins Railroad law and the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations law. There must be an end of legislative repression, restriction and coercion. Not only must there be an end to the enactment of legislation of this character, but there must be a repeal of legislation already enacted. Freedom in America must not be destroyed by legislative incompetence, nor must it be destroyed by judicial decree through injunctions. The Constitution of the United States must have its full meaning restored.

"Fourth—The Congress of the United States will do well to give immediate and effective consideration to the proposal of the American labor movement that control of credit capital be taken from private financiers and placed in the hands of a public trust, to be administered upon principles voluntary and co-operative in character. This will strike a vital blow toward eliminating the abuses of profiteering and exploitation.

"Fifth—Congress should provide immediately for full publicity for income tax returns.

"The working people of the United States are speaking today in mandatory terms. They have reached a point where they will no longer endure or suffer injustice by legislative enactment and profiteering by private pirates. The service they have given entitles them to the right to be heard. They will be heard. Their demand to be heard is a demand which comprehends the welfare of the country.

"The labor movement in its reconstruction program adopted in June, 1919, and in its declaration of Dec. 10, 1919, has laid before the country constructive proposals for relief with which Congress is familiar.

"The Congress of the United States cannot say that it has not had laid before it suggestions for effective action by plans for real relief. It can say only that it would not listen and would not act. Against the Congress of the United States there rests an indictment which an alert electorate will not overlook."

CARRANZA IN VANITY FAVORED GERMANY

By V. BLASCO IBANEZ.

straight, and, in spite of what people say, he is really a poor man." And the man he is talking about says the same things about him.

There seems to be a tacit understanding among them all to tell the truth about each other on every point except money. They are all anxious to make the point that there is not a single thief in Mexican political life. On the other hand, the lower class, the common people, which has been putting up with revolutions for years and years, and is always seeing its country go down hill instead of improving, smiles a smile of bitter skepticism when the words "unselfishness" and "patriotism" are mentioned.

Only the Masses Resentful.

Two hundred thousand Mexicans get their living by making civil war and taking part in revolutions, fattening on the ruins of Governments that fall and on the inaugural feasts of Governments that come into being. Such people speak in all seriousness when they say that "Liberty must be preserved" or allege that "the Constitution is being violated." Poor Constitution is the most frequently ravished virgin in Mexico! But the rest of the population, which includes millions of people, either says nothing, with that significant silence of the Indian, or else it says: "Liberty! Constitution! Mere pretexts for a new grab! Just ways of making a living! All alike! All thieves!" And in this sweeping generalization it includes everybody in politics, pardoning no one till he has come to some tragic death.

The Mexican people, which has a certain literary instinct and much imagination, invents all kinds of ingenious and interesting stories to wreak vengeance on the powers that be. Its biting satire respects not even death. The miserable populace has suffered so much and has so many accounts to settle!

Tragedy of Carranza's Brother.

The story of what happened to Don Jesus Carranza, after his death, is a cruel but interesting and witty tale. This brother of Don Venustiano came to a tragic end. While Carranza was shut up in Vera Cruz by the troops of Zapata and Villa, he sent his brother on an expedition to the south of Mexico. The very escort which Don Venustiano had given Don Jesus for protection rose in mutiny and made him prisoner. Such jokes are nothing unusual in Mexican revolutions. No one knows with certainty on whom he can count. You never know whether a friend on embracing you will not stab you in the back.

Don Jesus, with all his staff, fell into the hand of one of the petty chieftains hostile to Don Venustiano, and a dramatic episode occurred. The guerrilla telegraphed to the President, making on him a number of demands, of a political nature, which were equivalent to an abdication. He accompanied his demands with a threat to execute Carranza's brother if they were not granted. The proud and stubborn Don Venustiano made no answer; whereupon the guerrilla began to shoot, one by one, the members of the staff of Don Jesus. After a second failure of the President to answer, a son of Don Jesus, and nephew to Don Venustiano, was shot. A final telegram likewise failed to move the iron will of Carranza, and his brother was also executed, some hours before the Carranzista troops, sent to free him, arrived.

This blood-curdling episode aroused sympathy only among the partisans of the President. A few small villages took the name of Don Jesus, but they have probably lost it again by this time. But while the friends of the Government were mourning the martyr, the people, that great anonymous novelist, was hammering out his story.

Tale the People Invented About It.

It must be recalled that, at the beginning of the revolution, while Don Venustiano was making war on the partisans of Huerta in a number of States, Don Jesus had been in command of a division on the frontier of the United States. I was, of course, not a witness of his campaign, but people in Mexico say that this Carranza was a real Napoleon when it came to driving owners away from ranches and carrying off cattle.

No animal wearing horns would ever escape him. They all succumbed to his irresistible spirit in attack. In a very few of such campaigns he swept the territories under his control absolutely clean of cattle. Then he would drive his prisoners, which numbered thousands and thousands, up across the American frontier, and generously hand them over to buyers in the United States, in exchange for some little slips of paper issued by the banks.

At this point, the Mexican story begins. When Don Jesus died he went straight to hell. Where else could he go? * * * At that time there was war, not only in Mexico but in the greater part of Europe as well. You may readily imagine the great number of guests who were being admitted to hell. What a lot of incendiaries of cities! And murderers! And thieves!

Satan, who knows everything, got wind of Don Jesus's arrival and was anxious to make his acquaintance. As the devil has horns and a cloven foot, he was interested in getting a close-up view of this invincible persecutor of horned and hoofed animals.

"Where is Jesus Carranza?" he shouted from his throne.

Absolute silence. The man in question did not want to appear, he was so alarmed by the interest aroused. As the last consignment received in hell consisted of so many lost souls, he tried to keep out of sight, hiding behind his comrades.

Several small imps, obeying orders from their master, went through the groups paging the missing person in the same manner that bellboys go through the corridors of a hotel when they have to deliver a message.

"Mister Carranza! Mister Carranza!"

Another long silence. And Satan, annoyed at this lack of respect, called one of his cleverest little devils.

"Turn into a cow," he ordered him.

Immediately there was a moo, and a fine cow, fiery in color, began to run loose through the throngs.

But there was one there who could run faster than the cow. A man leaped over the crowd with the speed of a shell and grabbed the animal's tail, panting with greed. Then he grabbed the animal by the horns. "You cannot escape me, you cannot escape me! You are mine!"

That's how Satan discovered Don Jesus Carranza.

GIVES PALMER 479 1-2 VOTES IN CONVENTION

Carlin, His Campaign Manager, Says His Nomination Is Assured.

EDWARDS MEN CONFIDENT

Issue a Statement Saying That Governor's Strength Will Be Shown on Second Ballot.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Attorney General Palmer will have 479½ votes for the Democratic nomination for President in the San Francisco convention, according to a statement issued tonight by C. C. Carlin, his campaign manager, who said that this prediction was based on a careful canvass of the situation. This large vote, he said, would be given Mr. Palmer after the strength of the favorite sons had been spent.

Under the two-thirds rule in the Democratic Convention 728 votes are necessary to a choice, so that if the calculations of Mr. Palmer's manager are verified he lacks 250 votes to make him the nominee.

"According to the official returns the Democratic primary in Pennsylvania has resulted in an overwhelming victory for Attorney General Mitchell Palmer," says the statement, "and this victory, with the results in other States throughout the country, indicates that on the basis of delegates now elected the Attorney General will have the support of nearly 500 delegates in the San Francisco convention. The Pennsylvania result was decisive.

"All of the enemies of Mr. Palmer and of the Administration combined in Pennsylvania in an effort to defeat the candidacy of the Attorney General. They recognized that if they could by any means compass the downfall of Mr. Palmer in his home State his candidacy in the nation would be given a severe setback, and they exerted every effort to that end. But the Pennsylvania Democracy by an overwhelming majority refused to support any one but Mr. Palmer.

"An effort to swing the anti-Palmer vote in the State to former Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo was a total failure. In Mr. Palmer's home county the vote was eight to one for Palmer and against McAdoo. The official returns now being tabulated show that at least seventy-four of the seventy-six Pennsylvania delegates will be for Palmer first, last and all the time. In the local contests the Palmer organization candidates were uniformly successful.

"With the Pennsylvania returns in it is now possible to compute with some accuracy the standing of the Attorney General as to delegates in the convention, on the basis of primary elections and conventions already held. According to my calculations Mr. Palmer will have the votes of 479½ candidates on the basis of selections made to date. I give 275 delegates to other candidates, and would classify 337½ votes as doubtful.

"This calculation eliminates from consideration the so-called 'favorite son' candidates who will be given a 'complimentary' vote by their own States, but whose delegates will leave them after the first or second ballot. In many instances delegates listed as doubtful are friendly to Palmer and will ultimately be found supporting the Attorney General.

"Friends of all the other candidates assure me that Mr. Palmer is the second choice of all of their supporters. I feel, therefore, that Mr. Palmer's nomination is assured."

Washington managers for Governor Edwards's campaign declared in a statement tonight that the Governor's strength in the San Francisco convention would be shown on the second ballot. Promise of support from every State has been given Governor Edwards after the favorite sons have received their complimentary votes.

"Support for Governor Edwards is not confined to any one section of the country," says the statement. "He is perhaps strongest in New England, but throughout the South and from the West pledges are coming to Edwards's headquarters from the men who are to name the next standard-bearer of the Democratic party. This support is coming not only from the proponents of individual liberty and State rights, but in stronger measure from the men who feel a responsibility in naming a candidate who can carry the election and secure an administration of unbroken pledges."

GEORGIA VOTE FOR PALMER.

Democratic State Committee Certifies Full Delegation for Him.

ATLANTA, May 23.—Hiram L. Gardner, Secretary of the Georgia Democratic Executive Committee, forwarded today to the National Executive Committee headquarters in Washington the official certificate of the State Committee issuing the credentials of the State Committee to the full Palmer delegation from Georgia to the San Francisco Convention. The record was indorsed by sixty-six of the sixty-seven members of the committee.

The certificate contains the regulations for the Presidential primary as issued on Feb. 10, in which it was provided that all of the State delegates to the National Convention "shall be chosen from among the friends and supporters of that candidate for President who receives the highest county unit vote." It presents the statement that Palmer received 148 votes, Watson 132 and Smith 104.

In announcing that the certificate had been forwarded to the Secretary of the National Committee, Secretary Gardiner issued the following statement:

"Press reports have misrepresented the situation in Georgia. No 'bolting' convention was held, nor was there any necessity for such. The rules of the primary, adopted long before either Smith, Watson or Palmer were candidates, provided that the candidate who should receive the highest number of county unit votes should have the whole delegation. Not until after Palmer had won under the rules of the primary was there even the suggestion of dissatisfaction about the regulation.

"When the State Convention met the Smith and Watson forces, combined, were strong enough to disregard the rules under which the primary had been run, which they did on the theory that the convention was supreme and had the right to do as it wished.

"It was the Palmer delegation to San Francisco that met and organized immediately after the convention adjourned, and this the press erroneously reported to be a meeting of the Palmer delegates to the State Convention."

Delegates elected by the State Convention and representing the Smith-Watson factions will meet here Wednesday to organize and make plans for carrying the contest before the San Francisco convention.

TEXANS TO MEET TOMORROW

Republicans Will Discuss State Candidates for First Time.

DALLAS, Texas, May 23.—Delegates from Texas to the Democratic and Republican National Conventions will be selected next Tuesday by State conventions, the Democrats meeting in Dallas and the Republicans in San Antonio.

A precedent in Texas Republican politics is expected to be established on Tuesday when, leaders say, Republican candidates for State offices will be discussed for the first time. Nominations of candidates for Governor and Congress will not be made until another convention is held, probably in August. The convention this week, however, will mark the beginning of the first Republican campaign in Texas, leaders declare.

Senator Sterling Predicts Substantial Increases to All Classes.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 23.—Senator Sterling of South Dakota, Chairman of the Joint Congressional Salary Reclassification Committee, told an audience of postal employes and their friends and business men here tonight that a "substantial increase in wages would be made all the way down the line."

It was the first public promise of relief from a member of the Congressional Committe which has been studying the wage problem. Senator Sterling did not go into details.

beefsteak, "the best in the house," be sent up immediately.

Albert Flather, the manager, hurried upstairs to see what sort of a guest wanted fifteen pounds of raw beefsteak for breakfast. He rang the bell and the door of Mr. Zann's room was thrown open. On his haunches in the middle of the floor, his mouth open, disclosing a set of long sharp teeth, was a lion. Flather jumped back out of the room and slammed the door.

"Come in," said Mr. Zann. "Jim won't hurt you."

Flather cautiously opened the door and peered in.

"Come in. He's been my pet for the last four years. I've had him since he was three days old," said Mr. Zann.

"You will have to get him out of here," the manager declared, ready to bolt for the stairs.

Zann protested, saying Jim was only his pet. The manager explained that lions did not come under the category of pets in his hotel.

"Well," Zann said, "if you put Jim out you'll have to put me out. Meanwhile Jim is hungry. Will you send up the beefsteak?"

A trembling waiter brought the beefsteak and Jim was fed.

In the meantime the manager hurried to the West Sixty-eighth Street station, where he told Sergeant John Foster about the lion. Patrolman John Burns was sent to investigate. He found the lobby filled with anxious guests.

The patrolman told Zann he would have to get Jim out of the hotel and must have a permit from the Board of Health to keep him in this city. Zann finally ordered Jim into the big case, which was locked.

Zann said he would remove the lion from the hotel today but didn't say where he expected to install him. He said he was on his way to Cape Town, Africa, and that the Belleclaire was the first hotel that had objected to the presence of Jim.

REPUBLICANS EXPECT A SHORT CONVENTION

Leaders Believe That Five Days Will Suffice for Work at Chicago.

DISCUSSING TREATY PLANK

Backers of Wood and Lowden Still Insist That Nomination Lies Between Them.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—There were few changes today in the general political lineup here. The leaders who have been trying to figure on the length of the convention have about come to the conclusion that it will be possible to clean up work in five days and not make it necessary to carry over the convention into a second week. The attitude which Senator Johnson and Senator Borah take when they hold their meeting on the eve of the convention may have some effect on this, however.

At present, there is apparently no intention on the part of the leaders who seem to be in power to put a plank calling for the destruction of the treaty of peace into the Republican platform. It is declared, however, that some sort of a compromise must be reached with Johnson and Borah in that event, if the danger of serious trouble in the party ranks is to be avoided.

A report was in circulation today that the split between Mayor Thompson of Chicago and Governor Lowden had reached the point where Mayor Thompson would deliver seventeen Illinois district delegates to some other candidate, possibly Senator Knox of Pennsylvania. There has been no declaration as to this, but it is considered as a possibility. It is regarded by observers as more likely to occur if the Lowden forces, who have the balance of power, determine to overthrow Mayor Thompson as National Committeeman and elect Senator Sherman in his stead. The selection of the new committeeman probably will be made before the balloting on the nomination for President begins.

The Thompson forces are said to be planning to have a big time during the convention and there are rumors that a great parade will be arranged. A combination of the Johnson noise-makers and the Thompson crowds may serve to enliven the convention and to make up for some of the hilarity which is certain to be lacking otherwise because of the scarcity of alcoholic beverages.

The Lowden and Wood backers still maintain their claim that the real fight will be between those candidates, and both hold that they have "the edge" on the situation. The Wood forces emphasize their contention that the General will be nominated not later than the fifth ballot. The Lowden managers say they will pass General Wood by the fifth ballot.

M'COMBS FOR COX; RAPS LEAGUE ISSUE

Says Governor Could Carry Ohio and That Domestic Problems Should Rule Campaign.

THINKS McADOO A HANDICAP

His Nomination Would Impose the "Crown Prince" Idea Upon Party, Asserts Former Chairman.

Nomination of Governor James M. Cox of Ohio as the candidate whom the Democratic Party would have the best chance to elect was advocated by William F. McCombs, former Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, in a statement issued last evening at the Manhattan Club. Mr. McCombs declared Governor Cox could carry Ohio and said the electoral vote of that State was vital for Democratic success.

Domestic problems, such as the deflation of currency, taxation and the railroad situation, and not the League of Nations, should be the main issues of the campaign, said Mr. McCombs, adding that Governor Cox had demonstrated his qualification to handle them.

Mr. McCombs, who was largely responsible for the nomination of President Wilson in 1912, said the nomination of William G. McAdoo, son-in-law of the President, would impose upon the Democratic Party the handicap of the "Crown Prince" idea. "Or to put it more elastically," he continued, "it would carry into the campaign a suggestion of a dictated dynastic succession, and our opponents might well say something along the line of the creation of an American empire."

Mr. McCombs declared that Mr. McAdoo would also have to carry all the handicaps of the present National Administration, and said this would apply as well to Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, whose candidacy, he said, had failed to produce any considerable reaction.

He referred to Mr. McAdoo's principal supporter as "a leading Wall Street speculator," and said that Governor Cox had vetoed the suggestion that he might take the nomination for Vice President.

Mr. McCombs dwelt upon the importance of the electoral vote of Ohio, and recalled that Mr. Cox had carried the State by 18,000 the last time he ran for Governor, while the rest of the Democratic ticket was defeated.

"A popular misconception exists as to the State which turned the tide for Mr. Wilson in 1916," he said. "If the Republicans had nominated a strong Ohio candidate, a Republican would now be in the White House. It would have smoothed over the factional differences and State pride would have carried Ohio for a nominee from Ohio."

"The fact that Governor Cox had had both legislative and executive experience increased his qualifications for the Presidency, Mr. McCombs said. "A great many difficulties in the past between executive and legislative branches of the Government at Washington," he added, "have been due to the fact that the Executive, coming fresh from private life or executive position, has not understood to a proper degree the functioning of the legislative branch and in some cases has neglected to familiarize himself with it. This has many times spelled great loss to the public service and an economic loss to the nation."

MOTT READY TO FIGHT SWEET

Lively Contest Is Expected If Speaker Runs for Congress.

A lively contest for the Republican nomination for Representative in the Thirty-second District is expected if Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet persists in his reported intention of seeking this nomination instead of returning to the Assembly or going after the nomination for Governor. Friends of Luther W. Mott, the present Representative, said yesterday that Mr. Mott had no intention of retiring.

Both Speaker Sweet and Mr. Mott are from Oswego County, the other counties in the district being Jefferson, Lewis and Madison. The Oswego County Republican Convention recently indorsed Speaker Sweet for Governor and Mr. Mott for renomination.

TO CONSULT SENATOR OWEN

Oklahoma Delegates Meet Today to Plan to Aid Him.

OKLAHOMA, May 23.—Members of the Oklahoma delegation to the National Democratic Convention at San Francisco will confer with Senator Robert L. Owen at the State House here tomorrow. The purpose of the meeting, delegates said tonight, is to learn the extent of the acquaintance of the members in States other than Oklahoma, in order that Senator Owen's campaign managers may divide the work at San Francisco.

Members of the convention committees will not be selected at tomorrow's conference, according to Thomas Wade, National Committeeman, who said the Oklahoma delegation passed a resolution in March putting off the filling of the important committee places until the delegates assemble in San Francisco.

COMMEND DAVIS AS FIT CANDIDATE

Davis finds an echo in the minds of many Democratic politicians in Washington. It will take two-thirds of the delegates to nominate the candidate for President, and the operation of this rule may work to the advantage of those who desire to nominate Mr. Davis or some other man holding similar convictions on vital issues.

Democratic Senators of whom inquiry was made said without exception that they had read THE TIMES's article on Mr. Davis. Many of them declined to comment on it, but said they were much interested in the suggestion of Mr. Davis's name.

Senator King of Utah highly commended the action of THE TIMES in bringing forward Mr. Davis.

"For months," said Senator King, "I have been suggesting Mr. Davis as a possible and probable candidate and as a possible, if not probable, nominee. His nomination by the Democratic party would be an admirable thing. THE TIMES has rendered a distinct public service in bringing him forward in this way, so that the public may judge of his merits."

Senator Thomas of Colorado said: "Every word THE TIMES said about Mr. Davis was deserved, but I am for Marshall."

Senator Sheppard of Texas said he had read the editorial with deep interest, but would not comment upon it, as he was not discussing the qualifications of any candidate at this time.

Senator Walsh of Montana likewise expressed interest, but declined to express a view of Mr. Davis as the Democratic nominee.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska said: "Ambassador Davis is very highly thought of by public men who have followed his course in Congress, as Solicitor General and Ambassador to Great Britain. His weakness is that he is not much known to the people. His record speaks for itself. He ranks high as a lawyer and is known to be clean and able. He has made a very fine impression in England, but is not known to the rank and file of the American people."

Representative Henry D. Flood, Chairman of the Democratic National Congressional Committee, expressed himself thus:

"I think Ambassador Davis is a very able man, and I approve of everything said about his abilities by THE NEW YORK TIMES in its editorial today. I have followed his career as a member of Congress, where I served with him. As Solicitor General and as Ambassador he has made an enviable record. If nominated and elected he would make a splendid President. I say these things about him, not because I intend to support him, for I am for another."

Representative James F. Byrnes of South Carolina said:

"Davis is one of the strongest men in the party. He has demonstrated his ability in a legislative and administrative capacity."

Representative Frank Doremus of Michigan said:

"I served in the House with Mr. Davis. I regard him as a very strong, able, sane man, with broad experience. I, however, am for Mr. Palmer for the nomination, and expect to see him win at San Francisco."

Representative Henry T. Rainey of Illinois said:

"I regard Ambassador DAVIS as a very strong, able man, of broad experience in affairs. He may develop into a strong candidate."

MASSES OF TROOPS ENCIRCLE DUBLIN

cles. The Chief Secretary for Ireland, replying to a direct question, said he knew nothing about it.

IRELAND IS TERRORIZED.

Macready Asserts People Are Afraid to Give Evidence or Convict.

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Company.

DUBLIN, May 23.—"We are here to do all in our power to support the police in carrying out their duties and in restoring normal administration of the civil law. It is a police job, not a military job," said Sir Nevil Macready, Commander-in-Chief of the British troops in Ireland. Sir Nevil declared emphatically that there was not a state of war in Ireland.

"It would be easier if there was a state of war," he added. "Our task is the infinitely harder one of restoring public backing for the ordinary law, which has largely disappeared in Ireland."

Asked how he would describe the present condtion of affairs in Ireland, he said:

"I would describe it as a country where the normal courage of law-abiding people has failed to support the law owing to terrorism by a small party. The policeman's power rests not on the force he himself yields, but on the public support behind him. The poor Irish policeman is without that support, and we are here to help him until it is restored.

"Every day or two a policeman is shot in the streets of Dublin in the presence of many witnesses and no one interferes. That could not happen in London or Chicago, where the whole community would rally to the aid of the police. The people here are cowed, witnesses dare not give evidence, and the juries dare not convict. If they do they are threatened with death. It is my job to protect the people to the fullest extent of my power and to show the country the terrorists cannot rule."

Discussing the Irish Volunteers, Sir Nevil said it was hard to appraise their value or to state their numbers with any approach to accuracy. He does not rate their fighting value highly, however, for he declares that in every case of police resistance the attackers run, and always bolt when the soldiers appear. However, Sir Nevil suggested, this may be their tactics, and that the volunteers, like good soldiers, obey orders.

"At present the difficulty in dealing with the situation," he said, "is that our opponents are just like the Boers in the South African war. The whole country is in sympathy with these and against the Government."

Sir Nevil asserted that a good many policemen are resigning because of the terrorism, but he hopes soon to stop this by adequate protection of the police and their families. Another feature of the policy of strengthening the police is enlistment in England of men whose families are quite safe and where they are not open to local influences.

Sir Nevil said he has no evidence whatever to support statements repeatedly made in the House of Commons and elsewhere that the Sinn Fein campaign in Ireland is financed by the American Clan-na-Gael and run by American gunmen.

PLAN TO HOLD BACK VOTE FOR LOWDEN

Governor's Friends Aim to Show Increasing Strength After First Ballot.

TO OFFSET ANY DEFECTION

Wood Is Expected to Lead at Start of Convention — Johnson Urged as Constructive Conservative.

Supporters of Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois have arranged a carefully prepared campaign to hold back the vote for him on the early ballots at the Republican National Convention at Chicago, it was learned yesterday, for the purpose of creating the appearance of gradually growing strength for him and in the hope of bringing about his nomination for President by that method.

An additional reason for the adoption of those tactics was said to be the expected defection of seventeen Chicago delegates, controlled by Mayor William Hale Thompson, after the first or second ballot. It is the hope of the Lowden managers that gains elsewhere would offset the desertion of a group of delegates from Governor Lowden's own State.

The refusal of United States Senator Boies Penrose of Pennsylvania to commit himself to Governor Lowden is said to have been a considerable check to this plan of the Old Guard. A. T. Hert of Kentucky, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee, was reported here to be likely to support Governor Lowden, although not bound as yet by a definite promise.

There has been little change in the Republican situation, in the belief of the party leaders here. General Wood is expected to lead on the first ballot, with Governor Lowden and Senator Johnson closely bunched for second and third places.

The great obstacle in the way of General Wood's nomination is said to be the opposition of what is known in the party as the "Senatorial group." The Republican Senators, who have taken a certain position of party leadership as a result of the League of Nations fight, are believed for the most part to be opposed to General Wood's nomination, and are working to block it, despite his popular strength.

A strong effort is now being made by friends of Senator Johnson to remove the belief that exists in many quarters that he holds radical ideas. For that purpose prominent business men of California, most of whom were formerly opposed to Senator Johnson, have been carrying on a campaign in person and by letter with bankers and wealthy men in New York City and elsewhere in an attempt to convince them that Senator Johnson is really a constructive conservative.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler was said to be reasonably certain of getting all but about a dozen of the New York State votes on the first ballot. There is said to be considerable sentiment in the delegation for Governor Lowden, which might turn to Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts if Governor Lowden does not develop enough strength. An interesting political rumor was that some of the leaders were considering Charles E. Hughes, nominee for President in 1916. One Republican leader stated that he believed there might be a possibility of the nomination of Mr. Hughes if the expected deadlock at Chicago should continue over Sunday.

TO OPEN AIR ROUTES IN JULY

Lawson Says He Will be First to Start Chicago-New York Service.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Aroused over the announcement that a British built air service would dominate flying in the United States, Alfred W. Lawson, President of the Lawson Airline, asserted tonight that his company has a two-year start on the proposed Handley-Page line, and that ten passenger planes will be flying between Chicago and New York by July 10.

"Our line will open first the Chicago and New York route. Landing fields for this route have already been contracted for. We will have stations in Chicago (Ashburn Field), Toledo, Cleveland, Buffalo, Syracuse, Rochester, and New York City.

"We will have day and night ships. Each plane will carry twenty-six passengers or four tons of freight. A business man will be able to leave Chicago at 8 o'clock in the evening and be on Broadway at 6 o'clock the following morning.

"Our line will extend from Chicago to New Orleans, San Francisco, Seattle, Winnipeg, Quebec, New York and Washington. By 1921 our rates will be as low as railroad rates. The fare will be fitted to the middle class man's pocketbook."

TO RECALL J. R. RATHOM.

Assistant Secretary Not Satisfied with His Evidence.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The naval board investigating the methods employed in an attempt to suppress vice at the Newport Training Station will recall John R. Rathom, editor of The Providence Journal.

This decision was taken at the request of Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, who asked it on the ground "that I am not satisfied that the testimony of Rathom, hitherto given, is sufficient to prove that he did not have personal knowledge or was not able to prove the charges made to the Senate committee."

The charges referred to were made before the Senate Naval Committee by Mr. Rathom several months ago.

Announcement was made of Mr. Roosevelt's request yesterday, when it was erroneously stated that he asked the recall of Mr. Rathom "on the ground that in his previous evidence he had not been able to prove the allegations made to the Senate committee."

TRAVIS ANNOUNCES BIG CUT.

Estimates Saving of $200,000 in Income Tax Administration.

ALBANY, May 23.—Administration of the State income tax law by Controller Travis has cost $200,000 less than the $1,000,000 estimated by the framers of the bill as necessary, according to a statement issued from the Controller's office today. These expenses include, said the Controller, "not only outpayments for personal services, traveling, office rental and the like, but also large sums for equipment of thirteen district offices, files, running close to $60,000 for three-quarters of a million returns, and costly automatic machinery."

Present collections of $33,000,000 will be swollen by the amounts received from non-residents who have until June 30 to put in their returns. The Controller explained that the counties will receive their share of the returns without any deduction for "overhead expenses."

TO ASK SUFFRAGE IN FRANCE

Senator Martin Says He Will Introduce Motion Next Week.

PARIS, May 23.—Senator Louis Martin at a conference with the French Union for Woman Suffrage yesterday told the women that he would bring up a motion before the Senate next month providing for giving the vote to them. He said he was not optimistic of success at first, and urged the union to continue its propaganda, declaring that if it did so the women of France would enjoy the privilege of suffrage within a year.

The Senator said he regretted that the women of France were not taking as much interest in suffrage as their sisters in England and the United States.

MORE VIENNA CHILDREN GO.

British Benefaction to Austrians Is Hailed as Pledge of Peace.

VIENNA, May 23.—Two hundred Vienna children from 6 to 14 years old left today for London via Rotterdam. In England, they are expected to be better fed than is possible here. They are mostly children of the so-called "brain workers," such as teachers, professors, physicians, authors and musicians. Further departures of parties of children are to follow.

Many thousands of Viennese children have already been sent to Sweden, Denmark, the Netherlands and Switzerland, and a number also to Italy, but the British benefaction finds the greatest interest here, since every one feels that this means—more than even a resumption of diplomatic or commercial relations—the return to those friendly relations which always existed between England and Austria before the war.

CUBANS NAME MONTALVO.

Conservatives Nominate Rich Sugar Planter for the Presidency.

HAVANA, May 23.—General Rafael Montalvo was today unanimously nominated as a candidate for the Presidency by the Conservative Party at its National Convention. General Montalvo was Secretary of Gobernacion during the Administration of Tomas Estrada Palma, Cuba's first President. He is a wealthy sugar planter.

No candidate for the Vice Presidency was selected, but well-informed Conservatives expressed the opinion tonight that ex-Vice President Alfredo Zayas, or a man selected by him, would be chosen to run for this office.

FINGERPRINTS CAUSE STRIKE

Cleveland Chauffeurs Object to Requirement in New Law.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 23.—Taxicab service was practically at a standstill today as the result of a strike of 300 chauffeurs in protest against certain sections of a new ordinance adopted recently by the City Council.

The men demand that the ordinance be amended to eliminate the clause which provides for taking fingerprints before a chauffeur's license will be issued.

WALLIS FAVORS IRISH INFLUX

Newly Named Immigration Commissioner Is Reception Guest.

The Women's Democratic League, of which Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby is President, gave a reception yesterday afternoon at 27 West Eighty-second Street in honor of Fourth Deputy Police Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, recently appointed Immigration Commissioner, and Mrs. Wallis. Following the reception, a brief meeting was held. As his appointment has not yet been confirmed by the Senate, Commissioner Wallis touched but lightly on the policy he expected to pursue.

"When I become Commissioner of Immigration," he said, "the doors of Ellis Island will swing both in and out—in for the oppressed of other lands who have come here with the firm purpose of becoming loyal American citizens and eternally out and impassable for the Reds, anarchists and Bolsheviki.

"What the United States needs is more immigration and immigration of the right kind. I notice in the newspapers that England is trying to pass laws which would permit the wholesale importation of Chinese labor into that country. If I had my way, I want to tell you, I would strive to bring great numbers of Irish people into our country."

Commissioner Wallis declared his belief that the members of the police force were 99 per cent. loyal and trustworthy.

SAYS CLOTHING WILL GO UP.

Editor of the Haberdasher Predicts 30 Per Cent. Increase by Fall.

Frederick T. Frazer, editor of The Haberdasher, in a statement last night asserted that the public should not delude itself into believing that the prices of men's and boys' apparel have reached a peak and started down. He said nothing short of a "nation-wide cataclysm could prevent prices next Autumn averaging 30 per cent. above those of this Spring, and that all Government agencies combined were helpless to prevent the increase. Mr. Frazer based his argument largely on the fact that Fall lines already have been bought or are being bought "at price increases ranging from 15 to 50 per cent."

He called the whole theory of the Government's plan to reduce prices fallacious, after mentioning the Department of Justice and the Federal Reserve Board, saying that theory was flying in the face of existing economic conditions. He blamed adverse weather conditions for present price cutting, said merchants had been stampeded and insisted that manufacturers' hands were tied by labor and material factors. He expressed a foreboding of general unemployment if the Government agents advised the public that increased prices next Fall were not justified.

NEW CLUES IN BOND THEFTS

Dooling Says Additional Arrests of Suspects Will Follow.

Further efforts to get a confession from Richard Armstrong, the leader of one of the gangs of bond robbers in the financial district, will be made today.

Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling was out of town yesterday on an investigation of certain features of the operations of the gang in disposing of the bonds. On his return last night Mr. Dooling said important developments had come to his attention which could not be discussed at this time, further than to say that some of the bonds had been traced and that additional arrests of suspects will follow.

Mr. Dooling said that the arrest of ten suspects and the questioning of some twenty other persons had given some definite clues to what had become of some of the bonds, but the difficulties of proving ownership for recovery will be handicapped without a confession from Armstrong, because of alterations or mutilations of serial numbers. By direction of the District Attorney, the police in a number of cities, including Philadelphia, Hartford and Boston, are making searches for bonds disposed of by Armstrong or his confederates.

Soldier Found Dead in Subway.

The body of Private Patrick Lynch, 25 years old, of Company L, Twenty-second Infantry, stationed on Governors Island, was found last night in the north tube of the Interborough subway, 2,000 feet from the Borough Hall, Brooklyn station, by a third-rail inspector. Shortly after the body was discovered Lynch's hat was found in the tube. It is believed Lynch was a passenger on a subway train and that his hat blew off. It is supposed he was walking back along the tracks to recover it when he met his death.

Edwards Headquarters Selected.

Convention headquarters for Governor Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, will be opened at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, about June 20, Walter W. Vick, his campaign manager, announced yesterday. The executive staff of the Edwards Campaign Committee will have living quarters at the Cliff House. Governor Edwards will attend the convention as one of the four delegates at large from New Jersey.

Berlin Told of Spa Postponement.

BERLIN, May 23.—The Wolff Bureau, the semi-official news agency, announces that the British Charge d'Affaires on Saturday presented a note to the German Government proposing a postponement of the conference at Spa, Belgium, between representatives of the Entente and Germany.

Church Should Be Progressive, but Not Revolutionary, Dr. Bell Tells Cathedral Congregation.

The Rev. Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell, President of St. Stephen's College at Annandale-on-Hudson, in a sermon yesterday at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine declared that industrial democracy was inevitable, and that the Church must understand that the movement for industrial democracy had already captured the imagination and mind of the human race. He spoke under the auspices of the Church Association for the Advancement of the Interests of Labor and was introduced by Bishop Charles Sumner Burch.

The demand of labor today, said Dr. Bell, was not for wages but for the return of the ownership of tools from those who possess them to those who use them. The workers demand that they shall no longer remain as wage servants but shall take part in the ownership and management of the steam tools with which they labor, he said. The whole struggle of labor, he added, was really a struggle for industrial democracy.

"If the Church is to regain the respect of the masses, as it can," declared Dr. Bell, "it must first say clearly: 'The control of life by mere wealth is a thing of the past. There remains before our day the necessity of working out in detail the changes to a true industrial democracy. Our chief task for God is not, therefore, to counsel so much with the retiring economic lords as it is to counsel with the enthroned commons.'"

The real danger, he pointed out, was that the Church, far from being antagonistic to the development of industrial democracy, would flatter the new democracy into believing that it could do no wrong. Just as the Church deserved contempt when it was taken in during the last century by the fatuous smiles of capitalism, he said, so would it get the undisguised contempt of the masses if it bowed too low to them.

"From this the Church will be saved, Dr. Bell declared, if she enjoins on the masses as they come into power that it is wrong to believe that "the voice of the people is the voice of God." He said it was just as much an evidence of defective mentality to speak of "the divine right of the people" as to speak of "the divine right of Kings" or "the divine right of big business."

"As industry becomes democratized, the Church, asserted the speaker, may have to endure hardship, penury, depletion in numbers and "there may be some persecution." He urged that this prospect should not frighten the Church, for its chief task, as he saw it, would be to accommodate the nation to the inevitable industrial democracy and to utter to the powerful world of organized labor the Church's age-long wisdom that God was on the side only of those who are on His side, and who serve and sacrifice, be they Kings, capitalists or commoners.

Those who insisted that the Church shall champion the present industrial arrangement and those who said that the Church shall make a new arrangement were both wrong, he continued. He said it was the Church's business to insist that in any social order, under all forms of government, the welfare of the human being must be placed before the welfare of property. The Church is called on to preach the principles of Jesus Christ in whatever economic order exists.

It is no part of the Church's work to go out and preach industrial democracy, declared the clergyman, as the people "have already decided that is the system that shall be." The question up to the Church was to decide whether the new adjustment should come by orderly, lawful and accustomed methods or whether it should come by blood and iron, "by a working-class revolution or by common sense."

"The exodus toward the democratization of industry has already taken place," added Dr. Bell. "The world has moved out from the state of things where masters gave orders while servants, without question, in return for a mere subsistence, made them bricks. The world has not arrived in the promised land. The people seem chiefly engaged in worshipping the Golden Calf. The proletariat demands the blessings which only the masters used to partake of.

"It is not necessary that the Church should lead the people out of wage bondage. It is necessary that she go out with them, keeping her head and talking straight to the new democracy, telling it where it is likely to make a fool out of itself and of how it must go if it would save itself alive.

"Democracy struggling toward power has been an altruistic movement. Industrial democracy in power looks almost, if not quite, as materialistic as the plutocracy it is displacing.

"Just as apparently, with brilliant and noble exceptions, the general idea of our investing controllers of life has long been not to serve humanity but rather to exploit it, seeking ever to gain for personal enjoyment unjustified and immoral profits, so now the general idea of labor inevitably approaching social control seems, with brilliant exceptions, to be not to serve humanity but to exploit it also, seeking ever to gain, for personal enjoyment, unprincipled and immoral wages.

"The true enemies of industrial democracy are not capitalists. They are rather, those millions of industrial democrats, apparently motivated by no higher or larger ideals than a desire for as much wealth for as little service as can clamorously be obtained.

"If the emerging industrial democracy cannot be brought to live for the things which perish not, the things which transcend the material, the industrial democracy is bound for destruction, bound to follow imperialism, feudalism and capitalism into the limbo of things tried in the furnace and found wanting. From that pathetic fate, only that power which is in the religion of Jesus Christ can save industrial democracy and the civilization of the next half millennium in this, its dawning day."

DR. STRATON BOASTS KEEN WHISKY NOSE

Complains in Sermon of Rejection of His Testimony as to Scotch He Bought at Healy's.

CAN TELL IT A YARD OFF

Sees Peril of Reign of Lawlessness if Enforcement of Statutes is Winked At.

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, who preached at the Calvary Baptist Church last night on the subject, "Is New York Menaced by a Reign of Lawlessness?" complained of the rejection of his testimony by Federal Commissioner Hitchcock, who would not let Dr. Straton appear as a witness against Thomas Healy after Dr. Straton had said he had bought Scotch whisky at the restaurant, but had never tasted Scotch before in his life.

"The administration of our criminal laws today is too weak," he said. "There are so many technicalities that it looks sometimes as if the laws were made to protect criminals rather than society.

"For example, the Federal Commissioner in a preliminary hearing in one of the liquor cases that came up through my investigation took the position that my testimony was not admissible because I could not swear that I could tell the difference between Scotch whisky and any other sort of whisky by taste.

"It doesn't make any difference what flag that stuff was flying under—whether it was Scotch, Irish or American—what we bought in those cabarets and restaurants was liquor, and I am ready to swear to that fact.

"There are more ways of identifying liquor than merely by tasting it. I am ready to testify that I can swear to the identity of liquor by smelling. I think I can qualify as an expert. Some question was raised about whether or not I swallowed the Scotch highball that was served to us in one of the places visited. I told the court that I sipped enough to identify it. In my work as a minister I have had enough experience with drunken men to identify liquor at a yard off."

Lack of respect for the law is the great evil in this country today, according to the minister, who continued:

"If it is true, as many people believe, that lawbreakers often make an alliance with the very officers who are elected and paid to enforce the law, then it is a tremendously serious situation, for, if officers can wink at the violation of one set of laws, who can say, if the time comes that Bolshevism and anarchy menace the city, they would not wink at the forms of lawlessness that come with those disorders?"

BRONX HONORS WAR'S DEAD.

2,000 Pledge Allegiance to Flag at Memorial Services.

The Bronx honored those who died in the war yesterday afternoon in Edgar Allan Poe Park, 140th Street and Grand Concourse, where more than 2,000 persons gathered at memorial services. As the last strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner" were played by the army band from Governors Island, the crowd pledged its allegiance to the flag and the country.

Mrs. Emma L. Balcom of the Women's Auxiliary of the American Legion presided at the services. Grouped about the stand were twenty-five wounded soldiers from Fox Hills Hospital and twelve Gold Star mothers.

The Rev. Father Gregory O'Brien of St. Andrew's Church urged that the American dead be left in France, and the Rev. John B. Zeiter, a former army chaplain, told how America had won the war. William Deegan, Chairman of the Bronx American Legion; Commissioner of Parks Hennessy of the Bronx, Rabbi A. Tiumpner of the Fox Hills Hospital, and Isaac Davis also spoke.

LEGION POST GETS COLORS.

Drew, Rankin, Barry and Davenport Families Make Gift.

National colors and a post banner were presented to the S. Rankin Drew Post of the American Legion, in exercises held on the Central Park mall yesterday afternoon. The flags were the gift of members of the Drew, Barry, Rankin and Davenport families, all prominent in the theatrical field. The names of the individual donors were not made public.

The post's commander, former Lieutenant Commander Wells Hawkes, received the colors on behalf of the post. There was a marine guard of honor under Lieutenant Harry S. Miller.

After the flag ceremony the company adjourned to a nearby open space, where a tree in memory of S. Rankin Drew, for whom the post is named, was planted. The Rev. Peter E. Hoey, former chaplain of the 107th Infantry, made an address.

Why?

"Isn't it a funny thing," said one man, "that The Globe should increase its price just when you hear everywhere that prices are tumbling down?"

Don't be misled by these wild rumors about the wholesale slaughter of the high cost of living. Just put the thing to the test and you will get the answer.

It is continuing to cost more than ever to manufacture and to publish a newspaper; and there is not in sight any promise of a decrease in the cost.

There are two ways of raising the price of a newspaper. One is by raising the price frankly and openly—the other is by reducing the quality and character of the paper itself.

The Globe chose what it regards as the only way; and as a newspaper it will be a better purchase at three cents than it has been at two cents.

It is not the purpose of this message to reflect upon other newspapers, but it is worth while telling you plainly that The Globe is a paper peculiar to itself. It is the oldest daily paper in the United States and it is regarded by many well posted people as the best paper in the United States.

2,000 TO PLAN FIGHT AGAINST PIER TIEUP

Representatives of Business, Industrial and Transportation Organizations Meet Today.

USE OF STATE CANAL URGED

Would Relieve Freight Traffic to Buffalo and Points West, Says Merchants' Association.

Plans for the fight of the city's commercial interests for the restoration of transportation in this city will be discussed tomorrow at a meeting of more than 2,000 members of business, industrial and transportation organizations. The meeting, which was called by the Merchants' Association, will follow a luncheon at the Hotel Astor.

"The officers of the largest commercial organizations of the city, who are in touch with the members of their associations," says an announcement yesterday by the Merchants' Association, "have reached the conclusion that the time has come when the domination of small cliques banded together and occupying strategic positions in regard to the movement of merchandise, both by land and water, must be thrown off.

"The Merchants' Association is in this campaign to win. Public sentiment is undoubtedly overwhelmingly in our favor, and we intend to keep it so. We shall ask nothing unjust or unfair, but we shall insist upon the right to the free use of the transportation lines. Business men of New York must be aroused to a realization of what confronts them. We will win with a united front."

The meeting is expected to bring out from every possible angle the feeling of business men in the city with regard to the freight tieup and their suggestions for a remedy. The speaking will be followed by a general discussion of the situation with respect to rail, water and intra-city transportation. Frederick J. Koster of San Francisco, who led the fight in his city for the freedom of transportation lines, will be the chief speaker.

Use of the New York State barge canal route as a means of relieving the freight traffic to Buffalo and points west in connection with the lake lines is urged by the Merchants' Association.

"The Great Lakes Transit Corporation," says a statement from the association, "operates from Buffalo in connection with the canal lines, the steamers of the Great Lakes Corporation plying between Buffalo and Duluth and Superior, Wis., where connections are made with the Great Northern Railway, Northern Pacific Railway, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad and the Soo Line for St. Paul, Minneapolis and points west of Duluth and Superior. The fleet of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation consists of twenty-two steel steamers, with daily sailings from Buffalo.

"By reason of improved facilities for the handling of freight through the New York State barge canal, merchandise freight from New York to the head of the lakes can be accomplished in about twelve days.

"The two canal lines operating between New York and Buffalo are the Inland Marine Corporation, having a fleet of eighty boats, receiving freight at Piers 5 and 6, East River, and the Government line, known as the New York Canal Section, operating a fleet of about ninety boats, receiving freight at Pier 12, East River. Both have daily service to Buffalo."

For information with respect to rates and service of the Great Lakes Transit Corporation, shippers are referred to W. B. Riddle, General Agent, of 290 Broadway.

ALEXANDRA'S EYE INJURED.

Bursting of Blood Vessel Impairs Vision of British Queen Mother.

LONDON, May 23.—The Queen Mother Alexandra, according to an official report issued today, has been suffering from a severe bronchial attack, which is now subsiding.

"During a violent attack of coughing a small blood vessel burst in one of the Queen's eyes, causing troublesome impairment of the vision," says the statement. "It is hoped that with care and rest this inconvenience will pass, but her Majesty's engagements must to some extent be dependent upon the progress made."

DECLARES EGOISM CAUSES UNREST

Dr. Butler Tells Presbyterians the World Has Grown Away from Faith.

SAYS CURE LIES IN CHURCH

Interchurch Movement Attacked in Sermons by Some of the General Assembly Commissioners.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, May 23. — Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, addressed a mass meeting of the Board of Home Missions here this afternoon in connection with the Presbyterian General Assembly. His grandfather, the Rev. Dr. Nicholas Murray, was Moderator of the General Assembly in 1840. Dr. Butler's topic was "The Nation's Religious Obligation and Christian Opportunity," and he was heard by a large audience.

For 200 or 300 years, Dr. Butler said, the modern world had been in an intellectual upheaval, and man had tended to become an extreme egoist. In freeing the individual from tyranny he had also been set free from the restraints which distinguished liberty from license. Dr. Butler added that the pendulum had swung too far, and that therein lay the religious opportunity of the nation. The school, the family and the church, he said, bore the responsibility as trustees for a great inheritance.

"Every conceivable explanation of the unrest, dissatisfaction and disorder that prevail throughout the world has been proposed, except the one that is deepest and most important," said Dr. Butler. "For between 200 and 300 years the modern world has been in a state of intellectual unheaval. This upheaval has grown constantly more widespread and more severe.

"The forces that lie behind it have profoundly affected the religious life and the religious faith of the great masses of men, have shaken their confidence in age-old principles of private morals and of public policy, and have left them blindly groping for guiding principles to take the place of those that have lost their hold.

"Man's attention and interest have been increasingly turned to himself, his immediate surroundings, and his instant occupation. Having come to feel himself quite superior to all that has gone before, and being without faith in anything that lies beyond, he has tended to become an extreme egoist. The natural result has been to measure the universe in terms of himself and his present satisfactions.

"His own emotions and his own appetities, being present and immediate, take precedence in the shaping of conduct and of policy over any body of principles built up by the experience of others. The wisdom, the justice, the morality of an act or policy are now tested solely by its immediate results, and these results are increasingly measured in terms of the material and emotional satisfaction of the moment.

Unrest a Natural Result.

"In a world so constituted and so motived, unrest, dissatisfaction and disorder are a necessity. Set free a million or a thousand million human wills to work each for the accomplishment of its own immediate material satisfaction, and nothing but unrest, dissatisfaction and disorder is possible.

"What appears to have happened is that, in setting free the individual human being from those external restraints and compulsions which constitute tyranny, he has also been set free from those internal restraints and compulsions which distinguish liberty from license. The pendulum has swung too far. The time has come, the time is indeed already past, when the pendulum should begin its swing backward toward the middle point of wisdom, of sanity, of self-control and of steady progress. Here is to be found the religious obligation and the religious opportunity of the American nation in this year of grace.

"The fool who says in his heart, 'There is no God,' really means there is no God but himself. His supreme egoism, his colossal vanity, have placed him at the centre of the universe, which is thereafter to be measured and dealt with in terms of his personal satisfactions. So it has come to pass that after nearly 2,000 years much of the world resembles the Athens of St. Paul's time, in that it is wholly given to idolatry; but in the modern case there are as many idols as idol worshippers, and every such idol worshipper finds his idol in his looking-glass.

"The time has come once again to repeat and to expound in thunderous tones the noble sermon of St. Paul on Mars Hill, and to declare to these modern idolators 'Whom, therefore, ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you.' There can be no cure until faith and the rule of everlasting principle are again restored and made supreme in the life of men and of nations.

Urges Careful Teaching.

"These millions of man-made gods, these myriads of personal idols, must be broken up and destroyed, and the heart and the mind of man brought back to a comprehension, through faith, of the existence and the working of the divine spirit as revealed in Jesus Christ. This cannot be done by exhortation or by preaching alone. It must be done by teaching—careful, systematic, national teaching that will show in simplest language that the uninstructed can understand what are the essentials of a permanent and lofty morality, of a stable and just social and industrial order, and of a secure and sublime religious faith.

"Here we come upon the whole great problem of a national education, its successes and its disappointments, its achievements and its problems yet unsolved. Education is not merely instruction—far from it. It is the leading of the youth out into a comprehension of his environment, that, comprehending, he may so act and so conduct himself as to leave the world better and happier for his having lived.

"Since Protestantism broke up the solidarity of the ecclesiastical organization in the western world, and since democracy made intermingling of church and state impossible, it has been necessary, if religion is to be saved for men, that the family and the church do their vital co-operative part in a national organization of education."

Commissioners in Many Pulpits.

The pulpits of all Presbyterian churches and of many other denominations in the city and suburbs were filled today by Commissioners to the General Assembly, and this evening many meetings were held under the auspices of the boards and commissions of the Church. In several sermons the Interchurch World Movement was discussed. The General Assembly plans to take up on Tuesday the question of the Church's attitude toward the movement.

"No amount of dollars can take the place of Pentecost," the Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander of Pittsburgh told a big congregation in the Tenth Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Dr. Mark A. Matthews of Seattle, who preached in the North Minster Church, criticised the campaign for funds made by the Interchurch Movement. "Friendly citizens of men not members of any denomination. "No Man's Land cannot dictate to me and my pulpit as to how I'm going to run my church," declared Dr. Matthews. "If I went out and made an appeal to 'No Man's Land' for funds then it would have a right to come in and dictate to me how to run my church."

The Rev. Dr. Samuel S. Palmer of Columbus, Ohio, Moderator of the Assembly, preached this morning in the Second Church and this evening in the First Church, Germantown.

Four brothers, all Presbyterian ministers, spoke from the same pulpit in the Arch Street Presbyterian Church this morning. One was the pastor, the Rev. Clarence E. MacCartney. His brothers were the Revs. Ernest L. MacCartney of Cathmere, Wash.; John MacCartney of Waterloo, Iowa, and Albert J. MacCartney of Chicago. Their father was the late Rev. Dr. John L. MacCartney, a Covenanter minister.

BISHOPS ARE CONSECRATED.

Methodists Install Seventeen in Ceremony at Conference.

DES MOINES, Iowa, May 23.—The seventeen new Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church were conducted to the altar and consecrated to their tasks today. Delegates said it was the most important service of the General Conference sessions.

After a preliminary service, conducted by Bishops Berry, Anderson, Stuntz and Welch, the examination of those consecrated was conducted by Bishop Berry, senior of the board.

The following Bishops were then presented for consecration, each being accompanied by two ministers and two members of the Board of Bishops: Francis Wesley Warne, John Wesley Robinson, Eben Samuel Johnson, Lauress John Birney, Frederick Bohn Fisher, Ernest Lynn Waiford, Charles Edward Locke, Ernest Gladstone Richardson, Charles Wesley Burns, Anton Bast, Edgar Blake, George Harvey Bickley, Frederick Thomas Keeney, Harris Lester Smith, Charles Larew Mead, Robert Elijah Jones and Matthew Wesley Clair. The first three named were raised from Missionary Bishops to Bishops and the last two are the negro Bishops.

The conference committees have practically finished their work. The form of the report of the Committee on Unification has been agreed upon, a constructive program of recreation has been formulated, and the ritual for admission of members to the church has been altered, so that no longer will candidates be asked to subscribe to the doctrines of the Holy Scriptures as set forth in the articles of religion of the Methodist Church.

This last action is taken to mean that applicants may be received into the Church, even though they do not profess a belief in all of its doctrines in the exact form in which they are set forth in the Methodist articles of religion and according to Methodist interpretation. It is thought by many members of the conference to indicate a long forward step in the obliteration of denominational lines.

CUTS CHILDREN'S THROATS,

One Dead, Two Dying, as Frenzied Mother Fails of Suicide.

CUTHBERT, Ga., May 23.—While her husband was asleep in an adjoining room, Mrs. W. H. Ward today slashed the throats of herself and four of her five children with a razor.

One of the children, a five-year-old girl, died from the injuries. Two others were in a serious condition tonight, but the fourth child and the mother were expected to recover.

Mental derangement resulting from a long illness was said by members of the family to have been responsible for the woman's act.

Telephone Girls Aid Men's Strike.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., May 23.—This city has been without telephone service for two days on account of the strike of ninety girl operators, following that of twenty linemen. General Manager Wright of the local company granted the increase asked by the operators, its permanence to be conditional upon an increase of rates by the Public Service Commission, but the girls refused the advance unless the linemen's terms also were granted. Today the union made a new demand that the plant superintendent, F. P. Rogers, be removed.

GRANT IS SILENT ON BISHOP'S CHARGE

Ascension Rector in Sermon Ignores Gailor-Reference to "Pampered Pet" of Rich.

URGES NEW PSYCHOLOGY

Discards Idea That Soul "Is Ready-Made," and Pleads for the Unfortunate.

Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, made no reply in his sermon yesterday to the statement of Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, that the rector was the "pampered pet of a group of rich men and women, who poses as a friend of the poor to join in the throwing of missiles at the Bishops." Dr. Grant's topic, instead, was the "Social Mission of the Episcopal Church," and he declared that the Church ought to eliminate from society such wastes as feeble-mindedness, crime and disease.

"The Episcopal Church," said Dr. Grant, "should have a new program, and warmly concern itself in social transformation. By the social mission of the Church, I mean that the Episcopal Church ought to get busy on that great ideal."

Preceding Dr. Grant's sermon, the Rev. Leslie E. Sunderland of the Episcopal City Mission Society appealed for financial assistance in carrying on the mission's work among the 25,000 persons in the hospitals and institutions for criminals in the city.

After declaring that prohibition had done much to cut down the moral waste, Dr. Grant said that a few years ago one did not hear of defectives mentioned in connection with missionary work, and he added that to treat the individual or transform him, "we must treat the society to which he belongs, rather than the individual." He said that the Church was slow in receiving advantages accruing from the theories of evolution, adding:

"Today we have a new psychology, and while under the old psychology it was believed that the soul was ready made, under the new psychology we hear more about growth."

Dr. Grant said the bulwarks of the majority of the churches lie in appeals to authority, rather than to service. The mission of the Church, as he saw it, was improvement for mankind, declaring: "You can't make men good in a bad world."

Touching on Socialism Dr. Grant remarked that it was merely a new form of individualism—a change from the competitive system. In closing, he declared that what the world needed most "was pity, when all it sees is fear."

Ten Millions of Dollars' Worth at Usual Selling Values of our best and freshest merchandise in store in New York City, and also ten millions in Philadelphia---twenty millions of dollars of best, freshest merchandise---is offered to the public at solely for the one purpose of starting a general movement to get down to a lower level of prices all over the United States.

If the merchants, manufacturers and speculators in raw materials, who have made more or less money during the war, will get together, they can find a way to reduce expenses, agree upon smaller profits, cut off extravagant advertising and other unnecessary methods common when we all speeded up on broad-gauge tracks during the war.

Retail merchants can do with smaller profits—

If They Try Hard To Do So

and the people will surely appreciate it.

The fact is, they have a right to expect that, instead of any further advances from now on, makers and dealers, by joining together, can each shave something off the old prices.

The universal expectation of the people can be met.

In the last seventeen days, three weeks since our first announcement, we have been able to bring into the New York and Philadelphia stores almost Five Millions of dollars of our superior grades of merchandise, to be exact—

New York..... $2,398,324 at cost
Philadelphia ... 2,480,841 at cost

Total ..... $4,879,165

We have all the invoices, though some of the goods are yet on the rails, and on trucks coming as fast as they can.

Of course, these entirely new goods go into our shelves and upon our tables the day they arrive, and some of them are sold off the first day and every day, as the people are still coming in throngs.

Probably one-third of our entire stocks in each store were not here when we began this movement.

Each day takes off large quantities. It must be remembered, too, we are daily purchasing goods at lower prices, under our urgency to manufacturers.

The one-fifth concession to our customers continues the same, giving an additional advantage because of the lower cost we got by recent purchase.

Dun's Review shows More recessions than Advances in prices

"That price considerations have become the dominant factor in the economic situation," says Dun's Review, "with a more general influence on business sentiment, the events of the week have demonstrated. While reaction from the greatly advanced prices has been long delayed, and even now is conspicuously absent in various quarters, the movement toward deflation has recently made such progress in some lines as to leave no doubt as to its meaning, though the probable duration and extent of the readjustment remains a matter of uncertainty.

"While the reductions have thus far been most apparent in retail circles, where 'special' sales are being featured practically the country over, some wholesale markets lose much of their buoyancy as competitive bidding for supplies slackens, and speculative tendencies are discouraged by tightening of money markets, and Dun's list of quotations this week discloses more recessions than advances."

Wool, cotton and general commodities show lower prices

Some headlines in Saturday's Journal of Commerce read as follows:

"Break in prices extends to principal commodity markets of the country."

"Cotton is hit by deflation wave. Spot falls $10 a bale on New York Exchange. From Liverpool reports were that Egyptian cotton had slumped 200 points further, making a depression of one shilling per pound since Thursday.

"Wool buying less keen, 'Giving it away' is way of describing sale. Prices at final session of British government owned commodity slightly below those established in Thursday's break. Fine wools went off from 10 to 20 per cent."

Persian Oil Jars

of the 16th, 17th and 18th Centuries

Because Au Quatrieme took the entire lot of 429 jars from a dealer who desired the space they occupied for new goods we were able to get them at a price concession that enables us to sell them at $35.00 and $50.00. Ordinarily they sell for $75 to $150.

About 200 of the jars are of the deep, exquisite turquoise blue that characterizes the finer of these jars. All of them are in unusually good shades of blue and green, traced with delicate Persian designs and beautifully glazed.

So far as we know, Au Quatrieme is the only place in this country to have these jars—and Au Quatrieme, after very thorough searching, knows of only one place abroad that has them.

For lamp-bases they are exceptionally lovely, since they apply a marvelous spot of color in a room and are of a particularly good shape for a lamp.

As decorative spots in the room of a country house they have unlimited possibilities.

To buy one of these jars is to buy a vast amount of charm and color and glamour.

WANTS $500,000,000 FUND TO AID EUROPE

Eliot Wadsworth Says Only American Help Can Save Famine-Stricken Countries.

NEED BIG MEN TO DIRECT IT

Returned Red Cross Official Supports the Views Expressed by Henry P. Davison.

After the Red Cross Congress in Geneva, Eliot Wadsworth of this city, who was Vice Chairman of the Red Cross during the war, made an economic survey of the new States created by the war. He has just returned to this country, and yesterday he said that only financial assistance, given quickly and directed by a commission of men of constructive genius, will save several of the countries now stricken by famine and disease.

He advocated a revolving fund of from $500,000,0000 to $1,000,000,000, to be established by the United States, by means of which the industries of Eastern Europe may be revived. There are, he said, starving children and idle factories that need raw material in Austria, and the medium of exchange is inflated almost hopelessly. This applies also to Poland, Latvia, Lithuania and Finland, he added.

"The problem is too large for individual effort," said Mr. Wadsworth, in supporting the views recently expressed by H. P. Davison. "It must be handled by a nation. The United States seems to be the only nation with the money and raw material necessary.

"Even if these nations could start their industries, the market which formerly supported them is gone. A large proportion of the product was sold to the East, into Russia, now in almost complete economic disorder. Reviving the industries, and therefore reviving the cities, is a much more far-reaching problem than simply providing raw material and fuel. If the industries of Riga should again be started the market would be limited by the borders of Latvia, except so far as adjoining nations could, with their inflated currency, afford to purchase the product of her mills. This complication of the varied currencies in itself serves as an economic barrier which is very serious. New markets in France, England and the Americas must be found.

"As one example of what might be done in many centres—technical experts could go to a city like Riga, pick out a few mills, determine what was needed in the way of raw material, fuel and accessories. These supplies could be purchased and shipped direct. A proper proportion of the finished product would be turned back to the Fund for sale in the markets of the world, to repay the advances.

"Unless rehabilitation can be begun across the water our own progress will undoubtedly be retarded. It might well prove that we, too, would suffer a setback the extent of which no one can foretell."

Commodore Hotel Awnings Burn.

A lighted cigarette dropped from a window of the Commodore Hotel yesterday afternoon set fire to an awning on the eighth floor, which in turn set fire to the awnings on the two floors beneath. The flames were extinguished by hotel employes before the arrival of firemen. The damage was slight but the burning awnings attracted a crowd of hundreds of persons.

WILL PLAN TO SAVE THE GAS INDUSTRY

Conference of American Association, Representing 1,100 Companies, to be Held Here.

MENACED BY HIGH COSTS

Shortage of Gas Oil and Coal Also Threatens—Cortelyou to Outline Situation.

A conference of representatives of 1,100 gas companies throughout the United States has been called by the American Gas Association, to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania Wednesday, to discuss practical methods of quickly meeting the increasing high prices and a threatened shortage in oil and coal, in so far as these commodities affect the manufacture of gas. The situation is pronounced acute by officials of the association, and many companies are facing the proposition of shutting down their plants unless they immediately can obtain gas and oil coal.

George B. Cortelyou, President of the American Gas Association, will open the conference and outline the crisis confronting the gas industry. Philip H. Gadsden, Vice President of the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia and Chairman of the Emergency Committee of the American Gas Association, will preside.

Speakers announced include, besides Mr. Cortelyou, N. A. C. Smith, head of the oil division of the Federal Bureau of Mines; O. B. Wilcox, Chairman of the Public Utilities Committee of the Investment Bankers' Association; J. E. Klumpp, Chairman of the American Gas Association's Oil Committee, and Oscar H. Fogg.

Information gathered by the American Gas Association shows that artificial gas is directly supplied to about 8,250,000 consumers in approximately 4,000 cities, towns and villages throughout the country, and serves a population of nearly 45,000,000. It was brought out in a recent conference of gas manufacturers that it would be impossible, in case of any discontinuance of gas service, to provide quickly enough other means of cooking food to ward off actual cooked-food deprivation.

Oscar H. Fogg, Secretary and Manager of the Gas Association, said yesterday that the question of priority of shipments of gas oil and coal had already been taken up with the Interstate Commerce Commission. He said that unless relief is speedily granted to public utilities as regards a steady flow of coal nothing can avert a shutdown of some plants and a cessation of service in some localities.

The question of mounting costs of all materials that go into the manufacture of gas will also receive consideration. The gas companies contend that unless they are allowed to increase rates to meet these rising costs they will be forced to go out of business.

HOOVER POINTS WAY TO WIPE OUT UNREST

Declares Co-operation of Labor, Industry and the Public Is Paramount Need Today.

SOCIALISM PROVES FAILURE

Opposes Legal Repression and Says "We Must Create Solidarity of Interest in Every Section."

Co-operation to obtain better division of the products of industry and to harmonize capital and labor for the steady development of higher productivity is "the paramount business of every American today," according to Herbert Hoover, in an article in System, the magazine of business, out today.

Pointing out that labor is rebelling against being regarded as a "commodity," Mr. Hoover says the workers are out for "their rights instead of benevolence," and that the determination of what is labor's rights "is our largest national problem, for in default of a better work relation we shall have decreased instead of increased production, and if our standard of living goes down it will be hardly worth while to consider our other national aspirations, for then we shall have failed in our real basis of being a democracy."

Declaring that the problem "goes far beyond the mere settling of disputes," Mr. Hoover says he has seen growing "out of the masses of people in every country aspirations for a great economic change." Broadly, he said, the change will mean more to the hand workers and less to the brain workers, and in seeking any solution, he thought, "we must begin by creating somehow and somewhere A solidarity of interest in every section of the people conducting our industrial machine."

The Causes Back of Unrest.

Outlining the causes back of the desire for an economic transformation, Mr. Hoover referred to the triangular interest of capital, labor and the public, the latter "demanding a service" of the two others "that neither can perform."

"There are," he continued, "many other more apparent causes, such as the rise in the cost of living, unrestrained speculation, spectacular instances of excessive profits, excessive accumulation and misuse of wealth, inequality in readjustments of wage schedules, release of ideas and emotions by the war, social revolutionary theories imported from Europe, the belief that free speech is restricted, intermittent employment, fear of unemployment, excessive hours of work in certain industries, lack of adequate housing, unnecessarily high infant mortality in industrial centres, and the loss of personal contact in large industrial units.

"These troubles have not arisen in a day. They were only intensified, not created, by the war. They will not be cured in a day. They will not be cured at all by law or by legislative process or suppression, or by any quick, sure remedy patented, bottled and distributed by Government. The difficulty with all legal process of a compulsory nature, which shows itself as rule in some form of compulsory arbitration, is that thereby we substitute Government control for competition, for if a court may control wages it will in effect control industry, and in the end stifle it. That is, we adopt Socialism without its terminology.

Socialism Proving a Failure.

"Public opinion and good-will are the forces we must depend on for enforcement of the right sort of settlements. Repression leads to the border of martyrdom and tends to make for compulsory employment and a compulsory wage and also to compulsory profits."

Mr. Hoover said his observation of Socialism at work in industrial Europe had shown the experiment to be failing, especially in coal production in Russia.

"Bankruptcy of the Socialist idea, however," he continues, "does not relieve us from the necessity of finding a solution to the primary question which underlies all this discontent; that primary question is the better division of the products of industry and the steady development of higher productivity.

"The paramount business of every American today is this business of finding a solution to these issues. But this solution must be found by Americans, in a practical American way, based upon American ideas, on American philosophy of life. A definite American substitute is needed for these disintegrating theories of Europe. It must be founded on our national instincts and upon the normal development of our national institutions. It must be founded, too, upon the fundamental fact that every section of this nation, the farmer, the industrial worker, the professional man, the employer, are all absolutely interdependent upon each other in this task of maximum production and better distribution.

Misery Must Be Eradicated.

"We can see a vivid confirmation in Europe of the fundamental economic principle that the standard of living and the cost of living is the direct quotient of the amount of commodities produced; that we must secure a maximum production of the industrial machine if we wish to keep our population alive or if we wish to see an increase in the standard of living of our people.

"From this only can arise the very foundations of the higher activities of life. The application of this proposition must, however, stand several tests. A maximum production can be obtained only under conditions that protect and stimulate the physical and intellectual well-being of the producer. We shall never remedy justifiable discontent until we eradicate the misery which the ruthlessness of individualism has imposed upon a minority. The great ranks of our people are neither radical nor reactionary."

To Publish Wood Newspaper.

Announcement was made yesterday that the Leonard Wood National Campaign Committee would publish a daily newspaper each day of the Republican National Convention at Chicago. Its purpose will be to show that General Wood is the popular choice in the different sections of the country.

SAYS PROFITS TOOK THIRD OF FLOUR BILL

Labor Expert, Asserts 60 Per Cent. of This Was War Profiteering.

$8.60 BARREL SOLD FOR $14.50

Jobbers' Gains in 1917 17½ Per Cent. Over Those of 1914, Lauck Report States.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—An analysis of profiteering in flour, filed with the United States Railroad Labor Board by W. Jett Lauck, consulting economist of the Railroad Brotherhoods and unions, made public here today, states that war-time profits absorbed one-third of the price paid by the consumer for a barrel of flour, and that 60 per cent. of this margin was chargeable to profiteering.

The actual cost of producing a barrel of flour in 1917, including interest, freight, and other expenses of the miller, was only $8.60, according to the analysis. For this the consumer was forced to pay at least $14.50. Had the miller, jobber, wholesaler and retailer been content with reasonable margins, this flour might have been available to the purchaser at $11.97. However, the product was saddled with so many profits in passing from the miller through the various distributing agencies that the ultimate cost to the consumer was more than $3 in excess of a reasonable selling price.

Prior to the war the millers' profit of 13½ cents a barrel assured a return of 12 per cent. on invested capital. Under Government supervision during the war the millers were permitted to make 25 cents a barrel. But during the year ended June 30, 1917, the millers had been actually averaging 52 cents a barrel, while one mill showed returns for a period of six months of $2 a barrel, Mr. Lauck asserts.

With respect to the milling companies the survey shows:

That the profits had advanced in 1917 practically 17½ per cent. over 1913 earnings.

That the cost of operation, which includes labor cost, advanced only 20 per cent. in the same period, or only 5 cents a barrel, as contrasted with an increase in millers' profits of more than 43 cents a barrel.

That the excess profits were more than eight times the increase in operating and labor expenses, amounting to a levy of $2 on each family in the country.

The price of feed, an important by-product of the industry, soared to such an extent during the war that it practically compensated the millers for the entire cost of converting wheat into flour, the analysis shows.

Mr. Lauck's report shows that, while the jobbers' costs of operation increased only 11 per cent., their profits were nearly 17½ per cent. greater in 1917 than in 1914. During these years the jobbers cut a profiteering melon of approximately $18,000,000, or a tax of nearly $1 on every family in the country.

PRINCE QUITS NEW ZEALAND.

Thanks Premier for His Reception as He Sails for Australia.

LITTELTON, New Zealand, May 21.—The Prince of Wales today concluded his visit to New Zealand. He went on board the battle cruiser Renown, and the vessel at daybreak sailed for Melbourne.

Prior to his departure the Prince handed a message to Premier Massey, in which he expressed his thanks and appreciation to the people of New Zealand for the splendid reception accorded to him.

End the conditions that throttle our shipping

MORE than nine million tons of ships built in American shipyards fly the American flag on the high seas—

We have put a great merchant marine on the seas. But it cannot be kept there under present conditions.

It cannot make America independent of foreign shipping in getting American goods to the markets of the world.

It cannot meet in successful competition the ships of other countries which are built more cheaply; operated more cheaply.

It cannot cope with trade fleets around which other Governments have thrown the protecting arm of preferential treatment and legislation.

But these conditions can be changed.

* * * * *

Under the operation of commercial treaties between the United States and other countries our merchant fleet almost vanished from the seas.

With our hands tied by these agreements, we have been powerless to take effective steps for the maintenance of our merchant marine.

These treaty provisions, which have operated to throttle American shipping, are subject to termination.

The Senate Shipping Bill expresses the opinion that they should be modified and directs action to this end.

When this is done we shall be in a position to enable American ships to hold their own in competition for our fair share of the commerce of the world.

This is a for-America policy that deserves the support of all good Americans.

1 DEAD, MANY HURT, IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Four Policemen Are Among Victims of Long List of Sunday Mishaps.

MAMARONECK UPSET FATAL

Fracture of Skull Kills Driver, While Three Are Slightly Injured—One Car Hits Three Boys.

Four policemen were among the victims of a long series of automobile accidents yesterday, in some of which the drivers speeded away, leaving the injured lying on the street. One man was killed by being hurled from a car at Mamaroneck.

The policemen had commandeered the automobile driven by William O'Neill, 426 St. Nicholas Avenue, in responding to a riot call sent to the West 135th Street Station, and were speeding uptown on Seventh Avenue when a machine driven by Ralph Horton, 101 West 140th Street, turned into Seventh Avenue at 140th Street and crashed into them.

All of the policemen were hurled out. Three picked themselves up, badly bruised and with their uniforms torn. They found their machine smashed and the fourth policeman, Sergeant John Walker, lying unconscious. He was taken to the Harlem Hospital, where it was found that he had a fractured collarbone and possibly a fracture of the skull. The others were Paul Becker, Frank Whelpley and William Viets. The two drivers escaped uninjured, and Horton, who was accused of causing the accident by making a sharp turn, received a summons to appear in the Traffic Court and answer a charge of reckless driving. The supposed rioters turned out to be a quiet crowd listening to an argument between a woman who kept a news stand and a customer.

Fractured Skull Proves Fatal.

William Flannigan of Mamaroneck struck on his head and his skull was fractured when an auto he was driving upset. He died almost instantly. Three passengers escaped with slight bruises. The accident occurred on the Boston Post Road, when a rear wheel of the car collapsed. The car was owned by the Motor Car Company of Sixty-second Street and Broadway, this city.

An automobile with an unidentified driver hit two children at East Broadway and Gouverneur Street at 7 o'clock last night and struck a third child later at Second Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street. The party in the machine escaped by speeding. From East Broadway and Gouverneur Street, Max Lepkowitz, 10 years old, of 219 Henry Street, was taken to Gouverneur Hospital, suffering from concussion of the brain, and Max Cantor, 13 years old, of 276 Madison Street, was taken there with an injured left leg. From the scene of the second accident, Bernard Kaup, 9 years old, of 1,813 Second Avenue, was taken to Reception Hospital with a dislocated left shoulder.

The number of the car was reported as 44,440. The register of auto licenses showed a car of this number owned by J. W. Kelleher, 224 Highland Boulevard, Brooklyn. The telephone directory shows a J. J. Kelleher living at that address. Thomas Watson, a son-in-law of Mr. Kelleher, who answered the telephone, said Mr. Kelleher had taken his family in his car to Coney Island, sending it back with a chauffeur, who had driven the machine into the private garage before 6 o'clock. Mr. Watson left the telephone, saying that he would go to the garage, and returned saying the machine was there. The police have started an investigation to discover if the machine had been stolen and returned between 6 o'clock and the time when it was found to be back.

Girl of 6 Injured.

Kate Wagner, 6 years old, of 1,885 First Avenue, was taken to Mount Sinai Hospital, suffering from a fractured skull after she had been knocked down by an automobile at Fifth Avenue and Ninety-ninth Street.

Frank Fuetterer, a chauffeur, was locked up at the West 177th Street Station on a charge of felonious assault late last night, after an accident at Broadway and 146th Street in which Mary Glassbutt, 7 years old, of 2,515 Amsterdam Avenue suffered a fracture of the left arm, when she was thrown from the side car of a motor cycle, which was struck by an automobile. George Cleppert of 1,528 Amsterdam Avenue, the driver of the motorcycle, who was badly bruised, said that the driver of the machine had hastened away after the accident. Later, however, Leo Singer, a vaudeville manager, for whom Fuetterer was driving, asked the police to look for two lost automobile tires. Singer identified two tires which were picked up near the scene of the accident as those lost from his car, but denied that his machine had been in an accident. The chauffeur made similar denials.

John Anuesia, 15 years old, of 162 West Twenty-eighth Street, was taken to the Children's Society last night after he was arrested for the theft of an automobile belonging to James Jordan, a court repoter of 115 West Tenth Street. The boy drove the stolen machine into Central Park, and there was in a collision with a taxicab.

Lester Scheeffer, twelve years old, 53 West 106th Street, was struck by an automobile in front of 67 St. Nicholas Avenue. He was attended at his home for lacerations of the face and head.

Margaret Hopson, fourteen, was knocked down by an automobile in front of her home, 108 East 116th Street. She suffered lacerations of the scalp.

Miss Lillian Byrne, 501 west Eighty-seventh Street, suffered injuries when she was knocked down at Central Park West and Eighty-seventh Street by an automobile owned and operated by Carl Frohlich, 200 Ninth Avenue. Frohlich took her to Roosevelt Hospital. Afterward she went home.

Making right-hand men

If you head a business, you have, or wish you had, some right-hand men; they're not easy to find. They're so hard to find that one business man quit looking for them; he makes them. He is Charles H. MacDowell, President of the Armour Fertilizer Works. You can read about it in SYSTEM for June, ready on the news-stands today.

He tells how P. D. Armour made him a right-hand man; reproduces a letter with the potent endorsement "OK P.D.A." on it, that started the whole thing. Mr. MacDowell makes men so very right hand, that they're making their own right-hand men.

What you run into in exporting

Export business seems likely to be a growing factor in American trade. W. C. Teagle, President of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, knows a good deal about it. He tells some of it in June SYSTEM.

The Story that Service Records Tell about the

CHALMERS

Hot Spot and Ram's-horn

A business man walked into a Chalmers store: "If you will let me examine the service records of the Chalmers for the last three years I will tell you whether or not I will buy a car from you."

The records were laid before him. He bought a Chalmers. Three years ago Hot Spot and Ram's-horn were first used in a Chalmers.

In that period replacements per car per year have become a remarkably small item.

For Hot Spot and Ram's-horn, by their ingenious ways of preparing the inferior "gas" of the day for combustion, have built up a series of virtues:

1—They get more power out of low grade "gas."

2—They get smoother power.

3—They prevent the frequent fouling of spark plugs.

4—They prevent raw "gas" from trickling down past the pistons into the crankcase. (Thus the lubricating oil is not thinned out and such troubles as burned bearings and scored cylinders are notably absent.)

5—They reduce vibration. Not only does a Chalmers run smoothly, but this smoothness is a continuous performance.

Hence repairs are small and replacements infrequent.

The service records denote a diminishing influence in Chalmers cost, and in the meantime the obvious result has been increased impetus to sales.

That is but another reason for that daily growing impression that Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

DELEGATES SAIL FOR COMMERCE MEETING

International Chamber to Hold Important Session in Paris in June.

TO CO-ORDINATE BUSINESS

Representatives of Many Countries Will Take Part in the Conference.

The American members of the Organization Committee for the International Chamber of Commerce sailed for Paris on May 9. They are:

A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the Board of the Standard Oil Company, and member of the National Foreign Trade Council, New York, Chairman; S. C. Mead, Secretary of the Merchants' Association of New York, Vice Chairman and Secretary; Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co.; Edward A. Filene, President of William Filene's Sons Company, Boston; Richard S. Hawes, President of the American Bankers' Association, St. Louis, and John H. Fahey of Boston, formerly President of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

This delegation will meet similar delegations appointed by Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy, to agree upon a Constitution for the proposed Chamber. The new chamber will hold its first meeting early in June. President William Fellowes Morgan will go to Paris for the purpose of attending that meeting with Mr. Mead on behalf of the Merchants' Association.

The creation of the International Chamber was agreed upon at the International Trade Conference in Atlantic City last October, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. It is proposed that the members of the International Chamber shall meet every two years, and that the Chamber shall take the place of the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce and Commercial Organizations, which held two meetings before the outbreak of the war.

A permanent bureau will be established to maintain contacts between sessions and to gather authoritative statistics. In discussing this bureau, Mr. Fahey, just before sailing, said:

"The permanent bureau will provide means of following up the results secured from biennial sessions of the chamber, the decisions business men arrive at as to legislation needed in their various countries to provide necessary progress. There will be, out of this development, machinery constantly at work the year around. As a result of the disturbed conditions following the war, there is hardly a country whose statistical information is worth the paper it is written on—our own, as well as the rest.

"All their Government bureaus and institutions have been affected by the war, thousands and thousands of new employes are still months and months behind in their work, and necessary information on which business men must do their reckoning is not available. It is not brought up to date and, as a matter of fact, as conditions exist between one nation and another, is co-ordinated in no intelligent fashion."

While the committee is meeting in Paris, delegates from Great Britain, Belgium, China, Japan, Italy, Greece, Portugal, Brazil, Finland, Poland, Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Jugoslovakia will meet in Paris for the International Parliamentary Conference of Commerce, which was created upon the initiative of Great Britain before the outbreak of the war. It held its first meeting in Brussels in 1914, and it has met since then in Paris, London or Brussels each year, excepting in 1915. This conference will discuss a large number of important international questions.

The United States was invited to send representatives to the conference, but it has not replied to the invitation.

In Step With A Wonderful Industry

THE tremendous strides which have been made in the Automotive Industry are due not only to the manufacturers of cars, but, in a very great measure to the builders of the units which go into the cars.

The C. R. Wilson Body Company, pioneer body builders, have kept up with this almost superhuman progress for a period of twenty-five years.

The demand for Wilson-Built bodies has been so great that we have doubled our factory space. We now have 1,000,000 feet of floor space, completely equipped. Such tremendous expansion enables us to deliver more than 1,500 bodies every day.

Thus, we are setting a pace that will help to make it possible for manufacturers of automobile bodies to keep in step with this wonderful industry.

Director Sherley of Division of Finance of Federal Administration Makes His Report.

TROUBLES WITH CONGRESS

Refusal of Railroads to Accept at Once Equipment They Now Need Pointed Out.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—A comprehensive account of the financing of the United States Railroad Administration, a gigantic task involving billions of dollars, is given in the report of Swagar Sherley, Director of the Division of Finance, made public today by the Director General of Railroads. Mr. Sherley sketches the history of the financing of the railroads from the beginning of Federal control on Jan. 1, 1918, to April 7, 1919, when he became Director of the division, succeeding John Skelton Williams, and reports in detail upon the period from that time to date.

The estimated balance sheet of the Railroad Administration at the conclusion of Federal control on Feb. 29, 1920, after twenty-six months of Government operation of the railroads, carried totals of $4,493,973,125, this including all items of debit and credit. Due to the practical inability of the railroad corporations to float bonds or borrow money during and immediately after the war, the Government itself was obliged to advance nearly all money needed for capital expenditures and other purposes. At the end of Federal control, Mr. Shirley's report shows, there was due to the carriers in unpaid compensation and other large items, including all gross interest accruals, $1,476,828,805.60, while there was due from the carriers to the Railroad Administration, including similar interest accruals, $1,677,243,077. Of the amount due from the carriers it is estimated that $815,879,145 properly may be used under the terms of the Transportation act of 1920 as an immediate offset against the amount due by the Government to the carriers.

Congress appropriated for the Federal control of transportation systems $1,250,000,000, and the Transportation act of 1920, under which the properties were returned to private control, carried an additional $300,000,000.

A table from Mr. Sherley's report shows the loss sustained by the Government in the estimated excess of operating expenses and rentals over operating revenues as $900,478,756.56.

"The operation of the roads by the Government for the year 1918, together with expenses incident to the waterway operations of the Government, resulted in a deficit for the year of approximately $238,000,000," says Mr. Sherley's report. "On Jan. 1, 1919, there was to the credit of the Railroad Administration a total of $78,188,531.09, exclusive of the working funds with Federal Treasurers. There had accrued as compensation due the railroads a total of approximately $945,617,948, and there had been paid to them either in the form of loans or direct payment on account of compensation the sum of $375,475,412. During the first several months of Federal control, and prior to the making of direct payments from the Central Administration at Washington to the carriers, their fixed charges were largely met by the use of cash in the field treasuries, such payments being charged to the carriers on open account. While the balance of accrued compensation of $569,542,436 was not all due, because of the payments just mentioned and because a considerable portion was properly applicable to reimburse the Railroad Administration for expenditures in the nature of additions and betterments made to the roads, yet a large sum was payable.

"There were outstanding vouchers due for equipment ordered for the railroads amounting to $3,174,560, and, because of the need to take from the Federal Treasurers of the various roads sums to enable the Director General to make such payments as had been made on account of compensation for additions and betterments, there was a large number of unpaid bills for materials and supplies furnished the roads. In every instance, however, there had been furnished the railroad companies enough moneys, either by loan or payments, to enable them with their other resources to meet all fixed charges, proper corporate expenses and dividends declared and approved by the Director General. Such aid had also been given the railroad companies as to enable them to take care of all maturities occurring during the year 1918 upon reasonable terms, considering the financial conditions existing in the country at the time. It was clearly apparent, however, that additional appropriations would have to be made by the Congress in order to enable the Railroad Administration properly to carry forward Federal control of the railroads and provide the additions and betterments needed if the roads were to perform their full duty to the public and be enabled to pay the sums necessary to enable the various carrier companies to meet their obligations to their bond and stock holders. Accordingly there was submitted upon Jan. 24, 1919, by the Director General of Railroads to the Congress an estimate for an additional appropriation in the sum of $750,000,000. This appropriation was passed by the House, but failed to pass the Senate. * * *

"The failure of the appropriation asked for presented, therefore, a very acute situation and required drastic steps to be taken. One of the first methods adopted was to get the War Department to pay to the Railroad Administration $100,000,000 on account of services performed by the Railroad Administration for the War Department, but which had not been vouchered. It was perfectly apparent that there was at least $100,000,000 of indebtedness from the War Department to the Railroad Administration, and in order to relieve the latter of the embarrassing situation which confronted it, without waiting for the vouchers to come in due course, the War Department paid on account the sum stated. Subsequently, as the vouchers came in and were audited, the War Department took and was given credit on account of the sum thus advanced. $10,000,000 was similarly obtained from the Navy Department; $50,000,000 was borrowed from the War Finance Corporation, pledging with them certain collateral that the Railroad Administration had, the largest item of the collateral being the note, with the collateral that went with it, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company, for something over $40,000,000.

"By these methods a total of $160,000,000 was added to the $14,500,000 that still remained in the central treasury. * * *

"During the Summer and early Fall (1919) the earnings of the roads sufficiently improved to warrant the hope that no further deficits would be incurred, but the situation that looked so very promising in August and September shortly thereafter was greatly affected by the strike of two chief factors, one of which had an indirect effect, and the other a very direct effect. The steel strike affected the earnings of the Railroad Administration by slackening business. The uncertainty that existed in the country as to what might be the development growing out of it served to affect traffic, which was immediately reflected in the earnings of the roads. The coal strike had a very direct effect in this regard, as well as increasing greatly the cost of operation during the remainder of Federal control. Earnings fell off very materially and the deficit in operation from month to month grew in volume. The estimate of $1,200,000,000, which was presented to Congress in May, 1919, though predicated upon the belief that there would be no further deficit incurred through operation of the railroads, as previously stated, was not allowed in its entirety, and the $750,000,000 that Congress voted, together with the reduced earnings from operations, resulted in the Railroad Administration being at all times restricted in the amount of moneys available for capital expenditures, for the payment of its operating obligations and compensation to the carriers.

"The failure of the Congress to appropriate monies requested in the latter part of January, 1919, prevented any large undertakings in the way of additions and betterments during the first quarter of the year and the reduction by $450,000,000 of the amount requested of the Congress at the special session, with the limited funds being received from operations, together with almost complete inability of the carriers to pay for any additions and betterments, made necessary the elimination of all projects for capital expenditures not of the most necessary and pressing character. The Director of the Division of Finance cooperated most intimately with the Director of Capital Expenditures in carrying out this necessary policy of economy of expenditure. The details of such expenditures are set out in this report. Exclusive of allocated equipment, such expenditures for the year 1919 and January and February, 1920, amounted to a total of approximately $419,821,000.

"In 1918 there were ordered 100,000 freight cars and 1,930 locomotives, and in the early part of 1919 there was an additional order of 600 locomotives, the estimated cost of all the equipment being $402,000,000. This equipment was allocated from time to time to various railroads, according to the estimate of their need for such equipment. While some of the roads early accepted the allocation of this equipment, many very strongly protested against the allocation. They based their objections on two grounds. One was that the cost was excessive and represented a war cost that the Government should bear, and the other was that they did not need the equipment that was being purchased, and some roads protested that they did not need the type that had been ordered by the Railroad Administration insisted that the cost was not excessive, and that the quantities ordered were, if anything, inadequate to the need, and that it was the duty of the railroads to supply themselves with the equipment necessary to perform their services as public carriers. Unfortunately, these views were accepted by only a limited number of the railroads in the first instance, and it was not until late in the year 1919 and after arrangements had been made for the carrying by the Government for the carriers of the cost of the equipment, that all of the equipment was accepted by the roads."

SAYS RAILROADS ARE 'SICK.'

Percy A. Rockefeller Asserts Money Is Nourishment They Need.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Percy A. Rockefeller, interviewed while in Chicago today on a business trip, said that the only way to handle the country's railroad situation is to look at it as a business proposition and "give this sick industry the nourishment it needs—money."

"An efficient trainman, shopman or yardman," he said, "will not remain in the railroad business at $9 a day when he can step across the street, one might say, and get $10 a day in the automobile or some other industry. It is the same with the officials and executives.

"The investing public will not put money into railroad stocks when they can make more in other things. Then we have these three things—the loss of trained men, loss of officers, and loss of resources of the investing public—all being drained away from the railroads.

"The only thing to do is to give these men more money. Wages, salaries and profits to the investors must be made worth while. Money must be put back into the railroad business to lift it up to efficiency. The only way this can be done, of course, is through more elastic rates.

"I consider the Cummins bill the best piece of railroad legislation that has been on the statute books in fifteen years. Now what is needed is the wisdom to operate under that law."

MAYOR CALKINS FOR HOOVER

Head of Jersey League Says He Is Best Qualified.

Mayor Leighton Calkins of Plainfield, President of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities, came out for Herbert Hoover for the Republican nomination for President yesterday. Mayor Calkins said that he had originally favored General Leonard Wood as a man who had performed incalculable service for his country during the war and by his advocacy of preparedness and the formation of a national spirit. He said he considered Governor Lowden of Illinois, Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts and Governor Allen of Kansas excellent candidates, and added:

"I would like to make people see that Hoover is the best qualified of all the candidates. It seems to me that his fitness is a composite fitness. It includes Lowden's strength as an executive determined to conduct public affairs on business principles. He has the courage of Governors Allen and Coolidge to act promptly for the public in great emergencies. Like General Wood, he rendered incalculable service to his country during the war, though along different lines. But in the administration of large affairs, in business talent, in knowledge of men, in the ability to select the right man for the right job, his experience has been as wide or wider than any of them."

TO ROUND UP 3,000 DRAFTDODGERS HERE

Attorney General Authorizes Slacker Hunt in Brooklyn, Richmond and Queens.

WILL HAVE SPEEDY TRIALS

Want Delinquents Under First Call Before Statute of Limitations Sets Bar Next Month.

Instructions for the round-up this week of 3,000 alleged draft dodgers in Staten Island, Brooklyn and Long Island have come from Attorney General Palmer, United States District Attorney Leroy W. Ross of Brooklyn announced last night. Mr. Ross said speed would be necessary in prosecuting any large number of evaders of the first draft, because within another month they will be immune under the statute of limitations.

About 3,000 men on Long Island and Staten Island who registered for the draft failed to submit to physical examination, fill out questionnaires or did not obey orders directing them to report at the cantonments for duty. They are liable to prosecution under the Selective Service act for misdemeanor, punishable by one year's imprisonment and a fine of $500, or both.

It is admitted by the Federal authorities in Brooklyn that many of the 3,000 men are carried on the lists as draft evaders because they failed to notify their local exemption boards that they were in the service already when their numbers were called. Secretary Baker several months ago estimated 250,000 men throughout the country were listed as draft evaders and that 171,000 had no valid excuse for not appearing when called.

Mr. Ross said that he intended proceeding first against those who would be immune under the limitations statute within a month. United States Marshal James M. Power and his deputies will have their lists completed before the end of the week, Mr. Ross said.

While 2,000 cases would clog the Federal courts here, some would come under military law and could be tried by court-martial. This precedent was set in the Bergdoll case, Mr. Ross said, when Judge Learned Hand denied the motion to take the case out of the military tribunal for trial in the Federal District Court, despite the fact that Bergdoll never had served a day in the army.

In that case failure to report for duty after receiving notice of induction made Bergdoll liable to military trial for desertion. Failure to return a questionnaire or report for physical examination, Mr. Ross said, could be tried only in civil courts, and that failure to entrain for camp could be deemed either a civil offense or desertion.

The Market Place of the Newspaper

NEVER a swarming mart in Bagdad, nor freighted ship home bound for Venice, assembled the store of merchandise that a single issue of the present-day newspaper spreads before the general need and purse.

Into the market place of the advertising columns pour the varied offerings of a world of commerce—the wheat that is the staff of life, jewels riven from African clay and turned with the unhurried craftsmanship of London lapidaries, hides from the Argentine, steel from Pittsburgh, the fruits of the South and the West, the wools of Kashmir and the silks of Samarkand.

INTO this vast bazaar, too, come needs and whims, the fancied likes and the wants that are stark with reality. Some, the few, find here the satisfaction of a fine discrimination. The many read in the spirit of the actual market place, discovering the bargains that to thrift spell opportunity.

Here, too, the talent or the skill that stamps a special mastery advertises itself to a demand that is equally urgent in its quest of service, until the columns teem with the life and spirit of our daily trade.

AIDED by advertising, masses of labor move to employment without loss of labor's most precious element of time. An empire's crops flow swiftly to a market advised of their coming. Prospect of increase attracts new capital toward new-found fields for profit. Science advances with its latest wonders, assured of welcome from a general mind and taste largely educated through advertising.

Some of this advertising outreaches in news value the contents of the news columns. Through it the readers learn of industry's new projects and products, its policies, and its attitude toward workers and public.

AND this advertising exalts ideals. It encourages all the arts, especially those through which it best expresses its own purposes and appeals. It establishes honest dealing as the only foundation for business success.

Now advertising begins to lay even larger worlds under tribute. The voice of humanity is speaking in the market place. The Red Cross recites the quality of mercy; the Orders affirm men's brotherhood; the Church expands its ministry; the Nation itself through these columns merchandises its promise and calls its manhood to the colors—and our market place is become a social force of incomparable power and worth and beauty.

TO such a force as this, the newspaper owes a responsibility as acute and as deep as its fealty to news or editorials. The newspaper owes to the advertiser, to the public, and to the advertisement itelf, the full effectiveness of an able, clean and honest medium of expression.

To respect the worth of advertising, to join in its every effort toward a sounder and more generous rule of business conduct, to give it attractive presentation, and, above all, to safeguard its right to clean associations as well as money success, has been THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL'S responsible service to advertising in the business field of the American Northwest.

A Stitch in Time

It is difficult for the individual to recognize that what affects the country at large affects him sooner or later in proportionate degree.

Banking institutions, as well as the Federal Reserve Banks, aided by the daily newspapers, have continuously urged the capital and credit needs of the country. They have dwelt particularly upon the overstrain, and the imperative necessity of increasing the store of credit by restricting its use; they have pointed out that extravagance and expansion must be curbed; numerous other factors of the present situation have been emphasized; and, above all, the need of creating new capital by increased productivity.

It is hard, however, to reach the public—having eyes they see not, and having ears they hear not. In a general and impersonal way they recognize the necessity for deflation, inevitable reduction of prices, and ultimate liquidation both of labor and goods, but they are loath to act, each for himself. If too occupied with his own affairs or unable to master the technical details of the problems of the situation, the Harriman National Bank recommends that the facts be accepted as they are presented by recognized authorities, and that each govern himself accordingly.

It is generally agreed that the peak of prices has been reached. A sound and wholesome deflation can be accomplished, provided that we restrict our demands upon the limited capital of the country, eliminate strikes and increase our productive activities, each of us doing his share, and practice a sane economy.

Commercially and industrially, the country is in a sound position. We remind our customers that what is known and prepared for should not surprise us.

MEXICO'S EVIL TRADITION.

CARRANZA'S murder, which both in fact and in manner now seems to be verified, is but the latest entry in a long and bloody chronicle. From the earliest days of Mexican independence the tradition of violence has been established. Presidents driven out or assassinated—this has been the evil and ingrained rule. It could be started by such names as LERDO DE TEJADA, COMONFORT, MADERO, HUERTA, and now CARRANZA. And through it all there have been such pretenses of legality, such flourishes of patriotism, such a parade of fantastic notions of honor! These latter are freshly illustrated in the exchange of curious telegrams between OBREGON and the various Generals, headed by HARRIAGAN, who are bitterly reproachful on account of the way in which CARRANZA was done to death, but at once hasten to place their swords at the disposal of the man whom they hold [illegible]. RICHARD HARDING DAVIS never imagined anything more like a comic opera, except that this one is shot through with black tragedy.

For OBREGON it is in fairness to be said that he appears to have sincerely desired that CARRANZA'S life be spared. The hope was to make this revolution as nearly as possible bloodless. If the President had been willing to make a dash for Europe as precipitately as PORFIRIO DIAZ did, it is probable that few obstacles would have been placed in his way. But CARRANZA'S pride and obstinacy clung to him too long, and he was apparently made the victim of gross treachery. But this, too, is, unhappily, in the Mexican tradition. A fallen or failing statesman is nowhere so readily abandoned as in Mexico. He walks, and must know that he walks, amid treasons, stratagems and spoils. It is only a question of when and how the blood-stained finale shall be written.

In Mexico the political effect of CARRANZA'S taking off will probably be neither deep nor lasting. The dead pass with uncommon speed in Mexican public life. Nothing can now stay, seemingly, the rapid march of the Obregon revolution to complete triumph. A decent respect to the opinion of Mexicans and of the outside world will be paid by going through the forms of an inquiry into the circumstances of CARRANZA'S death. The last honors will be accorded him with every mark of private and official sympathy. Then will swiftly follow the procedure of placing in power, under an ingenious color of organic law, what will call itself a popular Government, but what will be in reality a military oligarchy.

It may be that this is the best form of rule that we can hope for in Mexico, for the time being. It cannot last indefinitely. A permanent lurch back into Porfirian absolutism must be known even by OBREGON and GONZALES to be at present impossible. Their first task is to restore order; to make life and property safe; to assure the peon that he can work the soil without being robbed of his crops, now by one set of men in uniform, now by another; to safeguard the peaceful and profitable development of Mexico's rich natural resources. After all that may come political changes, cautiously introduced.

The most pressing duty, however, of the new de facto Government in Mexico—also its heaviest labor—must be to put a new spirit and better methods into the conduct of its international relations. Here is a long tale of irregularity and of mischief to correct. Particularly toward the United States must there be a changed attitude. OBREGON appears to be partly aware of the nature of the problem facing him. He speaks American fair. He guarantees every right which foreigners are entitled to claim in Mexico. But it is necessary that proof go with promises. The Mexican proverb itself declares that deeds are love, not fine professions. And the OBREGON régime begins with such a bad omen in the killing of CARRANZA that peculiar wariness and especial propriety must mark the course of the new Government if it is to win confidence abroad. The arrears of obligation to the United States alone are something formidable. To add new items to them, to permit further grievances to arise, would be fatal. Americans will hope that OBREGON may prove level with his grave responsibilities. But it cannot be said that his work is well begun by wading through slaughter to a Presidency.

HOKE SMITH.

Senator HOKE SMITH has a curious whimsicality in his choice of a time to speak and a time to keep silence. Not long ago he was journeying over Georgia, proclaiming with all the weight of his majestic presence and voice that he was a good friend of Mr. WILSON and of the principle of the League of Nations; and that anybody who said he wasn't—and such anybodies were numerous—lied.

Undoubtedly he got many votes in the State primary on the strength of this emphatic assertion of his loyalty to the Administration and the principle of the League.

At the State Convention a strong personal appeal was made to Mr. SMITH'S delegates "not to sit silently" by and see a Democratic Administration assassinated by a Georgia Democratic Convention. * * * Is there not even one of you Smith delegates who will speak out now and say that he [SMITH] meant what he said on the stump, when he was seeking votes? There was not one. Silence deep as death among the Smith men. That eminent conservative, Mr. TOM WATSON, was the author of the majority resolution attacking the Administration. "It is mine. Its avowed purpose is to criticise the Administration." Where was the gentleman who so insisted on his friendliness to that Administration? "Only three blocks away," according to The Atlanta Constitution; millions of miles away from his professed feelings a few weeks before.

Down went the resolution indorsing and approving "the principles embodied in the League of Nations." So Mr. HOKE SMITH'S delegates calmly repudiated twice the Mr. HOKE SMITH of the stump. This anecdote teaches us that opinions useful to get votes may be thrown away by a prudent statesman after he has got the votes, and that the silence of an agile orator may be more significant than his speech.

FOR CAMPAIGN USE.

"The bill is designed primarily as a Republican campaign proposition." The quotation is from the report of Representative RAINEY, the ranking Democratic member of the House Ways and Means Committee. He may be forgiven for using these hard words if it be remembered that his personal "campaign proposition" is an 80 per cent. retroactive tax on war profits in time of peace and that it had an even more hard-hearted reception from the Republicans. With the aid of minority Democrats the committee was able to report its own bonus plan of retroactive taxation on capital stock issues, but in the House itself there was an exactly opposite alliance of bolting Republicans with minority Democrats against the bonus bill. There are said to be sixty anti-bonus Republicans, and perhaps more are opposed to the taxes without which the bonus scheme cannot be born.

The Democrats would not be politicians if they did not welcome this invitation to embarrass their opponents on their "campaign proposition," but there are obstacles, pointed out by the vigilant Representative RAINEY. His plan was meant for instant enactment, but was adjudged not worthy of even being considered. Listen, then, to his natural views on the substitute plan:

> There is not the slightest intention of trying to pass the bill through the Senate at this session of Congress. We consider this is acting in bad faith with the soldiers' organizations which requested this legislation.

The plan to put anything through was blocked by the announced intention of the Democrats to advocate an 80 per cent. profits tax, to make political capital, and of the Republican majority of the House to disapprove the rejection of the war profits tax by the Republican committeemen, because it made the bonus bill dangerous to take into the campaign. At the other end of the Capitol the Senate perceives that all the House "campaign propositions" are "loaded"; that they are about equally dangerous at the breech and the muzzle. The Senate "Steering Committee" is in waters as deep as the House Republican caucus. The charge is that the Steering Committee is preventing the Senate from baiting its "campaign propositions" with the titbits which the country is clamoring for. Nothing is said about the bonus bait in the Senate. The Senate no more expects the House to pass its campaign measures than the House expects the Senate to do the same thing.

Confident expectation of vetoes has carried abhorrent propositions through Congress before now. That expectation is strengthened by Secretary Houston's condemnation of the bonus bill, from whatever source the taxes to support it may be derived. Republicans and Democrats are both off the reservation in the Senate as in the House, and the condition of the public business thus disclosed is in itself a "campaign proposition" which both parties have to answer for.

WORK FOR THE LEAGUE.

The Bolshevist attack on Persia, which by Mr. TCHITCHERIN'S own admission follows closely on a Persian note offering friendly relations, but relations based on respect by the Russians of Persian independence and territorial integrity, calls for action by the League of Nations if anything does in present conditions. Lord ROBERT CECIL was anxious that the League should stop the Polish advance in Russia, which was an incident in a war of long standing, and British critics wonder why he says nothing about this deliberate beginning of a new war by the Bolsheviki. Lord ROBERT seems to think that the League has immense power due to the need of Russia and Poland for economic relations with Western Europe. But how would he have it exercised? Russia has no economic relations with Western Europe, and is getting on, though badly enough, without them. The Poles have all the intercourse with Western Europe that the disorganized state of Polish industrial life and German obstruction at Danzig will permit. Any interference, then, would operate in only one direction. The League could coerce Poland, but not Russia.

If the rest of Europe were peaceful and at work, the threat of prolonged non-intercourse might keep the Bolsheviki away from Persia, but as things are they can be stopped only by military action. If the Powers of the League will not do this individually in their own interest, it is hardly likely that they will do so as a group. The fact is that effective interference in such a case as this would be possible only if the League were really the superstate that some of our timid Republican friends profess to think it is. Whether or not that kind of League is desirable may be matter of dispute, but it was plain to all men before the Peace Conference that it could not be erected. The League as organized furnished machinery which would have imposed a great and probably effective impediment to any Power which attempted to disturb a state of general peace such as existed early in 1914, but the essence of this impediment lay in the proclamation of a world danger, the giving to every Power a sense of the menace to its own interests and the information as to the questions at issue, which in the case of the World War States outside the immediate danger zone acquired only after much delay and the bedevilments of interested propaganda.

The probabilities were that any State contemplating war would be discouraged by the setting of general opinion and the arousing of general interest against a disturbance of the peace. If it persisted, there remained the economic blockade, and if this were ineffective, military force would be used only by such nations as wanted to use it—that is, by those who thought the issue was worth a war. As things are today, with a world still in disorder because of obstacles to united action, it may be doubted if the League could effectually prevent wars except between the smallest States; economic conditions have created what almost amounts to a blockade of most nations, and the feeling of common interest is not keen enough to bring nations to military action unless their own safety is visibly threatened. Ten years from now things will be different, we may hope; at present Lord ROBERT, with the best intentions, would only smash the League machinery by applying it to an impossible task, and on the wrong side.

BILLBOARD AND ART.

For Mr. TOM NOKES to stigmatize Mr. JOSEPH PENNELL'S remarks on billboard advertising as "dishonesty and untruth" was as undiscriminating as it was lacking in debating address. If he had said "exaggeration," a fruitful discussion might have ensued, ending with a tribute to the unfailing brilliancy of Mr. PENNELL'S occasional dicta—a brilliancy which, like their destructive suddenness, suggests chain lightning.

It is true that from New York to San Francisco fair landscapes are disfigured and many a bosky dell made ugly by signboards advertising humdrum things in colors frequently garish. That the Automobile Club of England threatened to boycott a firm that shut out from the tourists' eyes view after view of sylvan loveliness with advertisements of its wares is a fact of keen interest, as also that a law was passed which made such advertising an offense. In that we have lagged behind in such matters, we may fairly be called "barbarians." But when Mr. PENNELL exhorts us "to "boycott every one advertising on a "billboard" he introduces matter for a closer scrutiny than is possible in the glare of chain lightning.

There is more in the world than landscape and architecture, beautiful though they are at their best. The interest of human life has also to be considered, the ceaseless, absorbing drama of human change. If Mr. PENNELL had lived in ancient Pompeii, he would doubtless have fulminated against the politicians who advertised their candidacy upon the street walls and the urchins who scribbled their idle thoughts upon the pavement. Yet as a visitor to the excavated ruins he doubtless thrilled like others at this touch of a vanished life—a touch so intimate and so universal. Why should he fall into a rage, and drag Mr. NOKES with him, over the thumb prints of this passing day and hour? It was Mr. PENNELL who first divined the picturesqueness of our skyscraper cities, which to so many good folk had been anathema. Can he not also see that there is character in advertising—yes, even of cigars and chewing gum? Ex pede Herculem! Given the electric signs of Times Square, a really dramatic imagination could construct all our habits as we live. Advertising is news; it is character; it is life. Like so much in this busy world, what it needs is not suppression but a sympathetic and intelligent regulation.

AN EXAMPLE FOR EUROPE.

No one who came into contact with any of the widespread activities which led up to the successful accomplishment of the Czechoslovak revolution could fail to be impressed with the patriotism, foresight and intelligence with which that revolution was conducted. The Czechs displayed unmistakably the qualities of a great people, and their brief existence as an independent State has shown so far an equally impressive blending of good sense and forbearance with patriotism and industry, which could profitably serve as a model to other peoples in Europe who have allowed nationalistic fervor to carry them somewhat too far. The Constitution lately adopted is an admirable document, and not least so in its provisions for safeguarding the rights of racial minorities.

Almost a fourth of the population of the Czechoslovak Republic is German, and there are besides some hundreds of thousands of Magyars and other minority races. From the beginning the question of the treatment of these minorities, hitherto implacable enemies and often hard overlords of Czechs and Slovaks, raised much difficulty. A party headed by Dr. KRAMARZH, the first Premier, held that the Germans must be enemies of the Czechs and of their republic and that they could be kept in check only by the strong hand. President MASARYK headed the Moderate Party, which gained the ascendency. The language of the majority is ordinarily that of government, but along with this necessary provision there is full "cultural autonomy." The Constitution accords full civil and political rights and equal opportunity to hold public office to all citizens, regardless of race, religion or language; in business, religion, publications and public meetings any language may be used; and any religion and any language may be employed in private schools.

In cities and districts where there is "a considerable fraction"—thus the Constitution; a law has set it at 20 per cent.—of citizens who do not use the Czechoslovak language, the children of such citizens are to be taught in the public schools in their own language, though all pupils may be compelled to learn the Czechoslovak language in addition to their own. And, above all, in such districts public funds for educational, religious or charitable works are to be divided proportionately among all races.

Provisions such as these would make infinite trouble in a country where the minorities are recent immigrants, but for a State where rival races have lived side by side for centuries they seem the best assurance that all citizens will feel that the State represents their interests and will not infringe upon their cherished rights. So far the policy has been justified by success. The 300 members of the first National Assembly, elected last month, included 72 Germans and 10 Magyars; but they vote in the Assembly not as national units, but upon the same party lines as the Czechoslovaks. Moreover, recently returned travelers say that the Germans at least are becoming reconciled and that within the next few months it is possible that Germans will have seats in the Ministry.

COURIERS OF THE AIR.

A former army aviator was arrested at Los Angeles not long since for disorderly conduct in looping the loop over a public square. On the same day two aviators were arrested in New Jersey for shooting wild geese in the closed season from a plane. These incidents of "joy riding" in the air are worthy of notice as showing how much at home man has become in the element through which since the dawn of time until less than twenty years ago only the birds winged their way. When we turn to the use of the airplane for transportation in the carrying on of business we have the proof of stability and stanchness that explain how liberties can be taken with it by daring aviators.

When an attempt was made to substitute the airplane for the mail car there was a solemn wagging of heads: in fine weather all might go well and the letters and express parcels might be delivered on time, but it was ridiculous to suppose that any kind of schedule could be maintained in the Winter season. Well, in one of the most inclement and turbulent of Winters the carriers easily beat the railroads and sometimes triumphed over conditions that delayed the land mail for hours, and even for days. The routes on which the flying was done were laid out between New York and Washington and between New York and Cleveland. J. H. KNIGHT made 106 starts between July 1, 1919, and Feb. 29, 1920, and completed ninety-eight trips, flying altogether 24,020 miles. The weather forced him down seven times and machine trouble—this is particularly to be noted—only once.

Other mail pilots did as well, in some respects better. Thus H. T. LEWIS started ninety times, finished eighty-eight times and was never forced down by weather. But twice something went wrong with the mechanism and he landed. He flew 18,920 miles. Possibly he had better luck in weather than Pilot KNIGHT. MILLER was a good third, with ninety starts and eighty-five trips completed without forced landings. His distance was 19,255 miles. The weather was too much for him on three occasions and twice engine trouble compelled him to make a landing. Altogether twenty pilots carried the mails, six of them during eight months steadily. They all stuck to their work and made meritorious records.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Dryness Far from Unmitigated.

Prohibition as it works in North Carolina has just been made the subject of seemingly careful and impartial investigation by Captain LOUIS GRAVES, himself a son of that State, and in an article contributed to the current issue of The New Republic he presents facts and conclusions that are worthy of consideration by both prohibitionists and their opponents.

That large quantities of "moonshine" whisky are still made and consumed in North Carolina the Captain had no difficulty in discovering. Seizures of stills are numerous, but new ones are easily made, and only two days of operation are required to give the maker a big profit on his investment, for his product sells readily at $20 a gallon and up—usually up. The operators of these secret alcohol factories are themselves not often captured, and, when they are, their punishment is not severe enough to prevent them from resuming business as soon as they recover their liberty. They are not exactly protected by the general population, but neither are they objects of animosity.

The common feeling in regard to them is one of amused toleration, tending toward friendliness, and the officers who enforce, or try to enforce, the law are neither helped nor hindered in the performance of their work.

In short, it is true that "prohibition does not prohibit." In North Carolina, any more than it ever did in Maine or than it does now in New York City. Liquor, such as it is, can be obtained at a price by anybody with the desire for it and the ability to pay the cost, and many have both.

Enforcement Only Deferred.

But though much bad whisky is made and drunk in North Carolina, Captain GRAVES refuses to agree with not a few residents of the State who assured him that the violations of the law were so numerous as to turn prohibition into a farce. His own conclusion, for which he found support even among those who encourage the illicit traffic by buying the product of the hidden stills, is that though for some years to come alcohol will be obtainable and obtained, there will come a time, not many years in the future, when the prohibition law will be, not a farce, but a success, simply because the demand for strong drink will have become so small that its denial will be easy.

One resident of Charlotte who is not now, and probably never will be, an abstainer said to Captain GRAVES: "I'm one of the old-timers who beat the law now and then for their own amusement. But my sons don't know the taste of the stuff, and I hope they never will. All these violations of the prohibition law you hear about don't mean much. It's just a temporary condition. The real wet sentiment in North Carolina is not a drop in the bucket. * * * You can just put this down for sure: When the women, the churches and business are united in any fight, nothing can stand against them."

North Carolina, however, is not the United States, and what is true there is far from necessarily true throughout the whole country. Recent elections in the North have failed to show that women were unanimous for prohibition—that they divided on that question otherwise than do men. On the other hand, anti-prohibitionists who point to Maine as proof that prohibition doesn't and can't prohibit, argue from the special to the general as to the amount of drinking done in that State and forget that between Statewide and nation-wide prohibition there is an essential as well as a large difference.

They Risk Utter Extermination.

Why anybody ever adopted barbering as his life work is a mystery on which the members of the craft either can not or will not throw any light. They seem to be a fairly cheerful lot, however, affable and friendly, and, as observed—and heard—by their clients, not unintelligent. Why, then, have they united here on action that is far more likely to reduce than to increase their incomes?

Were their demands granted, the price of shaves and haircuts would have to rise, but as certainly would the number thereof decrease in far greater ratio. That men can shave themselves is known of all; that there is a limit to what they will pay to be spared the miserable task is also no secret. As for haircutting, that does seem to be beyond satisfactory, or even tolerable, accomplishment by one's self, but quite possible is it for men, like women, to let hair go unshorn, for it was done by the not very remote ancestors of most of us, and it could be done again.

Should the masculine pigtail or "club" become once more the fashion, what would the barbers do then?

Virginia Democrats for Carter Glass.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your editorial today, "The Virginia Democrats," you have one error which I think should be corrected, to wit: That the eight delegates at large were instructed to vote for Mr. Glass. The convention, of which I was a member, being a delegate from this city, indorsed Carter Glass for the Presidency, and instructed the Virginia delegates to vote for him. Virginia will have twenty-four votes in the convention.

NEWSPRINT PRICES.

International Paper Company's Reply to Senator Walsh.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Our attention has been called to an extract from the speech of Senator Walsh of Massachusetts of May 17, printed on the editorial page of THE NEW YORK TIMES on this date.

Senator Walsh, among other things, stated that evidence presented to the Reed committee tended to show "that there are manufacturers producing newsprint paper at a reasonable profit for about 3 cents per pound." You will pardon us if we question the character of the evidence presented, which tended to show the production of newsprint at a reasonable profit at a figure that will strike as incredible and astounding any paper manufacturer who is daily confronted with the problems of inflated and mounting costs of production.

Peeled wood is selling today for $36 a cord delivered at the mill, and there is very little procurable even at that price. As 1 3-10 tons of peeled wood are consumed in the manufacture of one ton of newsprint, it is manifest that the cost of wood alone is three-quarters of the absurd figure given by the Senator from Massachusetts.

In addition to this, the cost of labor alone in the manufacture of a ton of newsprint has advanced from $8.65 in 1915 to $25 a ton at the rate of wages adopted May 1. Wood and labor furnish but two of the elements of cost in the manufacture of newsprint. To these must be added conversion costs, additional furnish, repair material, sales costs and overhead.

As a matter of fact, the publishers of the United States are buying hundreds of thousands of tons of newsprint today at 5 cents per pound and under, and the paper manufacturers of the United States are deserving of commendation for their reasonable selling prices rather than wholesale condemnation on the floor of the Senate or elsewhere from those who get but a distorted view of one angle of the situation and endeavor, through the prism of political ambition, to make a spectrum that defies practical analysis.

Newsprint manufacturers of the United States could dispose of the product of their mills at double the prices they are now receiving. From the highest authority on paper in England comes the information that the Scandinavian mills are quoting English buyers £70, or about $350, a long ton, free on board, cash against documents, for newsprint that is inferior to that manufactured on this continent. The contract price for a part of the product of the English mills for April was 11½ cents, while the Scandinavian newsprint offered for 1921 is 14 cents a pound.

The one distressing feature about the newsprint situation is the temporarily excessive spot market, which is not due to the manufacturers, but to causes too complex to discuss here.

Manufacturers are fighting as a unit against the still rising costs of manufacture. The present scarcity of pulp wood is alarming, and the prices are advancing from month to month. The present very high freight rates on over four tons of material going to the mills for each ton of paper that is shipped out must be advanced in the very near future, and the most conservative estimate of that advance is 30 per cent.

The publishers and the public are entitled to facts rather than to the broad conclusions of perfervid oratory.

Hoover Campaign Expenses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When Hiram Johnson's campaign manager, Meyer Lissner, made his wild charges of political extravagance against the Hoover workers in Southern California during the late primary election, most of the latter folks just laughed, though a few lost their tempers.

Instead of being a "saturnalia of political extravagance" on the part of the Hoover workers, as Lissner called the election, let the writer, who was one of those workers, tell what happened in the small town of South Pasadena, which is exactly what happened throughout the county. The call was made for volunteers about ten days before the election, and within a week of election day we had one or more workers in each precinct, though three of our precincts never had even one systematic representative. The object of the canvass was to inform the voters of the method of voting under the amended primary law, to tell the people where their respective voting places were and to locate the voters who might need automobiles to bring them to the polls. We raised a fund of less than $100, which was used for petty expenses, the chief item of which was the $25 we paid a glee club that sang at our one and only rally. The county organization sent a sample ballot to each voter, gave us some stickers for wind shields and some Hoover buttons. On election day we had a booth and attendant near each polling place where people could make sure that their votes would be prepared so as to be counted. Not a man or woman in our town received a penny for their services in aiding the candidacy of Hoover, either before or after election, and the foregoing is the full tale of our activities and expenditures.

We polled 1,711 votes for Hoover to 519 for Johnson. The Johnson votes were cast by trade unionists almost exclusively. One fact that stood out both during the canvass and at the polls was that those men and women who owned their own homes stood for Hoover.

IS NOT LIFE GOOD?

(After Illness.)

Is not Life good? But best when, long a pawn,
Your sick ears dimly hear contending powers
Playing a game most perilously drawn,
Your soul long trailed by black delirious hours—
Then, suddenly, as when a thick air thins,
Those playing for you make the move that wins!
Is not Life good? At best when given back?
It is as though one should be born again,
Like a transmigrant set upon the track
Of human joys forgot and ways of men!
But in that time of strange rebirth have care—
Least joys can bring the tears all unaware.
Is not Life good? Not less than miracle
When so restored? As though a rose once shed
Should bloom again—as though a magian spell
Through ashes cold a running flame should spread!
Seek you not then, as one a veil would lift:
Who gave me back this sweet, this peerless, gift?
Is not Life good? And best if, in the Spring,
It is returned to you? It is to start
Companioned by so many an eager thing
Who will not let you bear a backward heart.
But, hearing sursum corda everywhere,
Though old and tired your heart, it still must share.

CHEER APPEAL FOR ITALY.

Mass Meeting Approves Denunciation of Post-War Diplomacy.

Attacks on America's post-war diplomacy, and particularly with respect to Italy's claims, were cheered by more than 5,000 persons at the Hippodrome last night at the Italy-America day celebration, commemorating Italy's entrance into the war. Charles E. Hughes, President of the Italy-America Society, presided, and the speakers were Baron Romano Avezzano, the Italian Ambassador; Fiorello H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen; Commander Gianini Caproni, the inventor, and Senator Medill McCormick.

Enthusiasm reached its peak when Mr. LaGuardia declared: "If American diplomacy had fulfilled its mission as well as the American Army the world would be better today.

"I feel it keenly," he continued; "the men who were with me at that front feel it keenly. I remember when the message came from America to Italy. I remember when Point 9 of that message was read, assuring that there would be a readjustment of the confines of Italy according to easily recognizable lines of nationality. And my men risked their lives to take that message beyond the lines and give it to the people of the unredeemed provinces.

"The people of Italy, the same as the American people, accepting any fair and just interpretation, would say that it meant Trentino and Trieste and Istria and—yes, Fiume. And now it is so hard to explain. Today the friendship between Italy and America is just as strong as ever. Perhaps it will be difficult or perhaps impossible to explain what is in the minds of the present Government, but there is no doubt what is in the heart of the American people. And when the American people speak they will say to Italy: 'Adjust your own local affairs. Take back into your family all of your children.'"

Senator McCormick referred to Italy's services in the war. "At the moment when the tide hung in the balance, when, as has been said, a little more and there would have been no war for America, Italy threw herself into the bloody breach. Now, when peace—they call it peace—has come upon the world and when justice is sought to be done, secure frontiers sought to be found, peoples sought to be united, a voice has spoken in the name of the American people to say that Italy and her sons alone among the victorious may not find a frontier which will include all of Italians and which will shut out from Italy all her enemies of a thousand years."

Mr. Hughes declared that Italy had lost in the war more than seven times as many men as the United States. He added:

"There is not the slightest reason why there should ever be trouble between the people of the United States and the people of Italy. There is not even the slightest reason for any temporary misunderstanding. So, entering upon the times when men say peace, and yet there is no peace, still looking upon those times, we hope that we shall be indissolubly bound with the people of Italy in a healthy working together for the benefit of all mankind."

Baron Avezzano spoke briefly of Italy's part in the war. "Both Italy and America," he said, "entered the war not through being attacked but moved by great idealism, because of the essence of freedom and democracy for which this great conquest of the people after centuries of struggle has been again won."

Mme. Eleanore de Cisneros, John Charles Thomas and Nicola Zerola sang. There was instrumental music by an orchestra of sixty pieces.

SEES END OF SPENDING ORGY

New York University Economist Expects Collapse in Two Years.

The present downward trend of prices, in the opinion of Joseph French Johnson, Dean of the School of Commerce of New York University, an authority on financial and general economic matters, is a genuine indication that the orgy of spending is about to end.

"A selling movement is now beginning to take the place of the reckless buying and consumption which has prevailed the last few years," said Dean Johnson yesterday, "and on all sides there are unmistakable signs that prices have started their bumping downward journey. And I certainly hope the slump will not be so rapid as to bring on a panic. I do not see how we can escape a collapse and I look for it within two years.

"Normally, the level of prices should range downward during the present calendar year at first, because the production of goods is increasing; second, because we are likely to lose some of our gold stock, so that our banks will be forced to contract their credits, and, third, because the Federal Reserve Bank is already enforcing the policy of restriction.

"The fact that the banks are behind the movement to lower prices is the best assurance the downward course will continue. The decline of prices will first affect our security market. Then the prices of some of our speculative commodities will suffer. The prices of wholesale commodities will decline here and there. Retail prices will then gradually fall and, last of all, real estate, rents, wages and salaries."

CASTELNAU PRAISES GIFT.

Calls Paris French-American Welfare Centre Aid to Amity.

PARIS, May 23.—General De Castelnau, former Chief of the General Staff, speaking for the Government yesterday at the dedication here of a French-American welfare centre, said the centre would do much to cement the friendship of France and the United States. He added that it would aid in dispelling any feelings which might arise to mar the cordiality existing between the two nations, which had been friends for so many years. The opening of the centre was one of the most important Franco-American gatherings since the signing of the armistice.

The centre, which is located in a beautiful residence in the Avenue Wagram, is the gift of the Catholic War Council in the United States to a committee of prominent American and French women. Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador, was present at the ceremony.

The purpose of the centre is to be of assistance to Americans visiting Paris and bring them into closer contact with things that are French. In the building there is a dormitory for girl students.

AWAITING SHANTUNG REPLY.

Japan Hears China Has Drafted Refusal to Open Negotiations.

TOKIO, May 20 (Associated Press).—Government officials declared today that they had not received a reply from China to Japan's latest invitation to begin negotiations relative to Shantung. Reports from Shanghai state China has drafted a refusal on the ground that public opinion is opposed to negotiations and that China has not signed the Treaty of Versailles. The Foreign Office here, however, says Japan is always ready to begin negotiations and, if they are opened, will withdraw all troops from Shantung as soon as China can organize a force of railway police.

Although the Powers have virtually arranged for the consortium by which Great Britain, the United States, France and Japan would take a dominant role in the financing of the Chinese Government, there is some anxiety lest China may raise objections to its operation. The boycott of Japanese goods in China continues seriously to affect Japan's exports, and, therefore, adversely influences the entire country economic depression in this country.

PLUNKET BEATIFIED AS THRONG ATTENDS

Ceremony Is Celebrated with Great Pomp in St. Peter's.

AMERICAN PRELATES THERE

Many High Church Dignitaries of Ireland Present—British Executed Plunket in 1681.

ROME, May 23 (Associated Press).—Oliver Plunket, the Irish divine who was made first Archbishop of Armagh in 1669 by Pope Clement IX. and who was executed for treason at Tyburn July 1, 1681, was today beatified.

The ceremony took place at 10 o'clock this morning in the Basilica itself instead of the smaller Hall of Beatification, where such rites usually occur.

Cardinal Merry del Val and the officers of the beautification took their places near the high altar as the ceremony began. The mellow light of hundreds of candles and electric lights illuminated the Basilica, and the Summer sunshine streamed down through ancient glass windows, making more glorious the brilliant scene. In the congregation were Count and Countess George Plunket, representing the family of the Archbishop; Sir T. Grattan Esmonde and family, Sean O'Ceallaigh (John O'Kelly), member of the "Irish Parliament" and the Vice Mayor and members of the Municipal Council of Dublin.

It had been originally announced that the mass would be celebrated by Archbishop Edward Ilsley of Birmingham, but Irish Bishops objected to the choice of an Englishman for the service, and Mgr. Pietro Paolo, canon of St. Pensif's Church, officiated. Mgr. Hagan, Rector of the Irish College, delivered to the Pope, in the name of the postulators, a reliquary containing fragments of the bones of the Archbishop. This reliquary was a replica of the shrine which contains the bell of St. Patrick in Dublin.

The Papal bull announcing the beatification was read, the relics were exposed, and a Te Deum was chanted, and the bell of St. Peter's rang out the tidings, being answered by peals from other churches throughout the city.

This afternoon there was even a greater concourse when Pope Benedict, in the midst of gorgeously robed and uniformed dignitaries and attachés of the Vatican, visited the Basilica to beatify the relics. The ceremonies ended with the Eucharistic benediction by the Pontiff.

It was really "Irish Day" at the Vatican, the only thing not reminiscent of Ireland being the weather. Rome is suffering just now from a burst of Summer heat, but the oppressiveness of the day was relieved by a shower.

Cardinal Logue, the octogenarian Primate of all Ireland, headed the list of distinguished ecclesiastics present. With him were Archbishop John M. Harty, Archbishop of Cashel; fifteen Irish Bishops and many Irish abbots and pilgrims. There were also in attendance many prelates from America, among them being Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, Archbishops Edward J. Hanna of San Francisco, and Michael J. Spratt of Kingston, Ontario, and Bishops Michael J. O'Brien of Peterborough, Ontario; Edward A. Le Blanc of St. John, New Brunswick; Daniel M. Gorman of Boise, Idaho; John J. Santwell of Los Angeles, and John P. Carroll of Helena, Mont. Australia was represented by Archbishop Michael Kelly of Sydney.

POPE CONSULTS ON IRELAND.

Hint from Rome of Important Pronouncement in Near Future.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 23.—The presence here of so many members of the Irish Catholic hierarchy and lay notables has led the Pope to hold weighty consultations over the prevailing state of affairs in Ireland.

While his forthcoming speech to the Irish Pilgrims is awaited with great interest, it is expected that a Papal pronouncement of a much more important nature will appear in the near future.

DR. H. P. MENDES RETIRES.

Resigns Active Ministry and Becomes Rabbi Emeritus of Spanish Synagogue.

Dr. H. Pereira Mendes, forty-three years rabbi of the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, Central Park West and Seventieth Street, has resigned his active ministry and will become rabbi emeritus of the congregation. In his new capacity, Dr. Mendes will officiate from time to time, even after his successor, as yet unselected, has been installed.

Dr. Mendes is nearly 70 years old, and his desire to retire was reluctantly acceded to by the synagogue's Board of Trustees several days ago. Dr. Mendes, in his farewell message at yesterday's service, expressed the pleasure at his long pastorate and told of his hopes for the future.

The rabbi emeritus came to the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue in 1877 after three years' ministry in Manchester, England. He was born in England, and comes from a long line of clergymen. He was one of the founders of The American Hebrew, of which he was an editor for several years and launched the movement to honor Sir Moses Montefiore, which resulted in the founding of the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids. He also aided in the organization of the east side school and the Society for Jewish Deaf Mutes.

For nearly sixteen years Dr. Mendes was President of the Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America, was twenty-five years Secretary of the New York Board of Jewish Ministers, and Secretary of the Faculty and Professor of History in the Jewish Theological Seminary. He is a Doctor of Medicine, having been graduated from the Medical School of New York University during the Liberty Year drive Dr. Mendes headed the Rabbis' Loan Committee, an organization representing the Jewish ministers of the city.

'ONE MILLION CLUB' TO WAR ON PRICES

Consumers' Combine Started to Reduce High Cost and Stop Extravagance Here.

SANDWICHES FOR MONDAYS

Wednesdays for Stay at Homes and Fridays Set Aside to Spend a Cent at the Grocer's.

A new offensive against high prices and profiteering is to be started here today. It is to be conducted by the "One Million Club," and is described by Charles Baumgarten, its originator, as "the opening gun of the movement to break the vicious circle of profiteering and extravagance."

Mr. Baumgarten, who is employed as a municipal examiner, a civil service position in the Board of Estimate, said last night he conceived the organization in response to "an insistent demand from all over the country for some concerted action against the profiteer." He admitted his plan had no official backing and no funds, but said he had found one person in every six or eight to whom he had talked ready to enlist in a volunteer army of price fighters, and expressed his confidence that enough volunteer workers could be found to carry it through without dues and without soliciting funds.

This is the plan as he announced it:

"Simply stated, the aim of the One Million Club is to enlist the co-operation of 1,000,000 New Yorkers, both adults and children, and demonstrate through a definite program, as suggested herewith, what the profiteer may eventually expect if manipulation in necessities does not stop. After the club has reached the expected strength needed a week will be selected for the following demonstration:

The Jolly Week.

First Day—Sandwich Monday—Bring your lunch or buy only sandwiches. Cut out expensive lunching and dining this day.

Second Day—Tuesday—Abstain from buying candy, cakes, preserves, ice cream, soda, cigars, cosmetics, &c. Don't get shaved, manicured, &c.

Third Day—At Home Wednesday—Stay home and entertain a party of your friends instead of going to the movies or the theatre or any paid show.

Fourth Day—Thursday—To be determined.

Fifth Day—Penny Friday—Try to buy something for a cent from your grocer or other "merchant" and see what you get. Let him know you are a jolly millionaire.

Sixth Day—Promenade Saturday—Grand promenade of the one million on Saturday afternoon in the shopping districts for the edification of the shopkeepers that specialize in luxuries. Safeguard your pocket with a safety pin.

Seventh Day—Useless Sunday—Help by saving gasoline and tell the garage man. Rather go to church in the morning and some concert or other in the afternoon. Special musical program and lectures to be arranged.

Fourth of July and Victory—A real old-fashioned Fourth celebration and signing of the second Declaration of Independence all over town.

"It is hoped to recruit the full million in four weeks. The campaign opens Tuesday.

Headquarters Established.

"Headquarters of the One Million Club has been established at 318 East Sixty-ninth Street. Telephone Rhinelander 5443—with Mrs. Charles Baumgarten as Secretary and Maurice Sendax, Chief of Staff.

"A board of twenty-four members will direct the activities of the organization. They will represent the following divisions and be augmented as necessary:

1. The city, county and Federal Governments.
2. The churches, &c.
3. The schools, colleges, &c.
4. The press.
5. Organized labor bodies and kindred organizations.
6. Financial and kindred organizations.
7. Civic organizations.

"There will be no dues. The members will simply pledge themselves to co-operate in putting to an end the riot of extravagance and reign of the profiteer, for which they alone are to blame, and which they and only they themselves can abolish—peacefully and forever."

Accompanying the announcement was a recruiting blank, ruled for enlistments, and headed:

"The undersigned enlist to co-operate in the movement of the One Million Club to make further profiteering impossible; to end the existing riotous extravagance, and bring about a return to sanity by pledging themselves to unite in a concerted action tending toward the peaceful, lawful and orderly accomplishment of this purpose."

Mr. Baumgarten said he made his wife Chairman because she was at home in the daytime, and that he was offering his own home as headquarters.

75 Years Old, He Celebrates.

C. H. A. Bjerregaard, Chief Librarian in the main reading room of the New York Public Library, who has seen more than forty years' service in the library, will celebrate his seventy-fifth birthday today. He is the author of a number of books and has been a collaborator on several dictionaries and encyclopedias.

SOCIAL NOTES.

New York.

Mrs. Joseph A. Blake and her children are going to Newport tomorrow to open Sea Edge, the cottage on Ocean Avenue that Dr. Blake has taken for the season. Dr. Blake, who has resumed active surgical practice, will spend week-ends with them when possible.

Mrs. Charles Frederick Hoffman has taken Cobham Hall in Kent, England, for a year, and with her daughter, Miss Marian K. Hoffman is occupying it. Mrs. Hoffman's sister, Miss Alice Preston, has taken a cottage at Newport for the Summer.

Washington.

Speaker and Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett departed from the tradition of their home State of Massachusetts and official custom in Washington by having a large reception from 4 to 7 yesterday at the Country Club. The function marked the return of Mrs. Gillett to society after a period of mourning for her father, William Rice of Springfield, Mass.

Mrs. Henry F. Dimock was at home yesterday afternoon, as also were the Misses Patton. Mrs. Dimock entertained a large dinner party Saturday evening in compliment to former Senator and Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew.

The Minister of Serbia and Mme. Grouitch entertained a supper party at their legation last evening.

Mrs. Colby and Miss Colby have issued cards for an at home this afternoon. Their guests will be limited to the diplomatic circle. Mrs. Colby has discontinued her Wednesday at homes until next season. The Colbys will be entertained at dinner by the Ambassador from Spain and Mme. Riano Tuesday evening.

The Misses Cullen are closing their home in K Street and will join their brother, Judge Cullen, in Brooklyn, later accompanying him to New Brunswick for the Summer.

Captain John H. Gibbons, U. S. N., and Mrs. Gibbons have returned from South America and are with Mrs. Gibbons's mother, Mrs. Richard S. Ely, at the latter's home in N Street, for the remainder of the Spring season.

Miss Jessie Fremont has returned from a season in New York with her sister, Mrs. Harry Hull, and joined her mother, Mrs. John C. Fremont, at the family home in R Street.

Colonel and Mrs. William A. Burton of England, who have occupied a house in New Hampshire Avenue during their Washington stay, have taken a cottage at Southampton, as Colonel Burton's business in this country has not been closed.

Mrs. W. Sinkler Manning and children, who have been in South Carolina for several months with former Governor and Mrs. Manning, will go to Long Island for the Summer, where Mrs. Manning's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brodie, have taken a cottage at Amagansett.

Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., of New York drove over to the Cascades before their departure Saturday.

Mrs. Craig Biddle of Philadelphia arrived Saturday to join her son, George Drexel Biddle.

Among the arrivals from New York are Mr. and Mrs. Edmund A. Lynch, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. C. Walker and the Messrs. Guy Bolton, A. Blair Thaw, G. Palen Snow and Herbert D. Lounsberry.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Janney, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Russell and Mrs. George Spencer Morris are here from Philadelphia.

Judge Benjamin B. Cunningham of Rochester has arrived for a visit of several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Seligman have returned to New York after a sojourn here of several weeks.

Among those departing were Mrs. John Bancker Gribbell of Philadelphia and Mrs. N. Wyckoff Vanderhoef and Mrs. John Clinton Gray of New York.

S. Barton French entertained at luncheon yesterday at Valley View.

Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Andrews of New York and Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Peck of Cincinnati left yesterday by motor for White Sulphur Springs.

Newport.

Governor and Mrs. R. Livingston Beeckman arrived at Land's End yesterday for the Summer.

Reginald C. Vanderbilt returned to New York after a week-end at Sandy Point Farm.

Mrs. George S. Scott of New York has opened Belmead for the Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Grinnell, who are now abroad and will spend this Summer at Dinard, will not return to Newport until the season of 1921.

Captain Cyrus R. Miller, U. S. N., has rented the Frank M. Greenlaw cottage on Bull Street for a year.

Commander Lawrence Stewart, U. S. N., has rented Mrs. Eugene L. Brown's cottage on Friendship Street.

RHEIMS FOLK TO PRAY FOR OUR DEAD MAY 30

Cardinal Lucon Has Pastoral Read Reminding His People of Memorial Day.

TRIBUTE TO AMERICAN ALLIES

Finds in Prompt Response by American Red Cross Reason for Recognition.

RHEIMS, France, May 23 (Associated Press).—Cardinal Lucon, Archbishop of Rheims, today had read in the 715 parishes of his war-torn diocese a pastoral letter reminding his priests and the people of the approach of Memorial Day, sacred to the memory of the dead in the United States.

"On the 30th day of May," said the letter, "the date fixed by the Hurgy for the ceremonies of Joan of Arc, our American allies remind us of the sacrifices made by all their dead in devoting a day to prayer in their memory—Memorial Day.

"Do not those who so largely have helped to deliver our country in the great war just terminated deserve that we should pray to God for them through the intermediary of her who helped us deliver France from the stranger's yoke in similar circumstances?

"We have in our diocese particular reasons for so doing because of the generosity of the American people, represented by the American Red Cross, that came to our succor from the very first hour.

"In testimony of our recognition let us join our prayers to theirs on May 30 in memory of all the dead of the American Nation, and especially in memory of those who fell on the field of honor in defense of our country."

The Diocese of Rheims comprises the Marne and the Ardennes Departments, in which the American troops experienced bitter fighting and heavy losses.

LONDON, May 23.—Announcement is made that a marriage has been arranged, to take place shortly, between Captain John Henry Broadwood of Merstham, Surrey, and Ola Humphrey Hassan, widow of Prince Ibrahim Hassan and the daughter of the late Thomas Marshall Humphrey of San Francisco.

Ola Jane Humphrey was well known here as an actress some years ago, appearing in "The Fatal Wedding" and "The Prisoner of Zenda," among other plays. She married her leading man, Edwin Mordaunt. They were divorced, and on April 15, 1911, she was married in a London Registrar's office to Prince Ibrahim Hassan, a cousin of the Egyptian Khedive. They were separated not long afterward. Last Autumn it was reported that the British Government had confiscated the Prince's estate and had awarded the Princess $1,000,000 as her share.

In Years Gone By

By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

In years gone by, people kept their money at home, in a bureau drawer; now they deposit it in a bank.

In years gone by, people died and left their dear ones struggle along as well as they could; now they look Death straight in the face and make a will.

In years gone by, people used wooden boxes for the last resting place of their dear ones; now they use metal and Campbell's purple Cast-Stone Underground Vaults.

Results follow causes; reaction follows action.

Mr. Frank E. Campbell, founder of The Funeral Church, has ever been a leader among his fellow men. A funeral conducted by Mr. Campbell is a service long to be remembered.

In years gone by, people were afraid to speak about the inevitable; today they visit The Funeral Church, Broadway at 66th Street, for its beauty and its consoling influence.

PALMER EXPLAINS HIGH SUGAR PRICES

Cuban Crop Cut 500,000 Tons —Europe Has Little for Export.

BIG JUMP IN DEMAND HERE

Attorney General Approves Fuller Bill for Price-Fixing Common Commodities Commission.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—In a letter to Representative Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts, approving his bill for the creation of a Federal Common Commodities Commission, Attorney General Palmer explains some of the reasons for the present sugar shortage and present sugar prices:

"In the first place, there is not plenty of sugar. The Cuban crop, according to the best present estimate, is short of the original estimate by half a million tons. Since the outbreak of the war the output of beet sugar on the continent of Europe has diminished to the point where very little sugar is exported. England, a large consumer of sugar, formerly drew approximately 80 per cent. of her sugar from this Continental source. She is compelled at the present time to draw that 80 per cent. largely from Cuba. This alone will account for an actual shortage of a large extent.

"Furthermore, it has been apparent since the restrictions on consumption in vogue during the war have been lifted, that the consumption of sugar in the United States has enormously increased. This shortage, and the resultant speculation in raw sugars, is responsible for the present high prices. It should be noted that the Cuban producer is in a better position to hold back his sugar and demand a high price than he has ever been. In addition to this, many speculative buyers who formerly did not participate have this year participated in buying raw sugars. A combination of these conditions has inevitably caused an extreme rise in the price of Cuban raw sugar. This rise has afforded an opportunity for speculators and dealers in refined sugar to exact high prices for the refined sugar in their hands." The Attorney General enclosed in his letter a recent circular sent to all Fair Price Commissioners, in which it was stated that an unexpected drought had caused a shortage of half a million tons in the Cuban crop.

"In spite of the world shortage," said the circular, "American consumption reached a new high level in 1919 of 85.43 pounds per capita, as against 73.33 pounds per capita for the year 1918. Conservatively estimated, the American demand for sugar increased normally 250,000 tons per year by reason of increased population and education of the popular demands for sweets.

"It is well worth noting that the attractiveness of the present American sugar market and favorable exchange rates are bringing sugar to us from all over the world. It is hoped that these offerings of sugar will tend to prevent the threatened shortage. The 1920 sect crop will begin to reach the market about July 15, and will aid materially."

Representative Fuller's bill provides that the President shall appoint a Common Commodities Commission of five members, whose duties shall be to establish and regulate the maximum price which shall be paid for the common necessities of life. This commission would submit to the President each month a list of articles which it had designated as common necessities, and such list when approved by the President would be considered the official list on which the commission would fix the maximum price for which they would be sold.

"Fibrotta" WARE

for offices, hotels and institutions

It is a waste of money to buy office equipment haphazardly. Pails, waste baskets, umbrella jars, cuspidors, fire pails, water coolers, etc., should be carefully chosen for durability, sanitary efficiency and harmony with their surroundings.

Better looking more durable and sanitary

"Fibrotta" ware means better looking offices and far more durable and sanitary equipment. Rich mahogany in color, it is made under tremendous hydraulic pressure, without seams or cracks to harbor dirt. It will not rust, swell, warp, leak or dent out of shape. Its hard, glasslike surface does not absorb moisture, grease or dirt, and is very easy to clean, so that it always looks new.

The contents of "Fibrotta" waste basket cannot sift through and litter the floor. "Fibrotta" umbrella stands are very rich in appearance. Pails and fire pails of "Fibrotta" will outlast others two to one. They do not scale, rust, dry up, fall apart or become foul and ill smelling.

Fine for home use

For the home, too, "Fibrotta" pails are ideal, on account of their cleanliness and durability. "Fibrotta" keelers, serving as dish pans, will not chip china or glass ware like metal pans. "Fibrotta" baby baths are not cold to the tender skin of an infant, like that of metal or earthenware. Every home should have a "Fibrotta" pail.

"XXth CENTURY" COOLER

As a means of serving drinking water in all its original purity and at a greatly lessened expense for ice, the famous "XXth Century" Cooler represents the height of sanitary efficiency. No dirty or germ laden ice can come in contact with the water and contaminate it. The ice is held in a separate compartment of "Fibrotta," which is a non-conductor; keeping the heat out and the cold in, thus saving the price of the cooler in a short time, through this ice saving feature.

Water from the "XXth Century" is always served as cool as a mountain spring but never disagreeably and harmfully cold. And its patented, non-clogging "C & H" push faucet will never get foul or drip and wet the floor after pressure is released.

Many dealers sell the "XXth Century" Cooler and "Fibrotta" ware. Write us or call us by telephone if you cannot find these goods. We also manufacture a large line of sanitary dispensers for serving beverages.

"Star" pail of "Fibrotta." No cracks or seams to open up or hold dirt. Will not rust, swell, warp, leak or dent out of shape. Outlasts 3 ordinary pails.

No papers or dirt can sift through a "Fibrotta" waste basket and litter the floor. Handsome mahogany color. Very attractive.

"Fibrotta" spittoons are far more durable and sanitary than others. Rich mahogany in color. Metal tops, if desired.

"Fibrotta" fire pails, flat or round bottomed, outlast all others. Will not rust or dry up.

CAMPAIGN HEADS TO TESTIFY TODAY

Witnesses Answer the Senate Summons to be on Hand at Hearing.

HITCHCOCK ACCEPTS CALL

Representatives of Lowden, Johnson, Cox, Harding and Poindexter Also Reply.

GETTING THEIR BOOKS READY

Managers in Chicago Preparing Facts and Figures to be Presented to Committee.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Campaign expenditures and pledges made in behalf of candidates for the Republican and Democratic Presidential nominations will be placed under the searchlight of Senate committee inquiry beginning tomorrow.

Heads of the various campaign organizations summoned by Chairman Kenyon of the Special Investigating Committee over the week-end have answered in sufficient number to guarantee a large quota of witnesses for the first day's examination. Frank H. Hitchcock, former Postmaster General, and one of the managers of the campaign for Major General Wood, was among those who responded today to the telegraphed messages.

As its first step, the committee plans to inquire into the amount of money expended in each campaign, taking the statement of the manager or leading promoter as a preliminary. The telegrams requesting attendance also asked that each man bring with him records as to all money contributed, the sources from which it came, and the places and methods in which it was spent. In addition, the committee asked for all correspondence relating to the solicitation and contribution of funds. Chairman Kenyon has indicated that the course of the inquiry would be determined very largely upon the facts and statements brought out by the preliminary examination.

The order in which those called will be heard has not been determined. No refusal to the call to appear has been received by the committee, and none is expected. The messages sent did not necessitate an acknowledgment, but those responding, in addition to Mr. Hitchcock, include L. L. Emerson, representing Governor Lowden of Illinois, Republican; Angus McSween, for Senator Johnson of California, Republican; E. H. Moore, for Governor Cox of Ohio, Democrat; H. M. Daugherty, for Senator Harding of Ohio, Republican, and H. M. Rice, for Senator Poindexter of Washington, Republican.

MANAGERS BALANCING BOOKS.

Preparing for Coming Investigation of Campaign Expenditures.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, May 23.—Interest among political leaders in Chicago was centred today largely on the Senate investigation of campaign expenditures which is to begin tomorrow in Washington. The chance of developments approaching the sensational which might have an effect on the National Convention was a matter of much speculation. It seems to be the belief here that Senator Borah will go deeply into the situation. There is considerable comment also on the vigor which the make-up of the Senate subcommittee promises to inject into the developments.

Reports that large sums have been spent in the interest of this or that candidate have been made the subject of charge and countercharge here for weeks. There have been few charges of wrongful expenditures of a character which went beyond the pale of the law, but Wood, Lowden, Johnson and, on the other side, McAdoo all have been accused of heavy expenditures in some sections.

It was charged, for instance, by the anti-Wood people in Michigan that the General's workers had spent anywhere from half a million up in the campaign in that State. In California Meyer Lissner, manager for Johnson in Los Angeles County, asserted that the Hoover backers had dispersed huge sums. The same charge was made against the Johnson workers by the Hoover forces in San Francisco and the northern section of California.

Just how far the investigation will go in actually bringing out the facts and proving or disproving the stories about such heavy expenditures is a point much discussed here. The various headquarters have been hard at work balancing up their books and preparing for the investigation since word came yesterday that scores of requests to appear before the committee had been issued.

It is not believed that any of the more important leaders in the campaign who may be asked to go to Washington or appear before the committee here should decide to take a trip to the convention city, will refuse to testify. There has been talk among some political observers as to the power of the Senate sub-committee to compel the campaign managers to testify. But the feeling here is that a refusal to testify would be accepted by the country almost as a confession of guilt, and that the men who have been behind the candidates would not care to accept such a situation.

PLANS OF COMMITTEE OF 48.

Organize in 35 States—May Name Candidate for President.

The prediction that a candidate for President would be named by the Committee of Forty-eight at its convention in Chicago on July 10 was made yesterday by J. A. H. Hopkins, Chairman of its Executive Committee. At the headquarters of the committee, 15 East Fortieth Street, it was said that political organizations had been formed in thirty-five States.

A combination of the Committee of Forty-eight, the Non-Partisan League and the Triple Alliance, a labor organization, was said to have been formed in Washington. A similar combination already has put a state ticket in the field in Nebraska with Arthur G. Wray as the candidate for Governor. The same sort of fusion was said to have been effected in several Congressional districts in Michigan. In Nevada, Miss Anne Martin has announced her candidacy for United States Senator on such a ticket.

FEARS FOR NEGRO IN ALEXANDRIA JAIL

Squad is Sent from Fort Myer to Protect William Turner.

POLICE SAY HE CONFESSED

Rumors of Mob Attack on Jail, Current in Washington, Denied by Sheriff.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Reports current in Washington tonight that a mob had besieged the Alexandria County Jail at Alexandria County Court House in an attempt to lynch William Turner, a negro confined there, and that troops sent from Fort Myer dispersed the mob, were denied both by the jail authorities and Colonel Rivers of Fort Myer, Turner, the police say, confessed killing T. Morgan Moore of Alexandria.

Talking over the telephone from the jail at midnight, Sheriff Clements said: "There has been no mob attack on the jail and no mob has assembled. Turner is safe in the jail and everything is quiet. There is no foundation for the report."

Colonel Rivers said:

"No detachment of cavalry has been sent to the jail. At the request of Sheriff Clements I have huddled eight soldiers into a truck and sent them to the jail. The Sheriff told me he was lonely and that there was one other man there, besides newspaper reporters, and asked that some soldiers be sent over as a precaution. I have sent eight. The county jail is within 400 yards of my house here at the fort, and everything has been quiet there all evening. If the jail were attacked by a mob, we could very quickly get reinforcements there. My information is that there are no signs of an attack."

WAHINGTON, May 23 (Associated Press).—William Turner is accused of shooting to death T. Morgan Moore, an employe of the naval torpedo plant at Alexandria, Va., and of attempting to attack Miss Pearl Clark of Washington, Moore's fiancée and Secretary of Representative Britten of Illinois. The negro was arrested early today, about two hours after Moore was killed. Turner confessed, according to the authorities.

Moore and Miss Clark, according to the report made to Virginia and Washington authorities by the latter, were seated in an automobile near the Virginia end of the Potomac River Bridge, connecting Washington and Virginia, when the negro approached them. Pointing a revolver at Moore, Miss Clark stated, the negro demanded money. When Moore refused, Miss Clark said, she became frightened and jumped from the machine and the negro started after her. Then Moore, according to Miss Clark, seized a revolver from a door pocket of the automobile and fired at the negro. In an exchange of shots Moore was shot through the heart and the negro struck in the leg and hand. According to Miss Clark, he continued to pursue her until she had given him some jewelry.

Turner, who is said to answer the description given by Miss Clark of the assailant, was captured near the Arlington National Cemetery. The police say he had two wounds, one in the hand and the other in the leg.

Moore and Miss Clark, whose home is in Chicago, were to be married soon.

5,000 WOMEN DEMAND LOWER COSTS IN SPAIN

Soldiers and Police Called Out When Crowd in Cadiz Voices Protest.

CADIZ, Spain, May 23.—More than 5,000 women took part in a demonstration at San Lucar yesterday, demanding a reduction in the cost of living. Gendarmes and police were forced to intervene.

An attempt to kill the proprietor of a store was made, but it was foiled by soldiers.

MADRID, May 23.—Measures to augment the production of bread were decided upon by the Council of Ministers last night when the situation in Madrid and the provinces, involving scarcity of food and disorders, was discussed. This decision followed refusal by the master bakers to grant the demands of striking employes.

VALENCIA, Spain, May 23.—Authorities here took precautionary measures this morning against Syndicalists, who made an effort to call a general strike, having convinced most workers they should abandon their posts. At Alidays, a village near here, Syndicalists cut a line transmitting electric current to this city, and as a result tramcar and electric light service is interrupted.

In answer to the call from officials, armed forces of gendarmerie began patrolling the streets, and the majority of workmen who quit work left the shops quietly. Many stores are closed, but no untoward incidents happened during the forenoon.

A fête in behalf of work among the victims of tuberculosis has been suspended as a result of the strike.

EX-CROWN PRINCE AT DOORN

Walks and Chats with Mother at His Parents' New Home.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, May 23.—The former Crown Prince of Germany visited his father on Saturday, an automobile containing the Prince and his party reaching the main entrance of the ex-Kaiser's new home at Doorn at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The ex-Crown Prince and his companions, among whom was the Burgomaster of Wieringen, had left Wieringen Island at 8 in the morning, and, crossing the Zuider Zee by steam ferryboat, rapidly drove straight to Doorn.

Doorn village folk, who have been regarding the ex-Kaiser and his family with the utmost indifference, did not show any curiosity over the arrival of the ex-Crown Prince.

In the course of the afternoon the ex-Crown Prince strolled in the garden with his mother, engaged in intimate conversation. It is well known that the Prince arranged this visit to his parents for his mother's sake, as there is not much love lost between him and his father.

LABOR TO DISCUSS STATUS OF SEAMEN

Second International Conference in Genoa Will Be Devoted to Marine Workers.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY A PROBLEM

Unemployment Insurance and Application of Washington Convention to Mariners Will Come Up.

LONDON, May 15.—The International Labor Conference is to hold its second session at Genoa, Italy, June 15. Following a suggestion of the Labor Commission at the Peace Conference, which was confirmed by a decision at the first meeting of the recent International Labor Conference in Washington, this second session will be occupied exclusively with the consideration of the demands of merchant seamen, including those engaged on inland water-borne traffic.

Among the subjects to be discussed are the questions of the application of the Washington convention on the eight-hour day and the forty-eight-hour week to marine labor; the control of conditions of employment; the application to seamen of the Washington convention; recommendations regarding unemployment insurance; the application of the convention forbidding the employment of children of less than 14 years, and the examination of the possibility of establishing an international status which would enable sailors to land at any foreign port without formality.

In considering these matters the conference will have before it the result of investigations already made by the International Labor Office and also the program drawn up at Antwerp on June 23 last year at the Seamen's International Conference.

All the States belonging to the International Labor Organization and to the League of Nations will be represented, as also will be Germany and Austria under an invitation given at Washington, and, in a consultative sense, Finland. Each State will be represented by four members, two being appointed by the Governments, and the other two by employers and employed, respectively.

It is probable that one of the Government representatives in each case will be chosen for his special knowledge of shipping problems and that at least one of each delegation will be one who took part in the first conference in Washington.

As to the workers' and employers' delegates, the different States will be free to appoint representatives of the shipowners and of the seamen or, on the contrary, representatives of the employers' and workers' movement as a whole.

All Have Suffered Jail Sentences Under Bolsheviki — Report That Petrograd Is Starving.

PARIS, May 23.—One hundred and fifteen French men and women, repatriated from Russia, arrived in Paris this morning by way of Southampton and Havre. All of them had been at one time or another arrested and placed in jail by the Bolsheviki.

They say that Petrograd is starving.

TURKS AND GREEKS FIGHT.

Armenians Complain of French Measures for Protection in Cilicia.

ATHENS, Greece, May 23.—It is reported that an encounter has taken place between the Turks and the Greeks in the vicinity of Odemish, forty-eight miles southeast of Smyrna. The Turks, 400 strong, captured a position held by the Greeks, but eventually were repulsed. The casualties on both sides are reported to have been unimportant.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 23.—The Armenian Patriarch has received a letter from Adana saying that the Armenians there held a meeting May 2 at which protest was made against the alleged failure of the French to supply adequate protection for the Christians in Cilicia. The resolution said it had been decided unanimously to ask the Armenian National Council to urge the French to withdraw from the invested towns or to send there by airplane ammunition and food supplies. Otherwise, the resolution declared, the Armenians proposed to declare a day of mourning and to cease fighting the Turks.

The Turks are reported to have captured the French munitions at Hadjin.

French Will Surrender Alleged New York Murderer.

NICE, France, May 23.—Frank Valuzzi, who recently was arraigned before a Magistrate here on the charge of firing the shots that killed Lena Spinelli and Josephine Gentile in New York on March 1 last, is to be sent to Marseilles tomorrow and handed over to the American military police for desertion from the American Army.

Valuzzi will be examined regarding murders that were committed at Mayence during the time he was in garrison there.

Tokio Clearing House Reports Big Increase in Dishonored Paper.

TOKIO, May 19.—A feature of the financial depression in Japan is the increase of dishonored bills in the Tokio clearing house, reports showing that those dishonored in April amounted to 178,000 yen, against 68,000 in March.

May figures show a daily increase over those of April. The number of bills dishonored in Osaka is three times that in Tokio.

KILLS HIMSELF IN HOSPITAL

Keeper Becomes Despondent Thinking of Medical Use of White Mice.

For thirty years Ernest Goets, 67 years old, of 314 East Thirtieth Street, tended the guinea pigs, white mice, rabbits and other small animals used by the pathologists in Bellevue Hospital. Two years ago he retired, but every Sunday he visited the miniature Zoo at the hospital, expressing sorrow that one by one his pets were being slain in the interest of science.

Ernest made his usual visit to the laboratory yesterday and after he had been there half an hour the keeper was called from the room. When he returned Ernest was missing. An hour later Dr. Ira Vance smelled gas and found Ernest on the floor of an anteroom, unconscious. Efforts to revive him failed. Physicians said they believed that he had become despondent thinking of the animals. No relatives or blood friends could be found.

Bergdoll's Lawyers Offer $2,500 Reward for Escaped Draft Deserter's Recapture

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The attorneys for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, sentenced as a draft deserter, who escaped from a prison guard after he had been taken to Philadelphia to recover $150,000 worth of gold he said he had hidden, offered a reward of $2,500 tonight for the capture of the fugitive.

This reward was offered jointly by D. Clarence Gibboney of Philadelphia and by Samuel T. Ansell, former Judge Advocate of the army, and Edward S. Halley, formerly a Colonel in the Judge Advocate's branch of the army, now in law partnership in Washington.

The three attorneys issued the following announcement:

"We, the undersigned, hereby offer a reward of $2,500 to any person for the apprehension and delivery to the proper military authorities, at any military post or station, of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, an escaped military prisoner. The reward will be paid immediately upon receipt of official notice from the Adjutant General of the army, by either of the undersigned, of the delivery of the prisoner into military custody and of the name of the person entitled to the reward."

Major Gen. Peter C. Harris, the Adjutant General of the army, reiterated tonight that the attorneys of Bergdoll were in honor bound to return the prisoner to the Disciplinary Barracks at Governors Island, and he was gratified at their offering the reward. He said the lawyers had also put detectives on the trail.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., May 23.—On request of the military authorities at Fort Niagara, city policemen were detailed today to guard the international bridges here to prevent Grover C. Bergdoll, Philadelphia draft dodger, escaping to Canada.

Young men of Bergdoll's age who crossed the river were first taken before immigration officers and closely questioned.

If Bergdoll goes to Canada he will be safe from extradition, officers at Fort Niagara said. Desertion, according to their information, is not an extraditable offense.

DENIKIN'S FLEET TAKEN AT ENZELI

Six Cruisers and Seven Transports Interned at Persian Port "Captured," Moscow Says.

REDS CROSS THE BERESINA

Violent Fighting Against the Poles Reported, with More Soviet Gains on Northern Front.

LONDON, May 23.—After the Bolshevist forces occupied Enzeli last week, according to a Bolshevist communication received here from Moscow, they captured the entire White (Denikin) fleet, consisting of six cruisers and seven transports.

A large quantity of war material from the Caucasus, which had belonged to General Denikin, is also reported to have been taken by the Bolsheviki.

Bolshevist troops in the Polish-Ukrainian battle zone continue to make progress, adds the communication, which bears Saturday's date. The capture of a number of villages is recorded. The communication follows:

"Our troops have occupied Ukhtinsk, seventy miles west of Kem. In the direction of Pytalovo enemy attacks have been repulsed.

"In the direction of Molodetchno violent fighting is going on about the region southwest of Vveslavino.

"Our troops crossed to the right bank of the Beresina River, in the region of the confluence of the River Segutch, and occupied a number of villages.

"We captured several localities near Borisov (on the Beresina, about fifty miles northeast of Minsk), and our aviators are bombing the enemy lines.

"On the Polotsk region (west of Minsk), we have occupied the towns of Bogushevichy and Dolino. We captured Lubonichy, in the Bobruisk region.

"Scouting operations are going on in the region of Kiev.

"On the Caspian Sea after the occupation of Enzeli (Persia), we captured the whole White (Denikin) fleet of six cruisers and seven transports and enormous quantities of war material evacuated from the Caucasus, where it had belonged to General Denikin."

KRASSIN FORCED TO FLEE?

Arrest of Soviet Minister Said to Have Been Asked by France.

PARIS, May 23.—Bolshevist circles in Paris declare that the hurried departure of Gregory Krassin, the Russian Bolshevist Minister of Trade and Commerce, from Copenhagen for Stockholm, was caused by a request of the French Government to the Danish Government that Krassin be placed under arrest for plotting and espionage.

AMERICAN AVIATOR MISSING.

Lieutenant Rorison Believed to Have Come Down Behind Reds' Lines.

WARSAW, May 23.—Lieutenant Harmon C. Rorison of Wilmington, N. C., a pilot in the Kosciusko Aerial Squadron, has been missing for several days, after he began a flight undertaken to obtain a report concerning the Bolshevist lines on the southern front in the Ukraine.

Since the start on his mission Rorison has not been reported, and the Polish military authorities are of the opinion that he either was shot down by the enemy or forced to land inside the Bolshevist lines. Wireless efforts have been made to ascertain the fate of the aviator.

TO ARRAIGN MRS. LEE TODAY

Woman Accused of Newark Swindle Still Protests Innocence.

Mrs. Betty Lee, who arrived in Newark six weeks ago to establish a $500,000 home for working girls, will be arraigned today in the First Criminal Court there on a charge of obtaining $488 under false pretenses from C. Wenham Smith, father-in-law of Police Commissioner Thomas Ford. Mrs. Lee was arrested Saturday in Trenton. Several women socially prominent visited Mrs. Lee at Police Headquarters yesterday.

Mrs. Lee maintained that in passing the checks she believed she had funds in the banks on which they were drawn. She said that friends in California had advised her they were depositing a certain sum of money to her account.

Asked about the letter purporting to be signed by "J. E. Woodson" telling of reservations on a ship for Europe for Mr. Smith and family, Mrs. Lee told Commissioner Ford that a friend of hers received the letter. She denied saying it came from "Woodson." Mrs. Lee said that she used the two checks given by Mr. Smith because she needed the money at the moment and expected her friends to make the deposit they had promised.

GERMAN ASSEMBLY ENDS LAST SESSION

Reichstag Election Campaign Now Absorbs Energies of Former Members.

FEARS FOR THE COALITION

Present Indications Are That Reactionary Parties Will Score Considerable Gains.

By LEONARD SPRAY.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 22.—Germany's first National Assembly is dead. It expired peacefully at midday, and its epitaph, as spoken by President Ebert in his funeral oration, runs:

"The first architect of the German Republic."

The first National Assembly will be succeeded in two weeks' time by the first Parliament of the Republic. Its mourners, therefore, rushed from the bedside to throw themselves into the general election struggle now raging. Before they left the President gave them the following advice:

"In the bitter struggle ahead point out to the people that the lawful road is the only one that leads upward; that Germany can rise again only if she forswears conspiracies of every kind. My wish for the first Reichstag of the Republic is that it may have a great majority for those who stand for constitutional government and against a policy of force."

The date of the elections is June 6, and most of the results will be known on the following day. Speculations regarding the outcome vary, but there is a foreboding that the existing coalition, composed of three parties—the Centre, Majority Socialists and Democrats—will be fortunate if it obtains anything like a working majority. The Centre, which is mainly Catholic in composition, will probably maintain its existing strength, but the Majority Socialists are bound to lose heavily to the independents, and from the Democratic Party there has been a considerable drift to the Right.

Though it is early to draw conclusions as to the possible composition of the new Government, there are indications that unless, which is altogether improbable, the Majority and Independent Socialists become united, it will have a more reactionary character than the existing one. I was told today on good authority that already certain leaders of the Centre Party had been negotiating with the parties of the Right as to the possibility of forming a coalition with them.

NEW ADRIATIC PARLEYS.

New Italian Cabinet Is Expected to Bring About a Settlement.

LONDON, May 23.—The Milan Corriere della Sera and Secolo agree in predicting that the new Italian Cabinet will at least achieve a settlement of the Adriatic question, says The London Times correspondent.

It is expected that Foreign Minister Sciaiola will invite Anton Trumbitch, the Jugoslav Foreign Minister, and N. P. Pashitch, former Servian Premier, to resume immediately direct negotiations, though perhaps not at Pallanza this time.

ROME, May 22.—The Messaggero today comments on the youthfulness of the members of the new Cabinet of Signor Nitti, as compared with the advanced ages of the men composing former Ministries. The eldest member of the present Government, it says, is Vittorio Sciaiola, Minister of Foreign Affairs, who is 64 years old. Premier Nitti, the next eldest, is 52. The Under Secretaries, such as Amendola, Bertini and Giuffrida, were chosen from among Deputies elected for the first time.

The new Under Secretaries belong to various democratic groups. Peccraro, Bertini and Loneiotti are Catholics. Rosati and Amici are Radicals, while several of the others are Reformist Socialists, although The Tempo, which lately has become strongly anti-Nitti, says the latter have been disavowed by the Reform Socialist Party.

Harry Schwager, 32 years old, with no home and no occupation, but a long beard, was arrested last night at Fifth Avenue and Fourteenth Street on complaint of Louis Hess, an artist, of 244 West Fourteenth Street. Schwager asked for ten cents. Hess, who told the police he had been looking for a model of the Schwager type for a picture, replied:

"Why, man, you don't have to beg. I'll pay you $6 for posing for three hours for me."

SOVIET LABOR DRAFT TAKES BOTH SEXES

All Males 16 to 50 and Females 15 to 40 Required by New Order to Register.

TROTZKY FOR LABOR ARMY

Workmen Must Be Treated Like Soldiers, Says His Report, Made Public by State Department.

PETROGRAD, May 21.—The Soviet Government is taking steps to insure the full utilization of industrial power and the elimination of parasitic elements by ordering the registration of all males between the ages of 16 and 50 years, and of females between the ages of 15 and 40.

Each person registering is to furnish a book containing full particulars regarding the nature and the place of their employment, together with data giving a description of themselves, to establish their identity. No other identification cards are to be valid in the future.

A similar system of identification cards is to be established in Moscow and other Russian cities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—The State Department has made public a report on the militarization of labor in Soviet Russia, made by Leon Trotsky, the Bolshevist Minister of War, at the ninth congress of the Russian Communist Party. The report was published in the Isvestia, the official Soviet organ in Moscow, on March 21.

The report, in dealing with the necessity for the mobilization of Russian labor on a military basis, confirms reports received here recently of the progress of disintegration within Soviet Russia and consequent decrease of Soviet authority through the failure of the system to work. Trotsky, in the report, refers to what he characterizes as the "conditions of starvation and disorganization existing today." In justification of extreme measures considered in well-informed circles here a vain effort to prevent ultimate collapse.

The opinion was expressed in a high quarter here today that Trotsky's report of the manner in which the Bolshevist authorities shuffle the working classes about as they see fit, with scant regard for their rights and liberties as individuals, should have a salutary effect upon the elements of American labor who are inclined to look with sympathy upon the Bolshevist Russian political order.

Trotsky's report says:

"At the present time the militarization of labor is all the more needed in that we have now come to the mobilization of peasants as the means of solving the problems requiring mass action. We are mobilizing the peasants and forming them into labor detachments which very closely resemble military detachments.

"Some of our comrades say, however, that even though in the case of the working power of peasants it is necessary it is necessary to apply militarization, a military apparatus need not be created when the question involved skilled labor and industry because there we have professional unions performing the function of organizing labor. This opinion, however, is erroneous. At present it is true that professional unions distribute labor power to the social economic organizations, but what means and methods do they possess for insuring that the workmen who are sent to a given factory actually reports at that factory for work?

"We have in the most important branches of our industry more than a million workmen on the lists, but not more than eight hundred thousand of them are actually working, and where are the remainder? They have gone to the villages or to other divisions of industry or into speculation. Among soldiers this is called desertion, and, in one form or another, the measures used to compel soldiers to do their duty should be applied in the field of labor.

"Under a unified system of economy the masses of workmen should be moved about, ordered and sent from place to place in exactly the same manner as soldiers. This is the foundation of the militarization of labor, and without this we cannot appear seriously of any organization of industry on a new basis in the conditions of starvation and disorganization existing today.

"In the period of transition in the organization of labor compulsion plays a very important part. The statement that free labor, namely, freely employed labor, produces more than labor under compulsion is correct only when applied to feudalistic and bourgeois orders of society."

Government Violently Assailed for Placing 1,500,000-Mark Order Outside the Country.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, May 23.—Germany's "Green Boys," as the members of the military police force are popularly called, in reference to the color of their uniforms, are going to wear English cloth, the Government having placed an order for 700,000 meters, to the value of about 1,500,000 marks, with a British textile firm.

This fact was disclosed by the Vossische Zeitung, which accompanied the announcement with a violent denunciation of what it called "this absolutely incomprehensible circumstance." Later the Home Office issued a defense in which it stated pathetically:

"For nearly a year our officials have been trying to get clothing for the military police. They begged, implored, threatened and applied everywhere—to state and war clothing departments and textile factories—all in vain. Many policemen are going about in rags, and hundreds of others are doing duty in civilian clothing. After all these fruitless attempts, we had to act, therefore, if the whole organization for security were not to be endangered."

Now, after the contract has been closed, all sorts of people are coming forward and saying that they could have provided the material at a lower price than the English offer, and the Pan German press is in a rage. The Post, for instance, describing the transaction as a crime against German industry and a scandal that cries to heaven. A piquant detail is that the cloth coming from England is khaki and will have to be dyed in Germany to the particular shade of green which the Government considers goes the best with the Prussian complexion.

APPEAL FOR GERMAN POOR.

To be Made by Germans to Affiliated Fraternal Orders Here.

BERLIN, May 22.—A movement has been begun here to induce American fraternal societies and other organizations to purchase American Relief Administration food drafts for distribution among the most needy people in this country. These drafts would be transmitted to affiliated German organizations which would guarantee reimbursement. Those who are buying this plan say it would make possible assistance to a large number of German families who have no friends or relatives in America to whom they can appeal.

Relief officials say the class suffering most is made up of men who draw salaries and those with fixed incomes who are unable to pay exorbitant prices for food and are too proud to ask for aid.

Seek Freight Rates Revision In Hearings Opening Today

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Hearings looking toward revision of the freight rates of the entire country to meet the Government guarantee of a 6 per cent. return on the railroad properties of the nation will be started tomorrow by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Recommendations made to the commission by the carriers, which form the bases for the hearing, set forth that in order to make an income of 6 per cent. the Eastern group rates should be advanced 30.4 per cent. to make a 21.1 per cent. addition in income; in the South 30.9 per cent. for a 20.7 per cent. larger return, and in the Western group 23.9 per cent. to yield an advance of 17 per cent. in revenue.

Means of arriving at the valuation of the railroad properties are expected to be the subject of considerable argument.

Admirals von Trotha and Leventzow and Thirteen Others May Be Prosecuted.

NEW REBELLION PREDICTED

Reactionary Berlin Paper Says Reds Are Preparing for It in Central Germany.

BERLIN, May 22 (Associated Press).—Admiral von Trotha, ex-Chief of the Admiralty; Rear Admiral von Leventzow, recently Governor of Kiel, and Major von Falkenhausen, at one time an Assistant Secretary of State, have, with twelve other military and naval officers, been dismissed from service because of their participation in the Kapp revolt last March. Their cases have been laid before the Public Prosecutor for consideration relative to further action.

Twenty-five other officers have been relieved of their duties, and their cases have been handed over to the Public Prosecutor. In thirteen other instances proceedings have been stayed altogether. Eighty-five cases have so far been disposed of by Government officials.

The latest contribution to the talk about the expected revolutionary outbreak is contained in the Tägliche Rundschau. This newspaper asserts that it has special information concerning elaborate preparations that are on foot in the Rhineland, Westphalia, Thüringia and Saxony, which will cause a radical flare-up in Central Germany.

Sham outbreaks, according to the story, which is printed in heavy type, are to be arranged at remote points with the object of drawing the Reichswehr away from the real centres, after which a sham revolt on the part of the Rightists is to be engineered. After this a real radical revolt will set in at a moment when the terrified population is ready to acclaim the Extreme Leftists as the saviors of the Fatherland.

This program, says the Tägliche Rundschau, has been worked out in full detail.

SAYS GERMANY CAN'T PAY 120 BILLION MARKS

Dernburg Predicts Failure of Loan Based on Her Promise of That Amount.

BERLIN, May 23 (Associated Press).—Under the caption "The Dying Peace Treaty," Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, former Minister of Finance, in an article in the Tageblatt, dealing with the report that France will demand that Germany shall pay in reparation 125,000,000,000 marks in gold in thirty years as reparation, figures that this amount at compound interest at 5 per cent. in thirty annual instalments, would amount to 18,000,000,000 marks annually.

Dr. Dernburg holds that even without interest the payment of such an amount would be impossible, as at the present rate of exchange it would be equivalent to 180,000,000,000 marks in paper, or more than the entire cost of the war. He adds that the amount in thirty years would entail a paper circulation of five trillion five hundred billion marks.

It is contended by Dr. Dernburg that Germany could not pay for two years running the annual instalment he mentions, and he declares that no sensible American would invest in any French loan based on Germany's promise to pay such an amount. He argues that Germany must receive guarantees of her existence and a chance for development.

"A hopeless nation is a bad debtor, and it is necessary to keep Germany on her feet if the whole world is not to perish utterly," says Dr. Dernburg.

Train Goes Into a Ditch, Killing Some of the Crew—None of the Company Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—The train carrying Minnie Maddern Fiske and her company, who are on their way to San Bernardino, and left Salt Lake City at 12:30 this morning, was derailed shortly before noon today while crossing the Utah Desert at Latimer, a small siding some 330 miles out of Salt Lake City. The engine plunged into a ditch, dragging two baggage cars with it, coming all the scenery of "Mlle. Nelly of N'Orleans." The engineer and fireman were killed and some of the baggagemen are dying, according to present reports.

Mrs. Fiske and the members of her company came through safely. No passengers appear to have been hurt.

Harrison Grey Fiske said last night that he had not received any details of the accident reported from Los Angeles. Since last Spring, when she "completed a successful run of "Mlle. Nelly of New Orleans" at the Henry Miller Theatre here, Mrs. Fiske has been touring the country. The company has been playing Salt Lake City and was on its way to San Diego, where the play was scheduled to open tonight. Mrs. Fiske will appear in a number of cities in the Northwest and Canada before returning to New York.

NEW YORK 13TH IN SCHOOL EFFICIENCY

Russell Sage Foundation Report Shows Montana Has Best System in America.

EASTERN STATES GO BACK

West Has Marked Gains, but Average for Whole Country is Only 52 Per Cent.

JERSEY IN FOURTH PLACE

South Carolina is at the Bottom—Territorial Institutions Better Than Those of Many States.

Montana has the best all-round public school system in the United States, according to the Department of Education of the Russell Sage Foundation, which announced yesterday the results of a comparative study of State school systems. Second place is assigned to the schools of California; third place to Arizona; fourth to New Jersey, and fifth to Washington. New York State is thirteenth, while South Carolina is at the bottom.

Dr. Leonard P. Ayres, director of the department, is the author of the report, which is entitled "An Index Number for State School Systems." He found the efficiency of the American school system had doubled in the last fifty years, having had an index rating of 26 in 1850 and 52 in 1920. This means the school system today is only 52 per cent. effective.

The West has been coming up educationally during the last thirty years, the report shows, while the East has been going down. Utah has made the greatest gain, while to Maryland is attributed the greatest falling off in relative standing. In the East, New Jersey is the only State that has gained, while in the West California has the best average high record.

Territories Excel Many States.

The conclusion is reached by the author of the report that the school systems of the United States' territorial possessions, such as Hawaii, the Canal Zone and Porto Rico, have higher ratings than those of many of the forty-eight States. The Hawaiian system is reported better than those of the majority of the American States, while ten Southern States have records poorer than that of Porto Rico.

In working out the educational measurement the Foundation takes the official data showing the number of children attending school, the amount of training they obtain, the progress they make, the amounts expended for buildings and supplies, the salaries paid their teachers and other similar items, and combine these factors into a single index number which shows the general standing or efficiency. The method resembles that used by the Federal Government in indexing the cost of living and prices of commodities.

All the results, the Foundation says, are computed from data furnished by the States themselves to the Federal Government.

Educational Index Numbers.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1—Montana | 75.8 | 27—Kansas | 59.8 |
| 2—California | 71.2 | 28—Canal Zone | 58.1 |

High Schools Make Notable Gains.

Figures also are given to show the relative standing of school systems of the States and possessions in 1890, 1900, 1910, 1918 and 1918. California has always been at or near the top, while the two Carolinas have been at or near the bottom. Every New England State is shown to be losing ground, while every State in the Far West has gained. Iowa has far outstripped Illinois and North Dakota has gone slightly forward. Nebraska has gone forward and Kansas backward.

The increase in the attendance in high schools is the most notable educational change in the fifty years. The enrollment in high schools was 360 times as great as in 1870. The number then was 10,000 and now it is nearly 2,000,000. The new pupils have been mostly girls.

Teachers' salaries are shown to continue to be very low in all the States. The lowest average salary is $19 a month for North Carolina, while the highest is $88 in California, being based on a year of twelve months.

YANKS BEAT BROWNS, 3 TO 2

Terrific Smash Comes in Sixth with Pipp on Base—Throng of 18,000 Also Sees Jacobson Bat Home Run.

Babe Ruth returned to violent health up at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon and socked a ball game right out of the park. The pastime, which carried a strong St. Louis flavor up to the time that Babe took his swing in the sixth inning, rode away on a nice white ball and landed somewhere in that vacant lot to the south of the Brush Stadium. The clout was good for a pair of runs, just enough to give the Yankees the edge over the St. Louis Browns, 3 to 2.

Ruth hadn't worn a baseball uniform since the Sunday game of a week ago. He discarded the diamond regalia for pajamas at the urgent request of old Doc Stewart. The Yanks' official medico, to wage a battle against croup or measles, or some other ailment peculiar to babes. There was a lot of mystery about the illness, but apparently it didn't dim the eyes or weaken the shoulder muscles. On Saturday the "Doc" pronounced Ruth normal again and yesterday about 18,000 eyewitnesses pronounced him abnormal. That punch, which he delivered in the sixth inning, goes into history as the longest ever made at the Polo Grounds, longer than any of the numerous drives which Ruth had made up to yesterday.

About 2 o'clock Miller Huggins decided that he would not use the batting behemoth. As Huggins figured it out, Shawkey was ready and that was half the battle. Then, again, he believed that the Yanks should be able to win a ball game from Carl Weilman without the aid of the fence buster. The crowd which would be out for the game could hardly be disappointed anyway, because it was not expected that Babe would be ready to play.

Then Huggins did some more cogitating and decided that Ruth would be used as long as the medical O. K. had been recorded. That second spell of thinking was well worth the effort, for if Ruth hadn't been swinging during the sixth inning there would be a different story to tell. Babe's long hit was the last of the game.

Babe Makes Sick Ball Game Well.

Weilman had the Yanks hitting harmless flies most of the afternoon and the count was 2 to 1 in the Browns' favor when the New Yorkers took up their cudgels in the sixth frame. Wally Pipp tried to catch Jimmy Austin flat-footed with a bunt, but failed to connect, which was just as well, as Jimmy's efforts were anything but flat when Pipp made his effort. Wally followed with a dinky Texas Leaguer to right field and the fans stopped cheering this promising start to welcome Big Babe, the Yankee life-saver. A home run was what they wanted and it seemed that the 18,000 rooters were shouting the same prescription for the very sick ball game.

"Show 'em you're normal, Babe," yelled Charley O'Leary from the coaching lines near first base. "They think you're sick."

Babe showed 'em. Weilman sent up a curve that was cutting a path on the outside of the plate when it had the misfortune to collide with the end of Babe's long bat. From the moment of contact there was no doubt about it being a home run. Pipp hesitated to watch the white bulb sail majestically over the top of the big grand stand and then began his jog around the paths, with Ruth following a short distance behind. Bedlam in its wildest hours had nothing on that crowd which had seen a ball hit as only Ruth can hit it. The high price of straw hats was forgotten and the lower deck of the stand fairly rained new white bonnets as Babe pulled up at the plate for his march of triumph to the dugout.

Jacobson Hits for Circuit.

Then from somewhere came another black derby, just as happened when Babe hit his home run against Pennock of the Red Sox three weeks ago. Since Babe got the brown derby in Philadelphia the iron hats are continually coming into his busy life. The derby was returned unscathed to its owner, but the cheers continued for some time. When Babe popped his head out of the dugout to go into right field at the beginning of the seventh inning another noisy outburst started right near the bench and kept pace with him until he had reached his position. Babe carried his own ballwick in right field by a vociferous vote.

A tremendous thump by Baby Doll Jacobson, the massive Scandinavian outfielder of the Browns, would have made it a sad Sunday for the fans if Ruth had not been around to upset things. Jake toed the platter in the fourth frame with Ken Williams on second base as the result of a Texas Leaguer to right field. As the big fellow had gone out on strikes in the second inning Shawkey was not particularly alarmed over his presence at the plate. This time Jake had something besides a strikeout concealed up his sleeve. He took a swing that was in keeping with all the traditions of the stuffy Norsemen, and the ball finished its travels high up in the left field seats, sending Williams home ahead of Jake. Like the sock which Ruth delivered later, that hit had home run stamped all over it from the time it parted company with the bat.

Ruth played a prominent part in the first Yankee run, starting it with a single. It ended up on a wild toss by Josh Billings, the St. Louis catcher. With one out in the Yanks' fourth Ruth toed the dish and the St. Louis outfield moved back a bit, as that one more step meant ticket like the L station. Babe took a pair of violent swings which did little more than disturb the atmosphere around the plate. Then he caught one on the bat handle and the ball looped its way to right centre, too far in front of Williams or Jacobson to handle. Lewis sent Babe along to second with a drive which Tobin almost plucked off the grass tops in left field. Tobin threw to Austin at third and while Ruth was sauntering back to second Jimmy decided he should be picked off. Gedeon was walking back to his position, with no thought of a play on Ruth, when the ball whizzed by his left ear and rolled to right field. Babe moving along to third on the play. Billings had an idea that he could nip Babe off third and his throw to Austin was a clean single to left field on which Ruth romped in and Lewis moved to second. Pratt filed to Williams for the second out and then came one of the flashiest plays of the season at the Polo Grounds. Bodie smashed hard toward right field and the crowd was cheering Ping for his apparent hit when Gedeon rushed over and picked the ball out of nowhere. While entirely off balance Joe pegged in the general direction of first base and Sisler, by a superhuman effort, caught the ball. Umpire Dineen declared Ping out.

The fans thought a lot of the combination play but didn't like the decision, as they believed Ping had won the race to the bag. They jeered and howled and hooted. A fan with a weak arm tossed a pop bottle from the grandstand behind first base and another weak-armed brother played the same card. Neither bottle even approached the ump. From this time until Ruth gave the fans something else to think about, Dineen remained as unpopular as the landlord, and the crowd hooted him when he did anything or when he did nothing. After Babe's boisterous bump the fans gave all the attention to home runs and had no time to waste on an umpire.

The Yanks gave Weilman no concern outside of the fourth and sixth innings and Shawkey breezed along easily after Jacobson's homer in the fourth. Only one St. Louis runner passed first base in the last five innings and he died at second. Shawkey escaped a lot of trouble in the third when an error by Peck and a pair of passes filled the bases. George Sisler was at the plate, and he is no welcome sight to a pitcher even with bases empty. The Sizzler failed to hit safely, however, his drive to left being smothered by Lewis. Shawkey and the 18,000 fans breathed a sigh of relief unanimously.

Curves and Bingles

By placing fly chasers in left field, centre field, right field and old Manhattan Field visiting managers might curb that Ruth menace.

A bottle thrower is never dangerous in May, according to Bill Dinneen, but some of them acquire control in July and August.

The batting records of Ruth and Jacobson were similar. Each got a home run and a single, each struck out once and proceeded to ad infinitum.

Hugh Jennings and his mystery ball club from Detroit will be guests of the Yankees today. Several of the Tigers saw Babe, the invalid, crash one yesterday, and they are hoping that he is no stronger today.

After Ruth hit his homer the other hitters stopped work for the day. Weilman retired nine Yanks in order, and Shawkey did the same to the Browns.

Fans desiring to see the most of Ruth's home run hitting should occupy the third base side of the field. The line for souvenir hunters forms on the right.

If Dineen and Nallin hang around the Polo Grounds much longer they are likely to get their names in the new directory.

Gedeon didn't see Austin's drive in the fourth inning, but he heard it. The ball almost carried Joe's ear along into right field. Then Billings tossed a Texas Leaguer into left field and a run went over the dish.

Some day Ruth will try to lay down a bunt and the fans will move in a body toward the box office and demand their money back.

Meanwhile Sam Vick must rest on the bench until Babe is taken down with whooping cough.

ROBINS WING HOME, ONLY TO BE BEATEN

Bring with Them as Sunday Guests the Pirates, Who Win, 1 to 0, Before Big Crowd.

Brooklyn made a long jump from Pittsburgh to play a ball game on the home lot yesterday afternoon, and then lost to the Pirates by a score of 1 to 0. It was not a profitable game from the point of view of the percentage column, but it had its compensations for the Squire of Flatbush. Despite uncomfortably cold weather and the constant threat of rain, nearly 18,000 of the faithful turned out to view the proceedings and feed the Ebbets exchequer. As soon as the combat was completed the Robins and the Pirates packed their handbags and prepared for another night on the sleeper and another game tomorrow in Pittsburgh. Life for the toil-worn ball player is just one Pullman after another these week-ends.

Yesterday's game added one more to the many the Robins have lost this season by a one-run margin. It was a pitching duel between Elmer Ponder and Big Ed Pfeffer, and the Pittsburgher had a trifle the better of it. The teams struggled through eight scoreless innings before the visitors put over the winning counter in the final frame, and it was Big Ed's own fault that they did!

If Jeff hadn't beaned Whitted, the first man up in the ninth, there might have been another story to tell, or at least the game might have become one of those overtime affairs to which the Dodgers have grown hardened this season.

Pfeffer's Tragic Wild Heave.

Jeff had been sailing along very comfortably through the first eight cantos, although he had pulled out of a fairly deep hole in the seventh, and in two of the earlier innings had stopped the Pirates after they had placed a man on third. But in the ninth Pfeffer made just one disastrous fling that spilled the beans, and incidentally nearly destroyed Whitted. He crowned the Pirate third baseman with a shoot that had smoke on it, but luckily the Pirate was able to get all but the brim of his dome out of the way. If it hadn't been a glancing blow, Whitted would have been the one best bet as a candidate for hospital treatment.

Whitted rubbed his head, second base, third base and the home plate in rapid succession. Nicholson sent him to second on a neat sacrifice, and he stayed there while Pfeffer was throwing Cutshaw out. Grimm then landed on one with pile-driver force. Ward jumped about three feet in the air, barely touched the ball with the tips of his fingers and while it continued its flight to centre Whitted hit the dish with the only run of the game. It might seem a poor method of using your head in a ball game, but Whitted, with Grimm's assistance, won this one by it, at any rate.

Johnston, for Brooklyn, led high the hopes of the home rooters in the Dodgers' half of the ninth. Olson and Ward were easy outs, but Johnston, next up, whaled one to left field that never did stop going until it reached the corner of the lot. Johnston had no trouble at all reaching third while it was being fielded in, and the stands went into a frenzy. They may have made some racket over Babe Ruth over in the sister borough, but that Brooklyn crowd shook a few windows itself. With Zack Wheat up, it looked like a tie score at last, for Zack is accustomed to just such emergencies, and generally turns them into a Dodger victory. Yesterday was not the appointed day, however. Zack knocked a high foul to Schmidt, and the game was over.

A Scant Crop of Bingles.

Both Pfeffer and Ponder were parsimonious in the matter of allowing hits. Pittsburgh scored eight safeties, but no two of them in the same inning, and the Dodgers scored five. Pfeffer was in trouble in the seventh, but managed to pull safely out of it. After Ward had thrown Nicholson out in this frame Cutshaw singled to left and promptly stole second and third, arriving at the latter bag in safety after Elliott had dropped the ball. Grimm walked, and Schmidt hit one to Pfeffer, which Jeff promptly returned to Elliott and nabbed Cutshaw at the plate. Elliott made a good catch of Ponder's foul for the third out.

Brooklyn went out in one-two-three order in the first two innings. In the third Elliott's Texas leaguer landed safely, but he was out trying to stretch it to a double. Pfeffer followed with a single, but was left when Olson popped to Caton. In the fifth Ellduff doubled to left with two down, but Elliott could not shove him over. Pfeffer started the sixth with a single, on which Southworth all but made a catch that would have partaken of the order of miracles. Southworth was barely able to reach the ball, grabbed it, executed a double somersault, and dropped it coming up. The next three men were disposed of in short order.

Southworth tripled for the Pirates with two out in the first inning, but Whitted followed with a weak grounder to Pfeffer. Ponder doubled in the third, and was held there while Wheat made a brilliant catch of Caton's prospective single. Wheat went 'way over to short centre to grab it. Ponder went to third on Carey's out, but Southworth's fly to Kilduff retired the side. Thereafter, excepting in the seventh and the fatal ninth, Pfeffer was in no serious difficulties.

Both teams contributed fielding gems to keep the crowd on edge.

DOUBLE BY DUGAN WINS FOR MACKMEN

Drives Two Runs Over Plate, While Martin Holds Indians to a Single Tally.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 23.—Philadelphia defeated Cleveland 2 to 1, winning in the eighth inning when it bunched two hits with an error by Wambsganss. With two on and two out, Dugan doubled to left. Cleveland scored its run in the first inning on a pass to Graney, Chapman's single and Speaker's infield out. Martin was invincible the rest of the game. Four double plays featured the contest. ## LYNCH-MOORE BOUT TONIGHT

Battle Postponed from Last Week to be Staged in Jersey City.

Joe Lynch, west side bantamweight, and Pal Moore of Memphis will clash in the main twelve-round bout this evening at the Armory A. A. of Jersey City. The battle was scheduled for last Monday night, but was postponed when Lynch failed to make the required weight, 118 pounds at 3 o'clock. The west sider is reported down to the limit, and is confident of beating Moore. The Southerner is reported in excellent condition and equally confident of victory. Two eight-round bouts and a six-round contest will precede the principal bout.

SKEETERS USE BATS WITH GREAT EFFECT

Opportune Hitting Beats Reading, 7 to 1, and Gives Jersey City the Series.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Pa., May 23.—Bunching hits at opportune times, Jersey City administered a 7 to 1 lacing to the Reading team here this afternoon, more than 10,000 spectators witnessing the battle. This victory gave the Skeeters the series with the Marines with three out of the four games to their credit.

Ferguson's speed held the hard-hitting Reading batters helpless, while Barnhardt, who suffered his first defeat of the season, was found for twelve safeties for a total of seventeen bases. Manager Hummel's clan was saved from a shutout in the last half of the ninth when Obero, with two out, slammed the ball over the left field wall for a circuit of the bases, duplicating Denoville's long clout in the eighth. Bauman and Wigglesworth shared the batting honors, each registering three hits, while Sheridan's sensational fielding featured, the former Brooklyn fielder accepting ten hard chances.

O'CONNELL MAY NOT RUN.

Injury Likely to Cost Harvard's Champion Miler His Title.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 23.—The chances that Captain Dennis O'Connell of Harvard, intercollegiate mile champion, will run in Saturday's big meet in Philadelphia are rather dubious. The Harvard leader turned his ankle Saturday while walking to the Princeton track field and was unable to run in his event.

O'Connell said tonight that he had had the injured foot attended to and expressed the hope that if strapped up, it would not interfere with his defending his title. He was a bit pessimistic about the healing of the injury, however.

Ruth Spurns Lower Stand In Hitting His Home Runs

Babe Ruth is exclusive, if nothing else, in his home run hitting. Most ball players who hit circuit drives into right field at the Polo Grounds pick out the lower section of the big stand, but that is too easy for Babe, unless he hunts. So far this season Ruth has hit six home runs at the Polo Grounds, all to right field, and not one of his sextet has landed in the lower stand. Babe's first home run, off Herb Pennock of the Red Sox, on May 1, went over the stand, as did his homer off Weilman yesterday. He hit between the stand and bleachers for a home run off Sam Jones on May 2, and on May 12 he hit two homers, one off Wilkinson into the right field bleachers and one off Dickie Kerr into the upper stand. His drive off Claude Williams on May 13 also carried into the upper deck.

SCOTT HOLDS REDS TO THREE SINGLES

Braves Hit Ball Hard and Pound Out 7 to 0 Victory Over World's Champions.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, May 23.—Scott allowed the Reds only three hits, all singles, today and Boston won from the champions, 7 to 0. Ring was hit very hard in the second and third innings and his support was ragged. He was taken out in the third after a single, a double and a triple had been made off him with no one out.

CARPENTIER SIGNS TO MEET LEVINSKY

Bout for World's Light-Heavyweight Title Will Be Held on or Before July 26.

MUST TIP SCALES AT 175

Both Boxers Should Make the Weight Readily—Promoter Curley to Decide Upon Final Details.

Georges Carpentier, French heavyweight champion and prospective contender for the world's title, will not remain inactive until the time when Jack Dempsey may be able to meet him in the ring. Articles have been signed for a bout between Carpentier and Battling Levinsky, in which the world's light-heavyweight title will be at stake. Jack Curley will promote the bout.

The complete details of the match have not been decided upon definitely. The articles of agreement, which bear the signatures of Francois Deschamps for Carpentier and Dan Morgan for Levinsky, call for a bout of twelve or fifteen rounds, with or without a decision. These features are to be dependent upon the laws of the State where the bout will take place. The contest will be held on or before July 26, the exact date to be named by Promoter Curley four weeks in advance. He will name both the date and the site for the bout, as Tex Rickard did after signing Willard and Dempsey for their championship contest.

The boxers must scale at 175 pounds, the American light heavyweight limit, and each will post a forfeit of $5,000 for weight and appearance. Levinsky has been boxing at or near this weight for several years past and is the recognized champion of his class in this country. Carpentier, as heavyweight champion of Europe, and also able to make this figure, has a no peal for the honors in European circles.

Dempsey Bout Too Long Delayed.

Carpentier's decision to box Levinsky is partly the result of numerous statements that the French titleholder was unwilling to take his chances with any American other than Dempsey, preferring to wait for the big match. Both Carpentier and his manager have ridiculed all such statements, and, with the prospects of the Dempsey bout being long delayed, they decided to accept the offer which Curley made for a match with Levinsky.

Carpentier would prefer to get into the ring before the latter part of July, but he is signed to contracts calling for his appearance in theatrical productions which will keep him busy for several weeks to come. The tour is under the management of Jack Curley. The French champion has notified Curley that, if he defeats Levinsky decisively, he will remain in this country and resume negotiations for a match with Jack Dempsey in the event that Dempsey should be in a position to meet him. If he fails to defeat Levinsky, Carpentier will give up his idea of a world's championship match and return to France.

Levinsky is rated as a fatal horse as could be selected for Carpentier's American debut. Though he has been in the ring for several years, the Battler still ranks with the best of the American heavyweights. He combines speed with cleverness and is one of the best defensive heavyweights in the game to-day in years. He has held his own with most of the leading heavyweights of recent years, though he suffered a three-round knockout at the hands of Jack Dempsey before the latter won the title.

May Be Held Near New York.

While the place of the bout will not be known until the last week in June, there is a strong probability of the contest being staged somewhere near the metropolis. Boxing followers who regard as a certainty the signing of the Walker bill by Governor Smith pointed out last night that all the terms of the match could be met in this State, which would be the logical place for the bout.

The Walker bill would permit fifteen-round bouts to a decision, the main features of the proposed match. As both men are noted for their cleverness, there would hardly be any such outcry raised against a bout of this kind, as compared with the cry that a heavyweight championship event would occasion. Carpentier's great war record is another strong point in his favor which might be expected to still any opposition to his appearing in a ring contest in this State. If the Walker bill is signed New York would seem to have the first call for the Carpentier-Levinsky contest.

PHILLIPSON WINS ROAD RUN.

Leads Large Field Home in Griswold Memorial Race.

Oscar Phillipson, Pastime A. C., scored his second road running triumph within the last fortnight yesterday when he flashed his heels to eighty-three rival harriers in the Sergeant Griswold handicap road race conducted over a course of about five and one-half miles, under the auspices of the Pennant A. C. in the Bronx. Phillipson started with a handicap of 4 minutes 15 seconds, and made good use of this allowance. He finished in the van by thirty yards, his actual time being 29:25. Trailing in second place was C. Denning, Pioneer A. C., who was allower 5 minutes, while J. Berger, unattached, 6 minutes 30 seconds, finished third, 15 yards back of Denning. A. Allen, Winton A. C., was fourth, and Harry Parkinson, veteran distance runner of the Morningside A. C., occupied fifth position, after a good race.

Max Bohland of the Paulist A. C., former national hill and dale champion, was the honor starter. He carried off the fast time prize, covering the course in the actual time of 27:50.

The order of finish of the first fifty runners follows:

10,000 Attend the Official Opening of Olympic Stadium

ANTWERP, May 23.—The Olympic Stadium, completed three months ahead of time, was officially opened this afternoon with a great gymnastic exhibition by 600 men and girls, mostly Belgians. The structure is ready for the games, even the cinder tracks for the running events being completed. About 10,000 persons were present today and did not half fill the structure. The gymnasts had plenty of room in the arena for their evolutions. The King was unable to come, but numerous Cabinet Ministers and other prominent personages watched the exhibition.

ANDERSON IS NEW HARLEM CHAMPION

Brooklyn Star Outmanoeuvres Behr in Final Round for Club Tennis Title.

It took five sets for Frederick C. Anderson to defeat Allen Behr in the final round of the Harlem Club open tennis tournament yesterday afternoon, and at the end of the match the contestants were exactly even in the number of games won and lost, while the loser actually had a total of seven points more than his conqueror. The scores were 6—4, 0—6, 6—2, 2—6, 6—2.

The curious feature of this remarkably even battle was the second set, in which Behr handed the Long Islander a beating such as is seldom seen in the deciding struggle of a first-class tournament. In losing six games in a row Anderson captured only four points, and two of these came in the opener. For the remainder of this session he was absolutely powerless to cope with the steady, smashing attack of the Yonkers man. Three of the games went at love, and in the others the loser got only one point each time. It was such overwhelmingly one-sided tennis that a rally on the part of the latter son of the Anderson family seemed impossible.

Yet he pulled himself together after this disheartening showing and took the next set impressively at 6—2. After this the winner slumped again, and Behr tied up the match by a parallel score, taking the final two games of the rubber also. But here Anderson showed his real class, running into an unbeatable streak of accurate driving and winning six games in a row for the set and match, 6—2.

Speed and Steadiness.

Behr played the game yesterday that he has shown all through the Harlem tournament, adding to his old and familiar steadiness a surprising acquisition of speed and accuracy and taking more chances in hitting the ball hard than has been his custom in the past. His service had a fast break, and he followed it frequently to the net, where he brought off splendid volleys, usually landing the ball in deep court. His backhand was exceedingly strong and he could also lob out of danger when the situation became dangerous. His generalship was almost always of the best.

Anderson had more shots at his command than even the versatile Behr, but he made more errors, both of execution and of judgment. Several times he threw away sure points by smashing out of court, and he flubbed many a low volley as well. In the second set his game went completely to pieces, and Behr scored on the gifts of wildness quite as much as by his own efforts. When necessary, however, Anderson was able to settle down to really effective tennis, and, in the pinch, he had a little more in reserve than did his hard-working rival. His great reach was also a constant advantage and, when forced to take to the net he seldom failed to get his racquet on the ball, no matter how finely Behr tried to cut the lines.

Behr won the service at the start and took a love game in brilliant style, continuing to win on his delivery until the games stood at 3-2 in his favor. Then he broke through Anderson's service for a lead of 4—2 and seemed to have the set sewed up. He lost his own in turn, however, and this started his lanky opponent on a streak which brought him three more games in a row and the set, 6—4.

Having thrown away this early opportunity, Behr went after the second set with everything in his repertoire, and after losing the first game Anderson began to play into his hands with an almost ridiculous series of errors. The points came to Behr in lightning succession, and a love set was his in little more than ten minutes' time, squaring the match and making Anderson's chances look very dim.

The younger player hung on, however, and after losing one game in the third set finally got his strokes working with some degree of consistency. He captured four games in succession, three of them in hard fought deuce battles, then dropped one, but took two more deuce affairs for the set, 6—2.

The fourth set reversed things again, Behr starting right in with a break in service, getting another for a 4—1 lead, reaching 5—2 after a close deuce game and cleaning up at 6—2 with a four-point whitewash, making everything square once more.

Anderson Recovers Control.

Winning his own delivery again at the start of the rubber, and breaking through Anderson's for a 2—0 advantage, Behr looked like a good bet for the new challenge cup offered by the club. But Anderson woke up once more and began to hit the ball so hard and with such uncanny control, aided by clever disguising of direction, that he forged steadily ahead and never showed another sign of weakness until the match was over. He broke through Behr's next service and made it 2—all on his own.

Another break put Anderson in the lead, and again his delivery stood by him for a much needed game, At 4—2 he secured his third break of the set and his fifth game in a row, with Behr apparently tired and badly shaken up by a heavy fall on the slippery court. The final game was a real battle, however, the loser making a game fight and sending the points to deuce. Anderson, however, passed him cleanly as he dashed to the net for a volley, and then, with match point up, repeated the trick, sending the ball clean and hard down the side line to earn the deciding tally which gave him his sixth straight game and the match at 6—3.

Edward Bry was the umpire.

The score by points was as follows:

TILDEN BEATS RICHARDS.

Takes Exhibition Tennis Match in Flatbush by Two Sets to One.

Exhibition tennis matches were played at the Terrace Club of Flatbush yesterday afternoon, William T. Tilden, 2d, defeating Vincent Richards in singles, 2—6, 6—3, 6—3, and losing a doubles match, in partnership with his victim, to Ichiya Kumagae and S. Howard Voshell in five sets scored 6—0, 6—2, 7—5, 4—6, 6—3. Kumagae and Voshell were also to have met in singles, but this match had to be abandoned because of the length of the doubles encounter.

Hoehlein Victor at Trape.

F. Hoehlein won a 50-target handicap at the traps of the College Point Rod and Gun Club yesterday afternoon when he finished with a full score on his liberal allowance of 24. Gordon Wood, who scored 43 on his handicap of 10, was second, and Dan Stack and Harry Gerber tied for third place.

TIGERS WILL MEET BRITONS ON TRACK

Princeton Athletes Will Sail Next Month to Face Oxford-Cambridge Team.,

SEND CABLE TO CAPT. RUDD

Exercise Option by Tackling Combination Instead of Single University—Games Early in July.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 23.—Princeton's track team will sail not later than June 12 to engage in a track and field meet in London with Oxford and Cambridge Universities. A cable message was sent today to B. G. D. Rudd, President of the Oxford Athletic Association, formally accepting the invitation which the Englishmen extended to the Princetonians on their visit here early this month.

By decisive victories in the season's dual meets against Harvard and Yale, the Tigers have demonstrated that their team is the logical one of these three to go abroad.

The statement given out here today by the Track Committee follows:

"Princeton has accepted the invitation of Oxford and Cambridge to send a track team to compete against them in London late in June or early in July. The acceptance of Princeton was sent today by cable to Bevel G. D. Rudd, the President of the Oxford Athletic Association.

Wide Option for Tigers.

"The formal invitation which was delivered to the Princeton Track Committee by Mr. Rudd and Colonel Jackson, London member of the Oxford-Cambridge Committee, on their recent visit to Princeton, gives Princeton the option of competing against a combined Oxford-Cambridge team, or against Oxford, or against Cambridge, or against both in separate meets. Princeton has expressed a preference to compete against a combined Oxford-Cambridge team.

"The Princeton team will sail not later than June 12, part of the team sailing from New York and part sailing from Montreal. It is expected that the entire team will be at Oxford ready to begin a period of preliminary training by June 25 at the latest. Oxford is the team will probably be lodged in the college buildings and do their training with English athletes.

"The meet will probably take place between the 5th and 10th of July, though the definite date is still subject to change, and will be between the English universities and Princeton. The meet will be held under English rules, that is competition will be in the ten standard English track events, which do not include the 220-yard dash, 220-yard hurdles, or the pole vault. First places only will be counted, each first scoring one point.

May Add Discus Throw.

"In conference with the Princeton track representatives, the English committee tentatively suggested, subject to the approval of Cambridge, the addition of the discus throw to the ten standard English events. Princeton has cabled an expression of willingness to have the discus included if Oxford-Cambridge should so desire.

"The Princeton Track Committee hopes that it may still be possible, after the Oxford-Cambridge-Princeton meet, for any members of the team who would prove serious competitors for the Olympic team to return in time to take part in the final Olympic tryouts at Boston."

ELEANOR SMITH A RUNNER.

Swimming Champion Wins 100-Yard Dash Title in 0:12 2-5.

Miss Eleanor Smith of the Morningside A. C., holder of women's records at breast stroke and back stroke swimming, yesterday flashed forth as a sinderpath star. In the first annual Women's athletic meet, conducted at Macombs Dam Park by the Morningside A. C., she led her fair clubmates to victory over representatives of four rival organizations. Miss Smith accounted for an individual victory and was principally responsible for a Winged M success in the quarter-mile relay, in which the existing women's American record was equaled.

The time for the race was 1:01 3-5, equaling the mark credited on the A. A. U. books to the New Haven Normal School of Gymnastics.

In the 100-yard dash Miss Smith sprinted to victory by the convincing margin of two yards over Miss M. Kuhn, War Department A. A. The swimmer-runner was clocked in 12 2-5 seconds, a matter of two-fifths of a second slower than the American record.

The summaries:

100-Yard Dash—Won by Miss Eleanor Smith, Morningside A. C.; Miss M. Kuhn, War Department A. A., second; Miss Edna McBride, Morningside A. C., third; Miss Mae Kahl, Morningside A. C., fourth. Time—0:12 2-5.

50-Yard Dash, Novice—Won by Miss Marion Gobel, Morningside A. C.; Miss M. Omack, Federal Reserve Club, second; Miss E. L. Driscoll, Federal Reserve Club, third; Miss C. McNamara, Morningside A. C., fourth. Time—0:30 2-5.

Basket Ball Throwing Contest—Won by Miss L. Kuveke, Mohawk A. C., with 75 feet; Miss M. Hannon, Young Women's Christian Association, 61 feet 8 inches, second; Miss F. Kuveke, Mohawk A. C., 55 feet 10 inches, third; Miss M. Colgan, Morningside A. C., 50 feet 8 inches, fourth.

Running Broad Jump—Won by Miss Edna McBride, Morningside A. C., with 11 feet 10¼ inches; Miss M. Hannon, Young Women's Christian Association, 10 feet 9½ inches, second; Miss I. McQuade, Mohawk A. C., 10 feet 7 inches, third; Miss L. Kuveke, Mohawk A. C., 10 feet 7 inches, fourth. (Miss McQuade won third on jump-off, with 11 feet 5¼ inches.)

50-Yard Potato Race—Won by Miss F. Kuveke, Mohawk A. C.; Miss M. Gobel, Morningside A. C., second; Miss G. Silver, Mohawk A. C., third; Miss I. McQuade, Mohawk A. C., fourth. Time—0:41 2-5.

440-Yard Relay Race—Won by Morningside A. C. (Miss E. McBride, Mrs. A. Paton, Miss M. Kahl and Miss Eleanor Smith); War Department A. A. (Misses M. Kuhn, E. Walsh, A. Alexander and P. Tenebaum), second; Federal Reserve Club (Misses M. Omack, E. Driscoll, E. Anderson and M. Madden), third; Mohawk A. C., fourth. Time—1:09 2-5.

Point score—Morningside A. C., 27 points; Mohawk A. C., 20; Federal Reserve Club, 7; War Department A. A., 6; Young Women's Christian Association, 6.

RIVAL YACHTS ARE TAKEN TO BRISTOL

Resolute to be Fitted with Its Old Steel Mast—Vanitie Has Rigging Problems.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 23.—Greatly depressed because of yesterday's accident, which compelled the abandonment of their series of testing races here, the men in charge of the Resolute and Vanitie today took the potential cup defenders to the Herreshoff yards at Bristol, R. I. Both boats left shortly before noon in charge of their tows, the Resolute still presenting a sorry spectacle from the partial wreckage created when her mast snapped during yesterday's race, the first of the series of events.

A conference held immediately after the accident led to a decision to abandon the remaining racing program here and to take both yachts to Bristol, where the Resolute will be fitted with the steel mast it wore in 1914 and 1915. This will demand a new topper, which will be provided by the Herreshoff yards. Several of the problems relating to the rigging of the Vanitie will be settled at the Bristol yards, where the two boats will remain till the trial races begin at Newport next week.

Keen disappointment is felt in this city at the cancellation of the brilliant racing program promised for this week, which has caused yachting lovers from all parts of the country to gather here. The Chamber of Commerce, the clubs, and society in general will try to induce the cup defenders of future years to attempt similar races here, where the advantages of sea, breakwater, yacht clubs and hotels are unique for New England.

RESOLUTE REACHES BRISTOL.

Anchored Off Herreshoff Yards, and Will Be Refitted.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, R. I., May 23.—The cup defender Resolute, which carried away her mainmast in a race off New Haven yesterday, arrived here just before midnight in tow of her tender, the Montauk, having a slow passage around Point Judith from New Haven in a northeaster. The Resolute was anchored off Herreshoff's boatshop, to be taken in hand tomorrow to be repaired and fitted with another mast. It is believed that it will take a week before she will be ready. The Vanitie is expected here, also, to undergo refitting at the Herreshoff boatshops for the next race.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

The Resolute's Ill-Fortune.

The loss of the Resolute's mast on Saturday, when she was engaging in the first of the series of trial races against the Vanitie, should not fail to serve as an important object lesson to those who are responsible for the construction as well as equipment of both of the defense candidates. At the time the mast carried away there was only a moderate breeze and the surface of the Sound off New Haven was comparatively smooth.

The candidate for the defense of the cup cannot be obliged to douse all lighter and softer sails for only moderate breezes if she is to have any chance against a worthy competitor. Fairly heavy ground swells and much stiffer breezes than those of last Saturday may be expected during some of the trials off Newport, as well as in the cup races themselves off Sandy Hook.

If a long, pole mast, made up as was the shattered one, of small segments of wood glued together, cannot stand the strain better than the Resolute's giant spar did, then it seems as if her old steel one would be much better. The factor of safety in that mast was supposed to have been figured out very carefully, and to be sufficient to stand all the strain that would be put upon it and much more, but the results show that the best calculations in such matters often go astray in actual practice. There was much talk prior to the accident about a wonderful Swiss glue used in fastening the wood segments together. Also there were numerous explanations of how the knowledge gained in aeronautics during the war had served in the design of that mast which went by the board, as well as of other spars used on the Resolute and Vanitie, too, including the latter's topmast.

It is to be hoped that these calculations may prove accurate, or, if not, that any further defects in design or construction of either craft may be discovered before it is too late. That this may be accomplished if is also to be hoped that the weather encountered off Newport when the two big single-stickers meet there may be of the kind that will afford the necessary tests, and that if opportunity arises those in charge of the yachts will not fail to take advantage of it to test the strength of all spars and rigging, instead of remaining snug at anchor for fear lest something might happen.

May Be the Horse of the Century.

Following his easy victory in the Preakness last week, when he just galloped home in front of the pick of the season's three-year-olds, Man o' War has been unanimously proclaimed the greatest colt of his age in the country, and some experienced horsemen have gone so far as to declare him the horse of the century. Certainly he is a grand horse, standing, courage, and all, at the present time he is without a blemish, though he has had many races and has withstood two periods of preparation.

A horse of this calibre is a distinct credit to the turf, and Man o' War will bring much prestige to racing. He is one of the products of intelligent breeding, which racing seeks to encourage among horsemen, and the manner in which he was bred will be studied by breeders desiring to perfect the race horse.

As the campaign that has been mapped out for Man o' War will keep him in three-year-old events for the greater part of the season, the public is not apt to see him in any really grueling contests, nor is he likely to be the medium of much speculation. Rather he is destined to be a turf idol, a drawing card, and people will go to see him run just to witness his speed and having little doubt about the outcome of his races.

If confined to three-year-old events exclusively, Man o' War should go through the season without a defeat if he suffers no accidents. He has already disposed of the best of his age, these being the same ones he defeated so many times as a juvenile. There is often such a material change in colts between their second and third years that it remained for Man o' War to make one appearance before it could be known how he had matured and whether any of his rivals of a year ago had developed into better racers. The Preakness seems to have disposed of that question. Many of the events in which Man o' War will race this season will call for scale weight, in which case there seems not to be a three-year-old able to keep him warmed up over any distance. Even great differences in the weight have failed to bring any of the others up to the great Fair Play colt.

If he goes through the Summer successfully and is in good condition in the Autumn it is the intention of his owner, Samuel D. Riddle, to send him then against the handicap horses of more mature years. It will be interesting to see how Man o' War performs against them.

Giants Remain in the Ruck.

The failure of the Giants to emerge from the second division and take their place with the front runners of the National League is beginning to cause concern among the big following of the McGrawmen in this city. When the team got away poorly the belief was general that it was nothing more than a streak such as all teams, strong as they may be, encounter at times. The argument was advanced that other strong aggregations were in a similar fix.

With the pennant race now almost six weeks old the club continues to wallow around far down in the second section, without anything that resembles a real spurt or winning streak. The success of the Giants in Chicago a few days ago led to the belief that perhaps the team had found itself at last, but these hopes have been dimmed by the reverses sustained in St. Louis. The Cardinals have not been rated among the top-notchers, but they have taken two in succession from the Giants, who now are less than two games out of last place.

The manner in which the games have been lost so regularly is really the main concern of the fans. The preliminary dope on the team was that it was unusually strong in the box and in the outfield, strong enough behind the bat and weak in the infield. The hitting power and speed of the combination were looked upon as strong enough to carry the club along, despite any infield weakness.

It develops, however, that the pitching staff is the real cause of the numerous setbacks encountered by the McGrawmen. Nehf and Barnes, the boxmen regarded as the headliners of a strong staff, have been pounded hard and games have slipped away from them which seemed to be won. Toney has done well in spots, while Benton and Douglas have not done anything like what was expected of them. The Big Five made up an imposing array at the start of the campaign, but batsmen of rival teams are no longer fearful of pitching prestige and a general breakdown of the staff has been one of the big disappointments of the early weeks of the campaign.

There is little doubt that a staff carrying so much strength all round to form ultimately and pitch the sort of ball of which the various members are capable. The drawback, however, is that games once lost are gone forever and some other department of the team may be sagging when the pitchers return in good form. Meantime much ground is being lost and the handicap may be a heavy one when the Giants start their climb northward.

Some startling changes are probable unless the team gets into a winning stride quickly. John McGraw always has been noted for his ability to pull big deals when a team failed to deliver up to his expectations and the record of the club this Spring has been a big disappointment to the Giants' manager. It is too strong a team to be resting in seventh place, and McGraw can be counted upon to start something if the players do not begin soon to win with more consistency than they have been doing to date.

Creditable Victory on Court.

In winning the Church Cup, the trophy offered by George Myers Church for intercity tennis competition, New York has proved again that the Metropolitan district contains an exceedingly well balanced array of talent for representation on the courts. There is no Johnson, no Tilden, no Williams here, but there are at least a score of experts who can give any of the top-notchers a fairly even battle, and in a team match every man on the side counts just as much as the outstanding star.

New York's unusual command of tennis material was emphasized by the clean sweep made by the second team and the fact that the West Side Club was able simultaneously to present an aggregation strong enough to overwhelm Harvard's "varsity players. When it is considered that such strong racqueters as Harold Throckmorton, Fred C. Baggs and Frank Anderson were not included on any of the three teams the present state of Metropolitan tennis is admittedly encouraging.

The strong representative as Vincent Richards was placed at number six in the New York singles list, while Fred C. Anderson, yesterday's winner of the Harlem Challenge Cup, occupied a similar position in the second half dozen. With such even balancing of skill all the way down the line, victory was fairly secure in spite of every possible upset. The defeat of Walter Merrill Hall by Irving Wright was totally unexpected, but Watson M. Washburn offset this by his overwhelming victory over the much discussed Davis Cup possibility, Richard Harte. Ichiya Kumagae, on the other hand, came very close to defeating Richard Norris Williams 2d, who is generally considered his superior, although given a lower rank last season, and Washburn and Mathey should have won in the doubles as well as the singles.

The capture of the Church Cup reflects credit not only on the players directly responsible but on the committee in charge of selecting and preparing the New York team, among whom President J. S. Myrick of the National Association and Samuel Hardy assumed the chief responsibility. There was real work done here in getting ready for the intercity matches, and the results were apparent on the courts at Forest Hills.

American Henley in Ascendant.

Several developments last week in collegiate rowing have unusual significance. Without attempting to make a mountain out of a molehill, followers of the sport who have come to regard the Poughkeepsie regatta as the crowning event of the season feel none too hopeful this Spring. A number of causes have brought about the feeling that everything is not running serenely, but there has been the wholly unexpected announcement that Harvard will enter a big intercollegiate regatta—not at Poughkeepsie but on the Schuylkill—in the American Henley.

This year's Henley events will be the greatest in history not only in the usual Stewards' Challenge Cup race to be held, but the famous old Childs Cup Regatta is to be combined with them. Cornell also is considering entering the Henley this year, and with the Navy, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Princeton and Syracuse the representation of colleges will be the greatest ever. The Childs Cup race on Friday will be a preliminary heat for the Stewards' Challenge Cup fixture, which will be rowed Saturday.

In years past Poughkeepsie stood for the highest in college rowing competition. It naturally overshadowed the annual Yale-Harvard classic, because it included more than two crews. But there are signs that its foundations are shaking. First of all there will be only four colleges entered this year, and some would like to see another Syracuse crew race, because of lack of training quarters, her old plant at Highland having been scrapped during the last few years when there have been no regattas on the upper Hudson. Wisconsin will not send a crew East; Stanford, whose men were the heroes in 1915, has abandoned rowing; and there are no assurances that either of the Pacific Coast eights, Washington or California, will be dispatched to the Hudson.

Whether the widening of interest in the Henley is to be permanent or only for this year remains to be seen. Whether Harvard and Cornell will appear in 1921 and thereafter is irrelevant. The facts are that the name Henley stands for rowing on a grand scale, the British event having taken its place as probably the greatest rowing competition in the world. An American Henley, restricted in the past, seems headed for expansion and could very easily succeed to a place formerly occupied by Poughkeepsie.

TRAVERS IN FORM IN GOLF FOURSOME

Plays Brilliantly in Jersey Exhibition Match, Though He and Braid Are Defeated.

Jerry Travers is following true to prediction this Spring. During the Winter his clubmates at Upper Montclair promised that this was to be his great comeback year and that he would be seen frequently on nearby courses swatting the ball in old-time form and rolling down the putts across seemingly impossible distances. Travers started last Wednesday in the New York-New Jersey team matches at Englewood, and yesterday, for the second time in less than a week, showed himself publicly for an exhibition match.

It is of minor importance that he was on the losing side yesterday, but it will interest local golfers intensely to realize that the one-time champion of everything in sight is again playing golf regularly and brilliantly. Travers has made no promises about entering the national title tournaments this Summer or even about playing in the local championships next month, but his activity is taken as an indication that he may seek to regain his lost laurels.

Yesterday, at Upper Montclair, Travers paired with the club professional, Willie Braid, for a best-ball tussle, but got the worst of the deal after thirty-six holes of exciting golf. The winners were William C. Reekie, the Leslay Cup veteran, and S. M. Harding, and the score after the all-day battle was 1 up.

In the morning round Travers and Braid won the first two holes, and kept this advantage at the turn, since the other seven were halved. Reekie and Harding pulled together on the inward journey, however, when their opponents faltered ever so slightly, and the rest for luncheon found all hands squared. Again in the afternoon it was nip and tuck. Each side won two holes, and they were all even at the turn.

Coming in Reekie and Harding won the tenth, halved the next three, lost the fourteenth, to set the match all square once more, but when Travers needed six on the seventeenth, the Reekie-Harding best ball was five, and this resulted in the deciding hole.

The best ball scores follow:

New York Symphony Director Says Strikes Have Dogged Orchestra's Tour.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, May 22.—"This is by no means my first visit to this country of music and flowers," said Walter Damrosch, Director of the New York Symphony Orchestra, in an interview with THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent. "I was in Italy during the lifetime of that great composer, Verdi, and visited him at his villa of Sant' Agata, near Piacenza, where we had a perfect orgy of conversation on music.

"Once one has tasted the fascination of this beautiful land, the desire is ever alive to see it again, so I came here once again with my family just before the outbreak of the war.

"But I have come to the conclusion that one must live at least a year in Italy to appreciate all her beauties. This, however, is my first professional visit. Nothing could have been more generous or friendly than the reception the Italians have accorded to me. At Genoa, when I first appeared on the platform, I was received with friendly handclapping, which increased to deafening applause as the concert progressed and reaching delirious heights when our orchestra played the Italian Royal March, followed immediately by The Star-Spangled Banner.

"This is the first time an American orchestra has come to Europe to demonstrate the progress the United States is making in the musical culture acquired from the fount of all the arts, Italy. I have always been interested in the music of this country, and see with pleasure that Italians are turning more and more to orchestral music, led by Zandonai, Molinari and others. Whatever political or economic friction may exist between America and Italy, at heart we are true friends, drawn together, united by our common love of music.

"Millions of Italians who emigrate to our country become good American citizens. We cannot possibly do without Italy; we need her. It is from her that all civilization has emanated. From her we get our conception of beauty in music, architecture and painting. We cannot afford to lose her friendship.

"We have been dogged all through our tour of France by strikes. When we landed at Havre there was a railway strike and a taxi strike in Paris and in Bordeaux. I was forced to cancel my visit to Lyons because of a railway strike. While in Marseilles I saw from my balcony a regular riot. The tranquillity and peace of Rome is refreshing."

Mr. Damrosch has won Italian hearts with his winning smile, friendly manners and his love for Italy. Every second of his time is occupied with dinners, luncheons and receptions given in his honor. A large number of notables were invited to meet him at the Capitol, where Vice Mayor Lanciani greeted him in the name of Rome. Ambassador Johnson gave a luncheon and a reception, the guests including Cardinal O'Connell, the personnel of the Embassy, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Gay of Boston. The Academy of Saint Cecilia gave a large reception in his honor, all the notables of the musical world being present.

The Italian public greeted the reappearance of Albert Spalding with great enthusiasm, remembering his ability, genius, and the delightful hours passed in hearing him a year ago. Mr. Spalding expressed his appreciation of the friendly reception received throughout Italy.

ROME, May 23.—The New York Symphony Orchestra at its second concert here tonight was received with enthusiastic applause. Walter Damrosch, the Director, and Albert Spalding, solo violinist, were frequently compelled to respond to encores.

SUES STANDARD OIL.

$10,000,000 Asked in State Action in Mississippi.

TUPELO, Miss., May 23.—Penalties aggregating more than $10,000,000 are asked in a suit filed in the Chancery Court on Saturday at the direction of Attorney General Frank Robertson of Mississippi against the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, alleging violation of the State anti-trust law.

The bill of complaint charges that the defendant company sought to monopolize production and distribution of petroleum products in Mississippi, and, in conjunction with the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and with "other alleged subsidiary companies," to stifle competition. The bill alleges that the Standard Oil Company of Ohio also had conceived a design of monopolizing the business in which it is engaged in the United States.

Answer to the suit is expected to be filed at the June term of court. Maximum penalties of $5,000 a day are asked in the complaint.

SON'S ORDEAL KILLS MOTHER

She Dies in Picture Show as He Undergoes Operation.

Emil Blust of 1,294 Willoughby Avenue, Brooklyn, who was operated upon for appendicitis on Saturday, died yesterday afternoon in St. Catherine's Hospital. Blust called vainly during the day for his mother whose dead body was then lying in their home.

To distract her mind from the coming ordeal of her son, Mrs. Blust went Saturday afternoon to a moving picture show. At its close she was found sitting dead in her chair. Word of this reached the police of the Wilson Avenue Station just as they received the news from St. Catherine's Hospital that Emil was in a critical condition and was calling for his mother.

Emil was calmed by the assurance that his mother would soon be with him.

BARBERS PREDICT VICTORY.

Strikers Expect Shops to Sign New Agreement This Week.

Union leaders declared last night that they expected the barbers' strike to end this week. Hugh Frayne, representative of the American Federation of Labor, said that he looked for an early settlement. Leon Worthall, international organizer, and Frank Raymond, President of the local in Manhattan, said master barbers were signing the new agreement every day.

Meanwhile, their spokesmen declare the boss barbers are standing firm and that many strikers are returning to work on the old basis.

$20,000 Testimonial for W. R. Sill.

A testimonial performance in aid of William R. Sill took place last night at the Globe Theatre before an audience which packed the house. A contribution from George M. Cohan of $1,000 brought the total receipts close to $20,000. The feature of the evening was the reappearance of Joe Weber and Lew Fields in one of their old scenes, assisted by Lillian Russell, Sam Bernard and James J. Corbett.

THE SCREEN

For many people the most interesting part of a motion picture program, as a rule, is that which is variously described as the "topical," "magazine" or "pictorial," and the leading Broadway houses, for some time past, seem to have been devoting more and more time and attention to this division of their entertainment, enriching it with travel, scenic, instructional pictures dealing with subjects that before everything else are entertaining, as they should be. The Rivoli Pictorial this week is a good illustration of what had been done along this line. It includes, of course, the usual news pictures and, supplementing them views of blooming flowers, a slow-motion study of girls diving and a charming bit from the Colora Picture Corporation called "The Bubble," in which a graceful young woman dances while playing with a gently floating balloon, the whole being reproduced in life-like colors. Immediately following the pictured dance, Miss Desha, herself, dances "The Bubble" on the stage in a pleasing setting, as though the animated photograph had come to life. The effect is good and won deserved applause yesterday afternoon.

The photoplay at the Rivoli is a screen version of Israel Zangwill's "Nurse Marjorie," done into a scenario by Julia Crawford Ivers, and directed by William Desmond Taylor, with Mary Miles Minter in the leading rôle. One imagines that some liberty has been taken with Mr. Zangwill's work, for it is difficult to assume that that author went as far with improbability and unreality as the Minter movie does. However, although it doesn't mean anything, the photoplay will probably have interest for those who enjoy Miss Minter and a supporting cast that includes, especially, little Frankie Lee, Lydia Yeamans Titus and Frank Leigh, with Clyde Fillmore, Vera Lewis and Arthur Hoyt sufficient for their parts. The story, as many may know, is about how Lady Marjorie Donegal horrifies her noble relatives by becoming a hospital nurse and finds a husband among her patients, a Parliamentary Labor leader who holds his place as "the people's John" while protecting his wealthy father against a strike.

The Strand's Topical Review is also rich in entertainment this week and in addition there are two numbers on the program that deserve special mention. One, from the Educational Films Corporation, is entitled "Modern Centaurs," and shows amazing feats of horses and horsemanship in a thrilling cross-country run, beside which the usual staged thriller is tame. The other is an Outing-Chester scenic showing some of the ceremonies of Samoan natives. It is interesting as, in a way, illustrating Frederick O'Brien's Marquesan story, "White Shadows on the South Seas," which, incidentally and noteworthily, is going to be translated into moving pictures, but surely some of the "Pigs and Kava" text stretches the truth a bit when it suggests the present-day practice of cannibalism among the natives shown, who probably were paid in money and rum for their performance.

The photoplay at the Strand is "Jes' Call Me Jim," an adaptation made by Thompson Buchanan of James G. Holland's "Seven Oaks," directed by Clarence G. Badger, with Will Rogers in the leading rôle. If it were not for Rogers's personality and his definite, if apparently artless, impersonation of Jim Fenton, this work would be a melodrama of the most far-fetched and unconvincing type, and this despite the excellent acting of Raymond Hatton, in a serious rôle new to him, and the adequate playing of Irene Rich, Lionel Belmore, Bert Sprotee, Nick Cogley and Rogers's little son, Jimmie. The story tells of the final triumph of a defrauded inventor over the man who had robbed him and kept him confined in a cell under conditions which prevented his recovery from insanity. It is owing to the resourcefulness and determination of Jim, inspired by his Miss Butterworth, that all comes out right in the end for the inventor and also for himself and the lady of his inspiration. Rogers gives character to this Jim, and the touches of genuine humor in his acting, though uniquely his own, become definitely Jim's for the time being.

The picture is also much the better for a number of outdoor scenic effects.

"Old Lady 31," taken by June Mathis as scenarist and John E. Ince as director from Rachel Crothers's play, with Emma Dunn in the part she had on the stage, is the photodramatic offering at the Capitol this week. This carefully contrived story of humor and sentimentality, despite the obvious artificiality of its arrangement, will undoubtedly have much of the popularity it enjoyed on the stage, and mainly through the unerring performance of Emma Dunn and Henry Harmon as the elderly couple in an old ladies' home. Both their characters are marked with sincerity and cannot fail in their appeal. The others in the cast, principally Carrie Clark Ward, as the matron of the home; Clara Knott, as Blossie, and Lawrence Underwood, as Captain Darby, hold their own well. The "old ladies," as a group, give all of the desired atmosphere. The photoplay, however, remains simply a picturized reproduction of the stage play, a good substitute for it, not individually a motion picture.

The Capitol program also includes "Waters of Destiny," a Robertson-Cole scenic.

Cecil B. De Mille's "Why Change Your Wife?" is entering its last week at the Criterion; "The Sea Wolf" has moved from the Rivoli to the Rialto, and Rex Beach's "The Silver Horde" remains for its second week at B. S. Moss's Broadway.

Lambs Gambol June 6.

The annual public gambol of the Lambs is announced for Sunday night, June 6, at the Hippodrome. The program, as is customary, will be made up of the best sketches and bits which have been performed in the Lambs' clubhouse during the past season. Augustus Thomas, Emmett Corrigan, Edward Peple, Hassard Short, Percival Knight and others will be represented.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Marc Klaw will sail next week for Europe, where he will seek plays for production here. A theatre will be built on West Forty-fifth Street by Mr. Klaw and his sons under the corporate name of Marc Klaw, Jrs.

This will be the final week of "Adam and Eva" at the Longacre.

Mabel Grete, toe dancer, will join the cast of "Honey Girl" at the Cohan and Harris tonight.

"Two Kisses," a comedy by the late Harry James Smith, will be tried out by Stuart Walker in Indianapolis this Summer. Blanche Yurka has joined Mr. Walker's stock company.

"The Passing Show of 1919" is entering upon its final two weeks at the Winter Garden. "Cinderella on Broadway" will be the succeeding attraction.

Joseph McCarthy and Harry Tierney, composers of "Irene," are writing additional numbers for the new Ziegfeld "Follies."

A Man for Women, but Not a "Woman's Man."

Advertising Measles

In the lower forms of advertising life, the obsessing idea is to put a picture of the factory into the space. If possible, two pictures of the factory.

During the next stage of evolution, the advertising manufacturer begins every sentence with "we" and tells all about his business.

When at length he becomes convinced that the way to sell his prospective customers is to tell them of their wants, he has graduated from the tyro class.

But there is one more case of advertising measles he has to have. This is the semi-colon.

It is a matter of life and death importance to him whether it be a comma or a semi-colon; whether "gotten" is better than "got"; whether the triangle or the circle has the deeper "psychological" import.

From the semi-colon attack there emerges the real advertiser who realizes that 99% of the importance of his message is to make the reader realize a want which will be adequately filled by the advertiser's product.

Sincerity of belief dictates the message, and semi-colons and psychological triangles take care of themselves.

Short Time Bonds
Yielding 7% to 8%

Present conditions have resulted in a great deal of short-term financing because many Governments, Municipalities and Corporations needing funds are unwilling to pay present high rates of interest over a long period. This gives the investor an exceptional opportunity to get sound security coupled with a high rate of interest.

We shall be glad to send investors a list of such Short Time Bonds upon request.

Investment Opportunities

During the past few years the advance in the cost of commodities has been reflected by a decline in the price of high grade corporation securities to a point where they now yield from 7% to 8%. With the decrease in commodity prices investment securities should show a corresponding advance.

We believe the present is a very favorable time to purchase securities as it affords an opportunity to obtain a high yield over a number of years.

Liquidation at Home and Abroad Paves Way to Normal Business Basis.

The course of market events in the last few days has been so rapid as to submerge ideas of the present in contemplation of what they may portend for the future. It is plain enough that the wave of liquidation in commodities, securities and credit indicates a movement toward a new business basis. Furthermore, developments in the several markets have been closely bound together and the joint procedure discloses for the first time since the Federal Reserve Board issued its initial warning against undue credit use last November that bankers, manufacturers, merchants and the public have become united, whether willingly or not, in a process which means more normal conditions than had prevailed since the war ended. A matter of primary interest lies in the fact that present economic happenings are not peculiar to the United States. The cables have brought news of similar processes at work in the markets in England, and the attitude of America toward prices and credit is being reflected in France. Looking backward, it seems possible that the business depression which smote Japan heavily in April was but a forerunner, though one of greater severity, of occurrences in other countries where inflation had run rampant. In Japan the undoing of excessive speculation occurred rather suddenly with a shock and a profound influence upon business. There is no reason to expect that the gamut from one extreme to the other will be run in the United States as in the Far Eastern country. On the contrary, underlying conditions of banking and business here are sound; and what has thus far happened forecasts much progress toward a stable basis. It is to be remembered that the program for reducing bank loans, particularly those vested in speculative holdings of securities and commodities, had been undertaken by the banks long before the current fall of prices began. Presumably good results would have been discernible from this movement, coupled with the growing decision of consumers of goods to refuse to buy at going prices, had railroad strikes and consequent congestion of traffic not occurred. Railroad difficulties undoubtedly had much to do with last week's events. Pressed by the banks to reduce their loans, producers and distributers of goods were unable to deliver and receive payment for products already sold and so were forced to raise money in other ways. They sold assets which could be realized upon quickest, and these were Government war bonds. Quite likely they sold other bonds as well, and perhaps stocks figured in the situation, although the heavy sales of stocks were traceable more directly to the unsettlement of owners' confidence in the maintenance of large industrial profits. The signal for such liquidation was sounded in the sudden spread of cut price sales throughout the West, and in evidence that because of inadequate transportation manufacturers had been forced in many directions to cut down operations at mill and factory.

From banking quarters the slogan for business and finance was sounded during the week, "Don't lose your heads." The news of price reductions of 20, 30 and even 50 per cent. was of a calibre to promote hysteria among merchants with large stocks of goods and possibly too sanguine expectations on the part of consumers. While the portent of falling prices was a lowering of living costs, there were last week, and will continue to be for some time, factors militating against a prolonged decline. As Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board stated before Reserve Bank officers at Washington, the post-war period has brought decreased instead of increased production. Dispatches from all the cities reporting sales of marked-down merchandise also recounted a rush of buyers at the new figures. The country is in need of a vast amount of products, and unless output expands it is certain that the time will come, probably sooner than later, when it is found that stocks have been consumed in large part. Also, the major cost of production, wages, has not been liquidated abreast of goods; in fact, at the same time that prices have fallen textile wages at certain New England mills have been advanced 15 per cent. and the Railroad Labor Board is considering suggestions from railway managers that the wage rates of several classes of workers be equalized upward.

It is likely that the trend of prices of merchandise and other goods and materials will continue to be directed more by the situation of credit than any other single factor. The refusal of banks to renew many old loans and their insistence that borrowings be reduced undoubtedly has forced a lot of goods upon the market which otherwise might have been retained on the shelves, or at least would have been offered at smaller concessions than those reported. The rapid climb of prices during the first quarter of the year brought sizable paper profits to wholesalers and others who are now liquidating, and it is an open question whether sales at the present time, at reduced quotations, are causing any great actual losses. But credit is necessary to carry stocks of materials, and forced selling may be expected to continue at least so long as the lenders of credit maintain that loans are not low enough.

Sponsors of the Soldier Bonus act are evidently hearing from the folks at home, who do not subordinate economic facts to political expediency. The postponement of a report on the bill to the House at the end of the week showed that. Men in excellent position to judge effects in advance are convinced that the proposed impost upon security and realty transfers would have so deadening an effect upon the markets that all sorts of capital-raising operations would be seriously retarded. The hope of raising several hundred millions through an "excise tax" upon corporations issuing stock dividends is exploded by the certainty that stock dividends would practically cease as soon as the law was enacted.

Discussion across the Atlantic of a great loan based upon the German indemnity, indorsed by the allied countries and floated solely in Europe, is indicative of one important development. This is the renewal of confidence within the debt-ridden countries themselves that they can begin to handle their financial affairs without so much assistance from outside as they wanted a few months ago. Probably this influence had much to do with the strength of the European exchanges last week. The German mark sold at New York at two and a half times its value last February, while French, Italian and Belgian quotations were notably firm at all times.

Convertible Note Yielding 8%

The Company has shown an increase in net earnings of over 150% during the last 7 years. It operates in one of the most important oil refining and rice producing centers in the United States and is in the heart of the southwestern lumber district.

The Company is very conservatively capitalized. Dividends of 6% per annum have been paid on its preferred stock for the last 9 years. The common stock, into which the notes are convertible, is paying dividends of 8% per annum and earnings are largely in excess of that amount.

OIL PRICES VS. LIQUIDATION

Properly managed oil companies will show their stockholders unprecedented earnings this summer. It is now evident that the warm months will bring a considerable increase in production and there is an urgent demand for every barrel that can be brought to the surface. Higher prices for oil products are likely even in face of present declines in other lines.

The general industry, relatively not dependent on labor, is in splendid shape and good oil shares should not follow any extended price liquidation, should such prove to be on the calendar.

Report Shows $24,000,000 Decrease in Gross Business, but Profits Are Near 1919 Level.

ITS SECOND BEST YEAR

Reduction in Interest and Other Fixed Charges Responsible for Year's Good Showing.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company in its annual report for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1920, reports a gross business nearly $24,000,000 below the 1919 figures, but since taxes and the like came down proportionately the net manufacturing profit of $15,079,630 is less than $700,000 below the 1919 level. The gross business of the year was $130,952,192, or the second largest ever reported by the company. In 1919 the company reported a gross of $160,379,943.

The gross income from all sources was $16,801,164, as compared with $17,335,808 in the report of the preceding fiscal year. Interest charges were, however, substantially reduced during 1920, and the net income available for dividends in the year just closed was $15,206,341, or the equivalent of $10.51 a share on the outstanding common stock after providing for preferred dividends. In the preceding year the amount available for dividends was $15,059,003, which, after preferred dividends, was equivalent to $10.43 a share on the common stock of $50 par value.

The balance sheet shows current assets of $101,696,951 and current liabilities of $31,002,540. Working capital of $70,894,411 shows a high percentage as related to gross business. The surplus of the company at the end of March was $43,435,763. In 1919 the working capital of the company was $69,804,611. Inventories in the present report are placed at $48,018,123, as compared with $59,550,262 in the preceding year.

In his remarks to stockholders Guy E. Tripp, Chairman of the board, says in part:

"Throughout the year, but more particularly during the last six months, there was a gradually increasing demand for the products of your company. The value of unfilled orders on April 1, 1920, was $71,156,782.

"Dividends at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum were declared quarterly during the year, and aggregated $5,994,596.67. Other charges aggregating $1,733,411.35 were made against surplus, as called in the consolidated statement of income and profit and loss. The surplus as of March 31, 1920, is $43,435,763.55, being an increase of $7,488,051.25 over the surplus at the beginning of the year.

"The property and plant account, representing real estate, buildings, equipment, &c., shows a reduction as compared with the previous year, due in part to the sale of certain plants which were engaged mainly in the manufacture of munitions.

"The negotiations for the sale of certain investments in foreign companies, referred to in the report for the previous year, were satisfactorily completed. This sale, together with the sale of your company's holdings of Liberty Loan bonds and Victory Loan notes, mainly accounts for the considerable reduction in the item of investments as compared with the report for the previous year.

"The large volume of business in hand explains the necessity for the large investment in inventories.

"The development and extension of the business of your company, together with the increased costs of operation due to higher wages and higher prices for raw materials, have required a large amount of additional capital. These requirements were met in part by the sale of certain investments in other companies, principally your foreign holdings, and in part from surplus earnings retained in the business.

"The current demand for the products of your company is in excess of its present plant capacity and a continuation of this demand will make necessary further additional facilities and still larger working capital."

Commodity Liquidation & Security Values

The effect of inflation is to increase the price of commodities and to decrease the price of bonds. The following table has been prepared to show how far this process has gone since May, 1914. For example, an unskilled laborer can now exchange 15.4 days labor for $100 Union Pacific First Mortgage 4% Bonds, as against 55.4 days labor in 1914. A planter can now exchange 188 pounds of cotton for the same bond as against 746 pounds in May, 1914.

Quantity of Commodities Exchangeable for $100. Union Pacific First 4's

| | In May 1914 | In May 1920 |
|---|---|---|
| Unskilled day labor | 55.4 days | 15.4 days |
| Sugar—ref. gran. | 2,395 lbs. | 350 lbs. |
| Cotton | 746 lbs. | 188 lbs. |
| Steel rails | 3.46 tons | 1.40 tons |
| Steel sheets | 5,243 lbs. | 1,400 lbs. |
| Pig iron | 3.58 tons | 1.64 tons |
| Copper | 685 lbs. | 405 lbs. |
| Wool—100 grades ave. | 408 lbs. | 114 lbs. |
| Wheat | 88½ bu. | 24 bu. |
| Corn | 121 bu. | 34½ bu. |
| Live beef | 1,311 lbs. | 664 lbs. |
| Leather—hemlock sole | 323 lbs. | 148 lbs. |
| Oil—Ref. petroleum | 746 gal. | 296 gal. |
| Coal—Nut anthracite | 15½ tons | 5.6 tons |
| Newsprint | 4,311 lbs. | 700 lbs. |
| Brick—Common | 13.85 M. | 3.08 M. |
| Yellow pine | 3,233 feet | 700 feet |

Temporary causes have produced these striking results, but inevitably the demand for commodities will decrease and their production increase. As commodity prices fall an enormous amount of capital now invested in them will be released and lower interest rates will stimulate the demand for bonds.

Recent price cutting indicates that these economic laws have begun to operate. The readjustment of commodity prices and bond prices may be slow, but we believe that purchasers have an unparalleled opportunity at the present time to buy high-grade investment bonds, which will eventually show them handsome profits and splendid return in the meantime.

We have prepared a list of high-grade bonds, including Liberty Bonds, which we recommend for investment.

Safeguarding the Investor

Number Four of a Series

Investors frequently find it difficult to decide whether to buy bonds, preferred or common stock.

There is no general rule which will enable one to decide this question wisely.

A bond, of one company may be a poor investment while the common stock of another may be a safe as well as an exceedingly profitable investment. The mere fact that an investment is a bond does not necessarily give it the desired safety.

Generally speaking, however, additional safety is offered to the bondholder by reason of the fact that he is a creditor and his principal must be returned to him in case of liquidation before any payment is made to the stockholder, who is in the position of a partner.

The stockholder on the other hand while sharing in possible reverses also participates in the success of the corporation through increased dividends, while the bondholder because of his prior lien is limited to a fixed rate of interest.

In determining the safety or desirability of bonds, or preferred or common stock, the investor will find it to his advantage to consult with an Investment Banker whose experience and reputation assures an able and unbiased opinion.

HARD COAL MINERS TO GET NEW OFFER

Secretary Wilson to Present Proposal Today in Excess of 15 Per Cent. Granted by Owners.

EMPLOYERS WOULD CONCUR

If Convention Rejects Increase It Will Be Asked to Consider Having President Name Commission.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 23.—Wage increases exceeding the 15 per cent. advance already offered by the operators and recognition of the union is granted the anthracite mine workers in a tentative contract prepared by Secretary of Labor Wilson, to be presented at the Tri-District Miners' Convention which opens here tomorrow, John L. Lewis, international President of the United Mine Workers, announced tonight.

While not officially approved by the operators, it is understood that they will agree to the proposals of the Secretary of Labor if they are accepted by the hard coal miners.

In event the new wage propositions are rejected the convention will be asked to pass on President Wilson's plan to have the entire controversy settled by a commission to be appointed by the President.

Mr. Lewis declined tonight to divulge the details of Secretary Wilson's proposals, but said that they would probably be made public tomorrow after being presented to the delegates.

"I cannot discuss the merits of the wage proposal or that of the appointment of a commission," said Mr. Lewis. "That is a matter for the men to decide entirely among themselves."

President Wilson's commission proposal will be fought in the convention, it was learned tonight, when several groups of delegates from one district reported that they had been instructed by their local unions to oppose any suggestion to submit the dispute to a commission.

District officials of the mine workers declared tonight that there was little possibility of a strike being ordered, and expressed confidence that the controversy will be amicably adjusted without any stoppage of work. They indicated that they would urge the adoption of the President's plan in event Secretary Wilson's proposals are rejected.

Approximately 500 delegates, representing the coal miners of the three anthracite districts of Pennsylvania, are expected to attend the opening of the convention tomorrow morning.

GIVE CIVIL SERVICE PLEDGES.

Six Presidential Aspirants Call It Foundation of Efficiency.

Belief in civil service as the foundation of efficiency in government has been expressed by General Leonard Wood, Herbert Hoover, William G. McAdoo, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Governor James M. Cox and Governor Frank O. Lowden, in reply to letters sent to Presidential candidates, according to an announcement made yesterday by the National Civil Service Reform League, 3 West Fortieth Street. Each was declared to have said he favored the extension of the civil service system to the diplomatic and consular service of the United States.

Mr. McAdoo stated in his reply that he was not a candidate for President. Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall and Secretary of War Newton D. Baker said they did not attempt to answer the question because they were not candidates. Governor Calvin Coolidge's secretary wrote that the Governor did not wish to make a statement at this time, but favored the merit system. William J. Bryan, according to his secretary, was away on a lecture tour. No replies were received from the other candidates addressed.

WOOLENS HIGH IN EUROPE.

Profiteering Prices Force Buyer to Return Without Any Purchases.

There is little hope of the cost of clothing being reduced next season if European profiteers in woolen continue to hold to their present high prices, in the opinion of H. W. Siebert, a woolen buyer who returned on the Nieuw Amsterdam yesterday from a six months' tour of the woolen centre. He said he had come back without making any purchases, adding that other American buyers were doing likewise rather than pay the extortionate prices demanded.

"I was astonished by the prices wanted by woolen dealers abroad," he declared. "It would have been foolish for me to buy. If I had purchased at the prices asked it would have been impossible for a tailor here to make a suit or overcoat out of the patterns for less than $150. I am not the only American buyer who has refused to buy because of these profiteers."

Italians Bar War Aid to Poland.

MILAN, May 22.—Decision to refuse to work on war materials destined for Poland or Japan was reached at a meeting held by Socialists here last night. The Railwaymen's Union, the Seamen's Federation and the Confederation of Labor took an active part in the meeting in reaching this decision.

WARFIELD RENEWS RAIL CONTROL PLEA

Proposes National Corporation as Only Means of Continuing Private Ownership.

UNIFIED FACILITIES NEEDED

Otherwise Demoralized Service May Force Seizure on an Unwilling Country, He Says.

S. Davies Warfield, President of the National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities, in a statement issued yesterday, urges the establishment of a national corporation to co-ordinate railroad facilities and policy as the only means of continuing under private ownership.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's proposal for a national corporation for supplying equipment should be extended to other facilities, Mr. Warfield declared. He quotes a newspaper article in which the commission's order for the appointment of twenty-six traffic committees is referred to as "a complete vindication of policy of Government control."

"It may well be asked," he continues, "how long will the railroads themselves require that Government control—for it amounts to this—shall continue? These committees will be required to function until some other method is adopted to 'supply the co-operative action' the Commission points out is now lacking, or until Government control so fastens itself upon the railroads that Government ownership will be forced upon an unwilling country.

Roads Fail to Meet Situation.

"The forces now at work to produce it have succeeded in demoralizing railroad service. The railroads thus far have failed to meet this situation. Within three months from their return to the owners, we find the railroads' invoking powers granted to the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Transportation act, which powers together with other vital provisions now in the Act the Association of Railway Executives opposed being enacted to the Commission. Without these provisions in the Transportation act the Commission would be without power in this crisis to relieve the railroads and supply the needs of transportation.

"It is clear that the railroads cannot continue as privately owned and operated properties under conditions that will fail to supply the means for such 'co-operative action' and methods as the transportation necessities of the country demand.

"The National Association of Owners of Railroad Securities asked the committees of Congress over a year ago for the creation under Federal act, of the National Railways Association, to operate without profit, with trustees to be composed of practical railroad operating, traffic and financial men and of Interstate Commerce commissions or representatives of the commission delegated by it from its staff.

What the Corporation Would Do.

"This corporation would deal with questions involving the joint use of railroad facilities, diversion of equipment from one railroad to another, the purchase of emergency equipment to be leased to railroads in times like the present, the division of rates and the rate gateways of the country, joint use of terminals and numerous other things.

"These trustees would be in constant contact with the railroads in the various sections of the country and with the needs of transportation. Benefits which unified operation or co-operative use of facilities might produce would thus be worked out in the public interest. Such a corporation in co-operation with the commission could make better use in the public interest of the fund to be created from excess earnings than any other agency.

"To meet existing conditions this corporation could now be organized under the general law. Later, upon reassembling, Congress could pass such an act as might be deemed essential to give a permanent structure to the corporation. The commission, in forming its present emergency plans, could have this in contemplation."

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Irving T. Bush, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, announces that the time for filing applications for the annual commercial examinations has been extended to June 1. The examinations, which cover the qualifications of applicants to promote American trade in foreign fields, will be held between June 17 and June 30.

The Hanes Knitting Company has called a meeting of stockholders for June 2, according to announcement by Moyse & Holmes. The Directors are to propose a common stock dividend of 150 per cent.

Hartshorne, Fales & Co., members of the Stock Exchange, have just issued a third letter on the General Asphalt Company, discussing in detail the Venezuelan oil interests and general business of this company.

WATER FRONT of NEW YORK CITY

Even prior to the founding of the Bank of the Manhattan Company, in 1799, New York had established its primacy as the great commercial center of the New World. By 1806 the revenue of the Port of New York amounted to one-quarter of the National revenue. Maps of the period show great docks and shipyards on both waterfronts, the East River being thickly lined with shipping as far north as the present site of the Manhattan Bridge—then the outskirts of the City. The Rhinelanders, the Rutgers, the Swartwouts—names prominent in the annals of the Bank—appear in early records as owners of large wharves and shipyards. Among the early depositors of the Bank of the Manhattan Company were such outstanding shipping merchants as Archibald Gracie, John W. Low and G. G. Howland. The founders of the famous Black Ball Line, established in 1816, included Francis Thompson and Isaac Wright, two of the original stockholders in the Merchants' Bank (now merged into the Bank of the Manhattan Company). That great era of American shipping, lasting up to the Civil War, was furthered not a little by wise financial support from the Bank of the Manhattan Company.

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

JOHN B. ROSE COMPANY
ROSE BRICK COMPANY

Notice of Modification of Plan and Agreement of Reorganization.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned Committee, pursuant to the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization dated January 27, 1919, has modified the said Plan and has filed a signed statement of the proposed changes with the depositary, THE NEW YORK TRUST COMPANY, 26 Broad Street, New York, of which copies may be obtained on application.

The proposed changes in the Plan are in substance as follows:

I.

As to the New Company to be organized to acquire the business and assets formerly of the Rose Brick Company.

(a) The issuance of Series A Notes shall be discontinued.

(b) In lieu of the issuance of Series B Notes, there shall be issued to participating creditors 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock, without voting power, in an amount equal to the total amount of their deposited claims against Rose Brick Company as allowed, less all amounts paid to such creditors out of the assets of subsidiary or affiliated companies or out of the estate of John B. Rose individually upon claims in respect of which Rose Brick Company was also liable.

II.

As to the New Company intended to be organized to acquire the business and assets formerly of John B. Rose Company.

There is no need for the organization of the proposed New Company as the Reorganization Committee said at an advantageous price the business and assets of the John B. Rose Company acquired by it. The funds in the hands of the Reorganization Committee distributable to participating creditors of John B. Rose Company, after the deduction of the compensation and expenses of the Committee, will be presently distributed among such participating creditors pro rata according to the amount of their deposited claims against John B. Rose Company, as allowed, less all amounts paid to such creditors out of the assets of affiliated companies or out of the estate of John B. Rose individually, upon claims in respect of which John B. Rose Company was also liable.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit may, ON OR BEFORE JUNE 15, 1920, on surrender of their respective Certificates of Deposit to the depositary, and upon payment of a sum equal to 5% of the claims represented thereby, as their pro rata share of the compensation and expenses of the Committee, withdraw their claims.

All creditors not so making such payment and surrendering their Certificates of Deposit and withdrawing their claims, shall irrevocably be deemed to have assented to said modification of said Plan, and shall be bound thereby as fully and effectively as if they had actually and expressly assented thereto.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—There is marked disturbance apparently a short distance west of Bermuda, with a north-northwestward movement, and advisory warnings have been issued accordingly. Pressure remains high over the Northeast and has risen somewhat over the central portion of the country, while a rapid fall following closely in the westward rise has set in over the Far West.

It is considerably cooler in the Middle Atlantic States, the Middle Mississippi Valley, Western Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Northwest Texas, Idaho and Western Montana and warmer in the Lower Lake region and the near Northwest.

Unsettled and showery weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday in the Middle Atlantic States and New England and on Monday in the Lower Lake region and the Ohio Valley, followed by generally fair weather Tuesday. Over the Upper Lake region and the South fair weather will prevail Monday and Tuesday. Temperature changes will not be decided except that it will be somewhat cooler Monday in the Ohio Valley and the lower Lake region.

Winds off the Atlantic Coast—North of Sandy Hook will be fresh northeast winds; Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh northeast winds, becoming moderate to light east of Longitude 70, with rain. Hatteras to Florida Straits: Gentle to moderate shifting winds, except east and northeast off the Florida coast; fair weather. The west gulf: Gentle winds, mostly northwest and north; generally fair over the west Gulf, moderate southeast winds; fair weather.

FORECASTS FOR TODAY AND TUESDAY.

Delaware, New Jersey—Unsettled Monday and Tuesday, probably occasional showers; little change in temperature.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Unsettled Monday and Tuesday, probably occasional showers.

Eastern New York—Local showers Monday; Tuesday cloudy, probably showers south portion; little change in temperature.

Southern New England—Cloudy Monday, rain at night or Tuesday; little change in temperature.

Western New York, Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and Indiana—Cloudy and cooler Monday, probably local showers; Tuesday generally fair.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

| 1920. | | 1919. | | 1920. | 1919. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 8 A. M. | 64 | 56 | 4 P. M. | 61 | 66 |

DISSOLUTION NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, NEW YORK COUNTY.

In the matter of the application of the Lansing Steamship Company, Inc., a corporation, for voluntary dissolution.

Due service of a copy of the within proposed order is admitted, and notice of resettlement is hereby waived.

Dated, New York, 20th day of April, 1920.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.
By CHARLES F. ROBINSON,
Deputy Attorney.

At a Special Term, Part I. of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, held in the County of New York, at the County Court House, in the City of New York, Borough of Manhattan, on the 27th day of April, 1920.

Present: Hon. Edward J. Gavegan, Justice.

In the matter of the application of the Lansing Steamship Company, Inc., a corporation, for voluntary dissolution.

On reading and filing the petition of A. R. Hanscom, R. Meany and J. F. Long and C. K. Crosby, a majority of the directors of the Lansing Steamship Company, Inc., a corporation created under the laws of this State, and having its principal office located in the City of New York, and the schedule thereto annexed, duly verified by the petitioners on the 16th day of February, 1920, from which petition it appears that the case is one of those specified in section 1779 of the General Corporation Law, and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court from said petition that the said corporation has ceased to operate and do business and has abandoned the same, and upon reading and filing the notice of this application, dated the 20th day of February, 1920, with proof of due service thereof and of said petition and schedule and a copy of said order on the Attorney-General, and

And after hearing Barber, Watson & Gibboney of counsel for the petitioners, and after hearing a representative of the Attorney-General, and

On motion of Barber, Watson & Gibboney, attorneys for the petitioners, it is Ordered that all persons interested in said corporation show cause before James F. Carmen, Esq., who is hereby appointed referee for that purpose, at his office, No. 149 Nassau Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 15th day of June, 1920, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, why the said corporation should not be dissolved; and it is further Ordered that a copy of this order be published at least once in each of the three weeks immediately preceding said 15th day of Jun, 1920, in New York Law Journal and The New York Times, newspapers published in the County of New York.

J. F. L. J. G. J. S. C.

Supreme Court, New York County.—In the matter of the application of the Lansing Steamship Company, Inc., a corporation, for voluntary dissolution.

State of New York, County of New York, ss.:

Arnold R. Boyd, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is an attorney at law admitted in the offices of Barber, Watson & Gibboney, attorneys for the petitioners herein, and that on the 7th day of April, 1920, an order for publication for voluntary dissolution of the above corporation was entered requiring all persons interested in the corporation to show cause before the referee designated in the order why the corporation should not be dissolved. Said order was made returnable on the 9th day of May, 1920, which was less than six weeks after the granting of the order; that section 1782 of the General Corporation Law of the State of New York requires that upon a petition for dissolution of a corporation the court must make an order requiring all persons interested in the corporation to show cause why it should not be dissolved, and designated in the order the time and place therein specified, not less than six weeks after granting of the order, why the corporation should not be dissolved; that the petitioner prays, therefore, that said order entered on the 7th day of April, 1920, and made returnable on the 9th day of May, 1920, be resettled and be made returnable on the 15th day of June, 1920.

ARNOLD R. BOYD.

Sworn to before me this 24th day of April, 1920.

THOMAS RIGGS HART, Jr. [Seal.]

DENIES COAL MEN MAKE BIG PROFITS

Association Official Cites Figures to Discredit Walsh's Charge of Profiteering.

ASSAILS McADOO REPORT

J. D. A. Morrow Declares Operators' Margins Are Falling, While Mining Costs Are Increasing.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—J. D. A. Morrow, Vice President of the National Coal Association, has written an open letter, made public tonight, to Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, replying to the latter's widely quoted speech in the Senate last Tuesday on profiteering, in which he spoke of "excessive profits" having been made by bituminous coal operators during the war. Mr. Morrow challenges the charges made by Senator Walsh as to profiteering and presents figures from official sources in support of his denial. He also discusses some of the difficulties now facing the soft coal industry.

"I am constrained to deny your statements concerning the profits of the bituminous coal industry," says the morrow letter. "To my mind it is necessary to refute the indiscriminate charge that the bituminous coal industry made preposterous profits during the war. Let me, therefore, direct your attention to official figures on this subject which you have either overlooked or disregarded.

"You cite Mr. McAdoo's report on corporate earnings, printed as Senate Document No. 250, as your chief authority. The unfairness of that report is notorious. Mr. McAdoo's letter of transmittal itself states that he selected only companies 'which in 1917 earned 15 per cent. or more on their capital stock.' In 1917 there were about 7,000 separate coal producers. His report, therefore, covers only about 6 per cent. of the total number. It only includes the fortunate 392 who, because of specially favorable mining conditions with low production costs compared with selling prices, or on account of merely nominal capitalization, made 15 per cent. or more on their capital stock. It says nothing of the other 94 per cent., some 5,000 operators, who admittedly made less than 15 per cent.

Cites Geological Survey.

"Further, with regard to alleged huge profits in 1917, the United States Geological Survey report on coal production for 1917, page 858, shows that the total output of bituminous coal in 1917 was sold by the operators at an average price of only $2.26 per ton at the mines, out of which all operating expenses, fixed charges and taxes had to be paid before any profit remained.

"Throughout 1918 prices were under control of the Government. On Nov. 19, 1919, Dr. Garfield, United States Fuel Administrator, stated publicly that the average price allowed the bituminous operators for 1918 was only $2.61 per ton. He stated further that this permitted them an average 'margin' of 40 cents per ton. Dr. Garfield was careful to explain that part of this 'margin' Federal taxes of 30 cents per ton and some other deductions had to be made before the operators had any profits.

"As for 1919, the evidence obtained by Senator Freilinghuysen's sub-committee of the Senate, which has been inquiring into coal conditions since last August, shows that, following the lifting of Fuel Administration control, prices under competition in the open market sank to less than the Fuel Administration maximum limits. The only exceptions to this general downward price movement were certain high grade coals of special value which have always commanded a premium in the open market. At the same time, on account of the additional increase in the cost of material and on account of greater lost time, mining costs advanced. It is common knowledge that in 1919 profits were less than in 1918.

"Margins" Less This Year.

"The Federal Trade Commission has recently issued two reports on costs and selling prices of bituminous coal, showing that the operators' 'margins' in January and February, 1920, were only about half the 'margins' of 1918. The reports state that the 'margins' shown are not profit, because selling expenses, interest on investment and Federal taxes are still to be deducted."

Mr. Morrow complains that "an acute transportation shortage, rendering mine operation very irregular and costly, has been accentuated by unfair discrimination in the distribution of empty coal cars to the mines," and that hundreds of mines discriminated against are prevented from shipping coal on more than four or five days a month, while all the expense of maintaining these mines goes on just the same.

Cost of production and prices of bituminous coal were the subjects of a report by the Federal Trade Commission made public tonight. The report showed labor costs increased 20 cents, cost of supplies advanced 2 cents, and general expenses 8 cents per ton between 1918 and last February. Sales realization, however, increased only 9 cents, or from $2.65 to $2.74 per ton. Between the two periods,

The "margin" per ton, the report shows, was 61 cents in 1918 and 31 cents in February. The report explains that "margin" is the difference between sales realization and the f. o. b. mine cost, and includes selling expenses, interest, income and excess profits taxes and other items.

SEES COAL HIGH FOR YEAR.

Trade Publication Blames Car Shortage for Situation.

The shortage of coal, caused by the interruption of normal transportation facilities will result in high prices for the whole coal year, predicts The Black Diamond, a coal publication.

"There is not a section of the country which is not in dire need of coal," say that publication. "Many industrial plants already are shut down or are on the verge of closing. Others have resorted to other fuel in order to keep running.

"The entire situation is due to the continued car shortage, which is seriously limiting production in all coal fields. With this curtailing output has come a runaway market, an industry, literally dependent upon coal, ignores price in the wild scramble to replenish supplies.

"The situation is one of the gravest which has ever occurred in the history of the trade, the worst feature of it being that there is no immediate relief in sight. No matter how soon transportation conditions improve, the coal shortage which has been brought about is of such a magnitude that high prices will be the order for the remainder of the coal year."

Coal Tug Strikes "No Man's Land."

BOSTON, May 23.—The tug Barryton today struck on the northern end of No Man's Land, three miles south of Martha's Vineyard, and was fast on the rocks tonight. The Coast Guard cutter Acushnet sent word by wireless that she had picked up the coal barge Emile, cut adrift from the tug, and was towing her to Vineyard Haven. A second barge, the Liberty, also was adrift, and both barges were leaking. The message said the Barryton had not sprung a leak but a wrecking crew might be needed to float her.

DECLINES IN WHEAT CROPS.

International Institute Expects Loss in America, Italy and Poland.

ROME, May 23.—America's Winter wheat yield will be affected by a large decline in the area seeded, according to a forecast in the bulletin of the International Institute of Agriculture, issued today. It is said the season is unfavorable and that this may add to the Winter wheat shortage, but the bulletin adds:

"It should be observed that, taking into account the current rate of export and the probable quantities that will be shipped before the end of this season, there should remain such a considerable stock of old wheat as to provide, in conjunction with the reduced new crop, a supply equal to that of the year ending June 30, 1920."

In other countries of the northern hemisphere the condition of Winter cereal crops is normal, except in Poland, where the outlook, especially for rye, is not promising. In Italy, too, there has been a prolonged drought, which may reduce the crop materially. Reports received from Algeria state the damage from dry weather there has been serious.

Argentina's maize crop is estimated at 15 per cent. above the average, and this may be an important factor during the coming season.

With the relaxation of Government control over shipping, quotations for ocean freight rates have changed irregularly, but on the whole, a decline is found. Thus the average cost of sea transportation now compares favorably with any period since 1915. The rates of exchange are also favoring importing countries, especially those which have in the past been most seriously affected.

FUNGICIDE SAVES PEACHES.

Federal Experts Discover Method of Combatting Dry Rot.

Through the development by the Department of Agriculture of a new fungicide, which will control the brown rot, one of the most serious menaces to the peach industry, it is estimated that this new discovery will mean a saving of between $5,000,000 and $10,000,000 to the fruit growers. According to the 1910 census, the peach crop of this country was valued at approximately $29,000,000.

With the increased production resulting from control of brown rot and other fungus diseases, and increased prices, it is estimated that the present annual peach crop is worth between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000. Of this probably 15 to 20 per cent. would be destroyed annually by brown rot if no control measures were used. Agents of the Department of Agriculture regard the fungicide as the big factor that prevents a decline of the peach industry similar to that from which apple growing has suffered in parts of the Middle West.

Up to a few years ago there was no satisfactory fungicide which could be sprayed on peaches during the growing season without seriously injuring the foliage. All remedies which were tried to control the brown-rot fungus resulted in damage that made it prohibitive. Finally a simple mixture made by adding flour of sulphur to slacking lime was found by the investigators to have just the right qualities. It was also found that the fruit sprayed with this new discovery was much superior to the unsprayed, so that its value is enhanced.

428 WAR DEAD IN PORT.

Bodies of Ten Nurses Among Those Aboard Vessel.

The bodies of 418 men and 10 women who died in the service of the United States in the World War arrived yesterday at Hoboken on the Princess Matoika. The women were army nurses, while the men were soldiers who had been killed in action or died of wounds or disease in English hospitals.

The transport also brought the body of Eugene Moriotti, of 192 Prince Street, chief electrician of the vessel, who was killed in Antwerp on April 20 while defending a woman who had been attacked on the street by two men. He beat them off in the fight, was stabbed with a knife and died as help arrived. Moriotti was married a few days before his ship left New York, on April 6. His bride was at the pier to claim the body.

Among the bodies on board were those of Private Thomas E. Dugan, 242 Lynch Street, Brooklyn; Corporal Robert E. Flinn, 324 Amity Street, Flushing; Private Rolland C. Gifford, 8 Wilson Street, Irvington, N. J.; Private Albert M. Hills, 39 Long Street, Jersey City; Captain Frank H. Knight, 50 Seventh Avenue, Brooklyn; Private Stewart Kent, 25 Park Avenue, White Plains; Private John A. McLean, 60 East 122d Street, New York; Private Anton J. Ptacnik, 562 South 13th Street, Newark; Private J. Quadri, 716 Forty-second Street, Brooklyn; Private William L. Soder, 98 Norris Avenue, Jamaica, and Sergeant Edward Weigel, 418 West 49th Street, New York.

POLICE MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Cathedral Rector Urges Men to Purge Force of Graft.

The annual memorial service for deceased members of the New York police force was held yesterday afternoon in St. Patrick's Cathedral. About fifteen hundred members of the force attended, the police band and glee club participating in the exercises. Commissioner Enright, Deputy Commissioners Wallis and Leach, former Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith and General Daniel Appleton of the New York Guard were among those present.

Special mention of John E. Fitzpatrick, the detective killed by auto thieves last week, was made in the memorial sermon given by the Police Department chaplain, the Rev. John G. Coogan. He praised the detective for his bravery.

The rector of the Cathedral, the Right Rev. Michael J. Lavelle in his introductory address, urged the police to purge the force of graft and corruption.

"I don't know if I am throwing a bombshell into this gathering," he said, "and I don't much care if I do. I hope the time will come soon when the Police Department will be free from every sort of graft."

Bishop Gabriel of Cedensburg, N. Y., who is 93, was wheeled into the chancel in his invalid chair, and sat through the ceremonies. Archbishop Hayes was unable to attend.

BEATEN, ROBBED BY GANG.

Victim Suffers Fracture of Two Ribs After Receiving Threats.

Patrick Dalton, 40 years old, of 626 West Seventeenth Street, is in a serious condition suffering from two fractured ribs and possible internal injuries received when he was beaten by gangsters at Ninth Avenue and Forty-first Street late Saturday night. He was robbed of $40 by his assailants who, he said, had been threatening him for a week.

According to Mrs. Hannah Richards, housekeeper for Dalton, he left home early in the evening after telling her of the threats. He returned about midnight, and early yesterday was attended by Dr. Smiley of New York Hospital, who ordered his removal to Bellevue.

Baby Deserted in Bronx Park.

While walking through Bronx Park yesterday afternoon, Miss Mary Gallico of 665 Ninth Avenue found a baby boy, 10 days old, lying on a bench near the Reptile House. The infant was taken to Bellevue Hospital. There was no means of identification on the baby, who was dressed in a white cap, a cream colored serge coat with a cape, knitted boots, white stockings and a white flannel petticoat.

BUILDING TO GO ON, SAY LOAN LEADERS

Interstate Commerce Commission Asked to Put Materials Next to Food and Fuel.

NO PRICE CUTS EXPECTED

Bank Brake Not to be Applied to Necessary Construction—Biggest Problem is Cars.

Walter Stabler, Controller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, has authorized The Dow Service Daily Building Reports to assure the building trades that in so far as his company was concerned there would be no change in its lending policy resulting from the curtailments by the banks of mercantile credits.

"I told the Mayor that the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company had $20,000,000 to lend on new small dwelling construction and new low-priced apartments. We have already made commitments to the extent of $12,000,000 for these two classes of construction which is to proceed to immediate activity, and we are prepared to lend the remainder of the $20,000,000 at once. None of this money will go into replacement loans, alteration of old buildings, nor into commercial construction, however.

"I am a pessimist in the present situation only to the extent that the great and growing need for housing is being subordinated to commercial construction, much of it, I am afraid, being of a speculative nature, whereas the national need of the hour is for homes."

Other financial authorities said that they did not contemplate general shrinkage of credits on necessary building projects. The decision of lenders appreached for building loans during the immediate future would rest, they said, very largely upon whether the projects were speculative in character or not.

There was a wild scramble last week on the building material and equipment companies toward their various banking shrines to learn the attitude of the financial powers with relation to the immediate future of the building construction industry.

The strongest evidence that they were given a clean bill of credit in the present situation developed in the fact that the building material and equipment market along the entire Atlantic seaboard and as far west as the Ohio River remained strong, both on price and demand.

Lumber offered the only evidence of price shading, but investigation at the week-end revealed certain lumber speculators who had leased large options, caught short with cars in transit in the Middle West, where sacrifice prices had been resorted to when their bank credits were suddenly curtailed.

In the Metropolitan district an order was taken on Friday for a million feet at the market's highest recorded price, and another order of exact size was wired in from Pittsburg at the same price level, the purchasers in either case making no quibble about prices whatever. Some lumber prices here advanced last week.

So it is through the entire building material market. The week will open with Hudson common brick firmer at $20 a thousand, wholesale, dock, New York, than it has been at any time this year, although cement and other materials necessary for its consumption are entirely out of storage. Second-hand brick is no longer being delivered in lots of less than 5,000, and for deliveries in Queens or above Washington Heights the price moved on Saturday at $45 to $70 a load.

All through the building material market this same strength is noted. Charles L. Bidlits summed up the equipment situation by saying the difference between the mercantile and the construction markets today is that in the former case there is under-production with no buyers and in the building industry there is under-production with the biggest demand that was ever known with price no object.

Architects whose clients have housing or other necessary projects under contemplation say they have clear sailing through the building departments. At the annual convention of the New York Society of Architects, when James Riely Gordon was unanimously re-elected for the fifth consecutive term as President; Adam E. Fisher of Brooklyn, First Vice President; Edward W. Loth of Albany, Second Vice President; Frederick C. Zobel of New York, Secretary; Henry Holder of Brooklyn, Treasurer, and Walter G. Volckening of New York, Financial Secretary, the situation developing in regard to building, housing and labor situations were optimistically discussed and committees were appointed to investigate the conditions.

Building material manufacturers report the shutting down of non-essential industries is supplying them with much-needed labor that otherwise would have been impossible to get, and in consequence the entire Hudson River brick industry has already raised its production quota for this year, a prospect that was entirely despaired of only fifteen days ago. Cement manufacturers report a similar change for the better.

Civic, financial, distributing and building material manufacturing interests telegraphed every person in authority in and out of Congress to support their telegraphic plea made to the Interstate Commerce Commission last week to place building materials on the railroad priority list next to food and fuel. Car shortage, in other words, overshadows all other retardant factors in the building outlook today.

INSTRUCTION

The Washington School for Girls

AN endowed non-sectarian private school for girls, appealing particularly to parents who wish to select a school for their daughters where the highest educational ideals are not made impossible through lack of funds.

An unusually brilliant faculty selected by the foremost educators of the country has been assembled to aid Mr. Philip Cox in conducting the school.

Mr. Philip Cox, the head-master, has had an exceptional experience in directing preliminary and secondary education in both private and public schools. Mr. Cox is a member of the National Commission of Reorganization of Secondary Education, and the author of widely quoted and authoritative articles on education.

Matriculations are now being received for the Fall term. A personal interview with the head-master, at the school, is invited, Mondays to Fridays from 10 to 12, beginning Monday, May 24. Boys will be admitted to kindergarten classes.

Train at Home for a $50 to $250 a Week Job

TRAFFIC MANAGEMENT

Important positions at high salaries await the ambitious men who will train in Traffic Management. The demand for traffic experts is far greater than the supply. You can train at home, in your spare time, for one of these important, high-salaried jobs. The LaSalle home-study training course in Traffic Management is endorsed by railroad officials and by shippers everywhere. Send the coupon today for full information regarding this course and the unlimited opportunities which exist in the traffic field. We will also send you details of the low cost and the convenient plan of payment. Our book, "Ten Years' Promotion in One," tells how LaSalle trained men have gained in one year promotion which men without this training have not realized in ten. Write today or phone or call for a Personal Talk.

WARNED BY WOOD, PAPEN TESTIFIES

Says the General Told Him He Had Details of Plot to Blow Up New York.

SUBWAYS TO BE DESTROYED

General Had All the Details—"We Did Not Waste a Word Over the Matter," Said Von Papen.

BERLIN, May 23 (Associated Press).—In testifying recently before a National Assembly Commission, Captain Franz von Papen, former German military attaché in Washington said:

"General Wood once asked me to call on him at Governors Island. He was very cordial, and smilingly told me:

"'Several persons have called on me and given me a detailed plan of a plot, which you, Captain, are supposed to have worked out.' This scheme provides for the landing of German U-boats at New York, which would, then proceed to blow up the subway tunnels and the city's water mains. We have your complete plans, where you propose to place your explosives, and what points you will attack. Complete evidence is in my possession, you may see it if you are interested.'

"We did not waste a single word over the matter; but the incident shows the methods used against us at the time."

If you succeed in measureably restricting American deliveries of war materials to the Entente until the end of 1915 we will in all probability have won the war."

General von Falkenhayn, then Chief of the German General Staff, wrote thus to Captain von Papen in the Spring of 1916. Von Papen told the commission that he had directed his efforts to that end.

He declared that he was of the same opinion politically as von Bernstorff with respect to the American situation, and so informed General von Falkenhayn when he returned to Germany after his recall from Washington.

Said War Was Lost if We Entered.

"If you do not succeed in keeping the United States out of the enemy coalition, you will have lost the war," Von Papen informed the Chief of Staff. He added that tremendous material and moral assets were at the disposal of America.

"But," continued Von Papen, "these were so imperfectly appraised here that I deemed it necessary to enlighten German public opinion concerning them.

"The military attaché obtained the consent of Von Jagow, the Foreign Secretary, to appear before the German editors for the purpose of informing them on the German attitude, but Major Nicoll, chief of the press and espionage division of the General Staff, opposed the plan.

"After sounding the plans to secure a corner in war materials in the United States, control factories, divert labor and prevent munitions from reaching the Entente, Von Papen said that the theft of Dr. Albert's portfolio, containing outlines of the scheme, brought the secret into the Entente's possession.

In the course of further evidence von Papen touched upon the alleged unneutral attitude of official quarters in Washington, the American courts and political circles, and declared that the British Military Attaché was permitted to operate unmolested and had the support of official quarters and the American Secret Service.

Hindenburg Urged Making Peace.

GENEVA, May 23.—Under the caption, "Who Lost the War," the Berlin Verwärts publishes two documents signed by Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General Ludendorff, former Quartermaster General, dated October, 1918, asking the German Government to make peace immediately. Ludendorff's request was dated Oct. 1 and that of von Hindenburg Oct. 2.

"They say they were stabbed in the back by the Socialists," says the Vorwärts, which then asks the question, "Who lost the war."

Baker Says He Is Unable to Comment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—Secretary Baker said tonight that he was unable to comment on the dispatch from Berlin which stated that Captain von Papen, testifying recently before the National Assembly Commission, has said that in 1915 General Wood had called him to Governors Island and told him that he (General Wood) had complete details of German plans to land U-boats and blow up the New York subways and water mains, and that General Wood offered to show those plans to von Papen.

Mr. Baker did not become Secretary of War until March, 1916, and has no personal knowledge of what might have happened prior to that time. Lindley M. Garrison was at that time Secretary of War. If General Wood had done what von Papen is alleged to have declared he did, actually show possession of German plans, they were probably also brought to the attention of General Staff officers and the War College here, but that fact could not be established tonight.
